Suspect arrested in 2nd area murder

A doctor was booked by Pomona police Saturday on suspicion of murdering his wife with a fatal injection of an unknown drug at a Pomona motel.

In a second homicide, officers have booked a 21-year-old Chino man in connection with the shooting death of his former common-law wife.

Dr. Jack Ostergaard, 47, reportedly of the Santa Barbara area, was booked by officers after his wife, Maureen, 42, was pronounced dead on arrival at Pomona Valley Community Hospital Friday night.

Officer Walt Barkley said Ostergaard was arrested at the Ganesha Motel, 1111 W. Holt Ave. Saturday at 2:30 p.m. after an investigation of his wife's death. The couple had been staying at the motel.

Police indicated the victim died of a fatal injection, probably from a hypodermic needle.

Barkley said hospital officials informed police of suspicious circumstances surrounding the death, and "foul play" was suspected.

A coroner's spokesman said an autopsy would be conducted today to determine the exact cause of death.

In the second homicide, Valentin F. Villa, 21, of 15709 Del Monte St., Chino, surrendered himself early Saturday at the Chino police station.

His former common law wife, Barbara J. Rosas, of 1403 S. Palomares St., Pomona, died at 1:40 a.m. Saturday, while surgeons were trying to save her life at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

A second victim, Jesse M. Perez, 20, of 888 W. 10th St., Pomona, who was shot twice in the arm, was treated and released from the same hospital.

The argument, officers stated, was over Miss Rosas' involvement with Perez.

Villa allegedly fired numerous shots from a .22 caliber revolver at the two victims. Miss Rosas died of wounds to the chest, leg and other areas.

Perez came to Miss Rosas' house when Villa was there, officers said. There was an argument, and Perez asked Villa to leave. Villa did, but returned with a gun.

He allegedly chased the victims around the house, firing a number of shots, and then fled toward Chino, police said.

A $95 billion defense budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Ford administration plans to ask the new Democratic Congress to approve a record $95 billion for defense spending in the new fiscal year starting July 1, Pentagon sources said Saturday.

Sources said the administration also would ask the lawmakers to approve additional billions in obligations to be spent in future years for such long-lead weapons as ships and planes, resulting in an overall total of about $103 billion and breaching the $100 billion mark for the first time.

The request is expected to spark a sharp outcry in the 94th Congress, which gained a number of potential new defense critics in the November elections.

Defense officials cited inflationary pressures as the primary reason behind the large boost in the Pentagon's request for Fiscal Year 1976, which starts July 1. They said the increase would not represent the start of any vast new arms programs.

The defense budget request for the current fiscal year was $92.6 billion, a figure Congress trimmed by about 4 per cent.

Pentagon officials said the weapons industry is suffering even more inflation than the general economy. They cited shipbuilding as one of the worst areas, with inflation in that industry running about 25 per cent —double the Consumer Price Index.

The $95 billion is the figure which immediately effects the economy.

The topping of the watershed $100 billion mark is expected to focus more congressional attention than ever on the new Pentagon budget, and defense officials fear a less sympathetic response than in past years.

Last year, the normally easy going Senate and House Appropriations Committees doubled their usual token cuts in the defense budget. And last November's elections brought in a flood of new Democrats, many of whom spoke during their campaigns of slashing defense spending .

To get around the impression of a soaring budget, the Pentagon is expected to emphasize this year —as it has in the past —the "constant" dollar which eliminates the effects of inflation.

Sets up panel to probe CIA

Ford talks tax cut with Rocky, aides

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford reviewed anti-recession proposals with Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller and his chief economic advisers Saturday and adminstration sources said the suggestions included possible income tax cuts for low and middle income Americans.

Then, shifting his attention to another major issue on a hard working day, Ford announced he is creating a "blue ribbon panel" of citizens to investigate charges the CIA spied on American citizens at home in violation of its charter.

Ford also disclosed that the Justice Department already has started investigating whether the CIA broke the law. He said the citizens' panel would report to the attorney general on any criminal activity it finds.

A White House spokesman said Ford would name five to seven persons, none of whom will be congressmen or government employes, to his citizens' commission. The spokesman said Ford expected to receive the panel's report in three months.

The CIA announcement came at the end of a busy day in which Ford and Rockefeller discussed anti-recesion strategy with the executive committee of the President's Economic Policy Board.

Administration sources said the economists had recommended a tax break for low and middle-income workers as an effective way to stimulate spending and create more jobs.

Nessen said Rockefeller and the other economic experts in the Cabinet Room heard Ford outline "tentative decisions" he has made on economic and energy problems. Nessen said Ford asked everyone in the room to keep these possible action steps confidential.

In the meeting Treasury Secretary William Simon discussed such economic problems as the effect on the credit market of large government borrowing. Nessen said Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board talked about the danger of too rapid an expansion of monetary supply. Burns said putting too much money into circulation now would mean more inflation "a year or two down the road." The committee's discussions of economics and energy dovetailed, the press secretary said.

Ford has not yet decided firmly whether to propose a tax cut, sources said, and must still settle on the size of any reduction he does endorse.

Dramatic street encounter

Victim shoots it out with 2 robbers

MIAMI (UPI) — Sitting in a dentist's chair awaiting the drill seldom develops a cheerful frame of mind, but when someone shoved a gun barrel behind the ear of Harry Clark, it made him especially angry.

And Clark, a burly heavy equipment operator, didn't cool off until long after he had shot it out with two robbery suspects and helped police put them behind bars.

"I didn't do it to be a hero," Clark said. "The reason I went after them is that I wanted my money back."

Besides, Clark pointed out, the robbers had threatened him and frightened his family.

Clark, 49, explained he came to Miami from his home in Hollywood Saturday to go to his family dentist, Dr. C.C. Ray, in the old neighborhood where Clark grew up. He was sitting in the dentist's chair when the robbery started.

"First, I thought something had touched my ear and then this guy said, 'Look at me again, and I'll kill you,'" Clark said.

The gunmen robbed the doctor and Clark of their cash and jewelry, collecting a total of about $4,000. They made Clark's wife Terry, 26, and their two children Wendy, 7, and David, 4, lie on the floor while the robbery was taking place.

"David began crying and one of the gunmen threatened to shoot the boy unless he stopped," Clark said.

Then the robbers herded the dentist, Clark and his family into an office closet and told them not to come out. When he heard footsteps on a wooden stairway leading to the street, Clark sprang into action.

The construction worker ran to his automobile and got a 25-caliber automatic pistol he carries in the glove compartment and started after the robbers, who were walking in a casual manner down the street.

Clark chased the two about a block, saw police officer Vernon Hetherington nearby and opened fire as the two robbers entered a car. Hetherington joined Clark in firing at the car. Seconds later, the getaway car swerved and smashed into parked automobiles.

Clark reached the wrecked car first and before Hetherington could calm him, he struck the robber who had put the gun to his head in the dentist's office.

"I probably shouldn't have done it," Clark said, "but I was upset about my family."

The suspects were identified as Larry Milton, 19, and Steve Johnson, 21. Both were charged with three counts of armed robbery and possession of a firearm during a felony. Johnson also was charged with assault with intent to commit murder. Johnson received an arm wound in the battle and was treated at a hospital.

The articles are written by Ray DeCrane, business editor of The Cleveland Press, and distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Association.

Also, there are instructions on how to obtain a 64-page booklet which shows you step-by-step and line-for-line how to complete your income tax form, offers scores of tips on keeping down your tax bill and provides information on ways to advance to higher-yielding investment opportunities. It explains landmark legislation Congress passed last year which makes it possible for more workers to establish their own tax-free retirement savings program.

Ford signs job funds, 55 m.p.h. speed limit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford signed legislation into law Saturday making the nation-wide 55-mile-an-hour speed limit permanent and providing $4.5 billion in new unemployment benefits and public jobs.

Ford also signed a bill paving the way for the eventual construction of deep water super-ports at which huge oil tankers could unload their cargoes with greater safety and less expense.

The speed limit bill also allows heavier trucks to use interstate highways and extends until Dec. 31 the car pooling demonstration program.

Ford said the 55-mile-an-hour "limit has proven to be of great value both in saving fuel and in decreasing the loss of life on our highways."

In a statement Ford also said the car pooling demonstration program —paying states and localities to encourage car pools —"could save this country five billion gallons of gasoline a year. In addition, it will reduce air pollution and urban congestion."

Ford said of the increased truck weights on the highways: "Largely because of the lower speed limit, many truckers have found themselves in an economic bind, with decreased productivity."

The bill raises allowable weights for single axle trucks from 18,000 to 20,000 pounds, for tandem axle trucks from 32,000 to 34,000 pounds and for overall gross weight from 73,280 to 80,000 pounds.

With Saturday midnight the legal deadline for handling bills passed by the last Congress, Ford approved a score of other measures. He also used his veto power.

He withheld his signature from, thus killing by "pocket veto," a $125 million bill to help farmers with water and soil conservation projects. He also rejected a bill restricting imports of filberts, a kind of nut.

The unemployment measure extends jobless benefits to one year and provides funds for creation of 100,000 jobs for the unemployed. Ford had insisted Congress pass a 5 or the measure, but dropped the demand in the face of congressional refusal.

In a White House statement, Ford said the $125 million water and soil conservation bill is no longer needed. He said the soil and water conservation projects of the past, aimed at giving farmers the incentive to adopt conservation practices, have achieved their goal.

Ford vetoed the filberts bill because, he said, it would "unnecessarily increase prices" to the consumer and harm United States trade policy with a trade barrier "at a time when we are trying to persuade other nations to dismantle" their barriers.

The President signed the Deep Water Ports Act, saying, "Deep water ports can provide the safest, most efficient and least expensive means for transporting petroleum supplies that we obtain from foreign sources."

The bill will help pave the way for deep water ports to be established offshore to receive the oil brought in by supertankers, the huge new tankers whose numbers are increasing in the world. Ford said supertanker-carried oil is cheaper. He said deep water ports also reduce the danger of spillage from conventional tankers using coastline harbors.

The bill authorizes the licensing for construction and operation of offshore oil ports beyond the United States territorial limits. It sets up a special fund to pay for damage and cleanup costs of oil spillage by tankers.

Food for hungry nations plan to exceed $1 billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford soon will select one of three new plans boosting the value of U.S. food aid to between $1.1 billion and $1.5 billion and sending much of it to the hungriest nations abroad, a government source said Saturday.

All three plans represented a significant increase over the $900 million currently budgeted for aid shipments in the 1974-75 fiscal year under the Food for Peace program.

The source said an administration option paper for new food aid programs included a low choice costing $1.1 billion, a medium-range choice costing $1.2 billion to $1.3 billion, and a high choice costing $1.5 billion.

Administration policymakers have been pushing for an early decision to quiet criticism which arose after Ford refused to approve an immediate one million ton increase in aid during the World Food Conference at Rome last November.

The decision on overseas food aid was delayed because Congress, shortly before adjourning in December, inserted a provision in the aid bill designed to shift U.S. food aid from "political" recipients like South Vietnam to countries facing the threat of starvation.

The new bill requires that at least 70 per cent of Food for Peace shipments must be sent to countries on a "hunger list" including Bangladesh, India, Sri Lanka, Pakistan and a number of smaller nations.

Because of this provision, the source said, officials had to juggle some food distribution plans.

For example, one official said, earlier plans called for a substantial additional commitment of rice to South Korea sometime during the remainder of the year ending June 30. But because of the new law, the official said, much of the rice now will be re-routed to nations included in the hungriest group.

Libya lifts ban on oil for U.S.

Libya was reported Saturday to have quietly lifted its 15-month ban on oil shipments to the United States. Morocco announced it is taking over operations in the country of the American Exxon oil company.

Iran and West Germany took issue with the United States for raising the possibility of military force to bring down the price of oil if the industrial nations are seriously threatened.

But Kuwaiti Petroleum Minister Abdel Rahman Al-Atiqi, without referring to Kissinger's remarks, echoed the secretary in an interview published in Saturday's Al Diyar magazine in Beirut.

He said that cutting production will "complicate matters and could lead the industrialized and advanced nations to launch war against us. We have no intention of denying the world access to our oil —a matter which would push the world to the brink of destruction."

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger remarked about the possible use of force in seeking to insure oil supplies in an interview with Business Week magazine. On Saturday, the White House said President Ford shares Kissinger's view that industrial nations might consider military force as a last resort if "strangled" by the need for oil.

Iranian Premier Amir Abbas Hoveyda said in an interview published in the Cairo newspaper Al Ahram that "if one of the superpowers sent its armed forces to the oil-rich Gulf countries, the other superpower would do likewise and a great catastrophe would ensue. Iran does not believe this will happen. A military invasion of oil sources is impossible.

Westmoreland suffers mild heart attack

PALM DESERT, Calif. (UPI) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland, 60, has suffered a mild heart attack but was reported resting comfortably Saturday at Eisenhower Medical Center, a hospital spokesman said.

The spokesman said Westmoreland, former commander of U.S. Army forces in the Vietnam war, suffered chest pains early Friday evening and was admitted to the hospital for "what appeared to be a mild heart attack."

Westmoreland and his wife had been the guests of comedian Bob Hope at his Palm Springs home since last Thursday.

The hospital spokesman said a medical bulletin on Westmoreland's condition will be issued from the hospital Saturday at 5 p.m. PST.

Area house fire being probed

Chino fire department officials are investigating the cause of a fire which caused moderate to heavy damage to a house near Sierra Vista Road and Los Serranos Road in county territory, early Saturday.

Twelve firemen in five units responded to a 1:39 a.m. alarm and found the structure "well involved" in flames.

3 burglary suspects nabbed, valley store, motel robbed

Three burglary suspects were captured, and a convenience store and motel were robbed of small amounts of cash over the weekend.

Pomona police captured three burglary suspects in the act Saturday night after they reportedly broke a window at a record store.

Officers arrested the trio, including one adult and two juveniles, at Pacific Stereo, 330 N. Indian Hill Blvd.

A police spokesman said an alarm at the store alerted officers to the burglary at 2:51 a.m. The name of the adult suspect was not immediately available.

Also in Pomona, a pair of gunmen held a store clerk and three customers at gunpoint late Friday night before escaping with cash from the store's register and floor safe.

The robbery occurred, police said, at the 7-11 Market at 1001 E. Grand Ave.

Two men, both described as 18-to 20-year-old Mexican-Americans, entered the store and confronted clerk Michael R. Yancy, 20, with a handgun and ordered him to hand over money from the cash register.

As three patrons watched, the robbers then ordered Yancy to open the floor safe.

In Ontario, the manager of the Always Inn Motel, 5258 Mission Blvd., was bound and robbed of a small amount of cash early Saturday by two gunmen armed with a sawed-off shotgun.

Sheriff's deputies said the call came in at 4:30 a.m. after a motel occupant had entered the office and found the manager, Thelma Parcell, lying on the floor.

The police chief is a housewife

By THOMAS BROOKS Jr.

LAKESIDE CITY, Tex. (UPI) — A bright yellow Cadillac is parked in front of a suburban lakefront home. Inside, a blonde housewife busily tries to answer the telephone while she prepares dinner. It is hardly a picture of a typical hard-nosed, modern crime fighting force.

But Carolyn M. Deen, 36, packs a .38-caliber Police Special which she says she can shoot better than most men and, with a little help from her friends, she says she's prepared to handle anything that comes along as Texas' only certified female chief of police.

"I've lived in this area nearly all my life and I'm pretty optimistic about my role here," she said. "My neighbors help me. If they see anything suspicious, they take down a license number or description and let me know about it."

Her election eight months ago began with a joke by her husband, a commissioned special Texas Ranger.

"They asked him to be chief, but he already had a commission and state law forbids two commissions at the same time. So, he said, 'Write my wife in. She's younger and stronger than I am anyway.' He said it sort of as a joke and they did it."

Without a campaign, Mrs. Deen received about 100 write-in votes in the community of 300 persons. No one else received any.

Now that she has the post, she said she will run again.

Women's liberation, she said, had nothing to do with her election or her enthusiasm for the job.

"I believe women should get equal work for equal pay, but I still enjoy being a wife and being at home."

Mrs. Deen was raised on a ranch near Childress, Tex., where she became familiar with guns. She finished in the top 10 per cent in firing range tests during law enforcement training provided by the state. She did not take any self defense courses and has not had any in the past.

So far, her work has been confined to traffic violations, kids shooting BBs through windows and a few stolen outboard motors. But she says she expects worse in the future and isn't afraid to use her revolver.

"In these smaller towns, crime is on the rise. I think anyone would be a little apprehensive in a tough situation, but I'm willing to do what is necessary."

She said the courts in the past have interfered with the jobs of law enforcement officers and provided too much sanctuary for criminals.

"I think the Supreme Court may be swinging back the other way and giving the law enforcement officer a break now," she said. "In the past, I think they've been a little lenient. I think its swinging back and that's helpful."

Members jailed, anti-government leaflets seized

Egypt uncovers clandestine Communist group

CAIRO (UPI) — Egyptian security authorities have uncovered a clandestine Communist organization and arrested its members, the semi-official Middle East News Agency said Saturday.

The group aimed at creating unrest and anti-government leaflets were seized in the possession of its members, the agency said.

The agency did not say if this group was responsible for the riots staged by thousands of workers in the streets of Cairo Wednesday to protest low pay and high prices.

But the newspaper Akhbar El Yom hinted that leftists were responsible for the riots. A "leftist Egyptian Jew" was arrested along with 61 other persons in connection with the demonstrations, the newspaper said.

The riots and measures to secure domestic political and economic stability were discussed by President Anwar Sadat and Premier Abdel Aziz Higazi Saturday.

The Middle East News Agency said the Sadat-Higazi meeting discussed the "necessity of ensuring domestic security as well as political and economic stability, in the light of the recent riots."

Higazi briefed Sadat on his cabinet's plans to ensure the availability of basic consumer goods on local markets.

One of the workers' main grievances was the shortage of such goods and the rising prices of other commodities.

The agency said the 1975 budget includes allocations in foreign currency deemed adequate to cover the people's requirements of such consumer goods as tea, sugar, meat, cheese, textiles and shoes.

A cabinet meeting today will announce these allocations as well as other government measures to increase and improve local production and stabilize prices, the agency said.

Nixon not ruthless enough, says unrepentent Liddy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Convicted Watergate mastermind G. Gordon Liddy views the events of the Watergate scandals as basic politics —"like brushing your teeth" —and says Richard M. Nixon should have covered them up more ruthlessly.

Liddy, the former Nixon campaign finance counsel who drew up the intelligence gathering plans that led directly to the Watergate bugging, relaxed his vow of silence on Watergate somewhat in an interview with Mike Wallace scheduled for broadcast Sunday on CBS-TV's "60 Minutes."

Sporting a beard he grew since leaving prison, Liddy is free on bond pending an appeal of the 6-20 year prison term he received for conspiracy, burglary and illegal wiretapping in the 1972 break-in at Democratic national headquarters.

Liddy passes his time writing and minding his five children while Mrs. Liddy works as a school teacher. Mrs. Liddy said she regards her husband as a hero and likened him to a prisoner-of-war.

Unrepentent and proud of his Watergate service to Nixon, Liddy still refuses to discuss "substantive" Watergate matters. But he gave Wallace his views on political morality and scathing assessments of the "stool pigeons" who served Nixon and later provided the government with evidence.

"Power exists to be used," Liddy said in defending the morality of the Watergate break-in, which he planned, and other aborted 1972 campaign schemes to kidnap anti-Republican radicals and entice Democratic politicians with prostitutes.

"...If Watergate is as it's alleged to be, it was an intelligence gathering operation of one group of persons who were seeking power, or to retain power, against another group of persons who were seeking to acquire power. That's all it was.

"It's like brushing your teeth Michael. It's basic."

Other Watergate conspirators testified Liddy carried out his campaign intelligence duties with fanatical devoton, drawing up grand schemes for sabotaging the Democrats and organizing the Watergate break-in.

Liddy was convicted of conspiracy in the 1971 burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office and served an 18-month contempt-of-court sentence for refusing to talk about Watergate.

On one of the presidential tapes, Nixon called Liddy "a little bit nuts." Liddy said he took no offense at the remark and remains loyal to Nixon.

"He's evidently a very sick man," Liddy said. "And I regret that. I think he has demonstrated towards the end of his presidency that he was insufficiently ruthless, in that these domestic difficulties in which he was engaged, he did not act ruthlessly."

Liddy said Nixon should have destroyed the tapes.

Asked what he thought of John W. Dean III, the former presidential counsel who was the star witness for the Watergate prosecution, Liddy said: "You'd have to put him right up there with Judas Iscariot."

Liddy also called Jeb Stuart Magruder, who was his boss at the Nixon re-election committee and who also testified and went to prison, "an accomplished, skillful liar."

Liddy said he would refuse to testify even if his prison term were reduced to one year in exchange for his testimony.

If his appeal fails and he must return to prison, Liddy hopes there will be no Watergate informers in that prison.

"I don't want to be in any bird-cage for stool pigeons," he said. "...I'd rather have an honest bank robber any day in the week as a cellmate."

School authorities agree to discuss public gripes

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

Accusations of police arrests of students on campus without knowledge of parents or administrators, confidential lists of so-called troublemakers, police brutality and public apathy, and the open campus policy for Pomona high schools were issues that came under fire during a community meeting in Pomona Saturday.

The long meeting concluded with Supt. Robert Wentz and board of education members Mary Montes, Don Donnelly and Ken Pine agreeing to meet with community representatives to open the lines of communication and deal with the gripes voiced about the schools. Although numerous episodes involving the Pomona Police Department were bantered about, Detective Kurt Longfellow of the local force did not respond to questions or allegations.

The second in a series of monthly meetings sponsored by the Pomona Valley chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Christian Community Center and the Minority Coalition for Equal Justice began at 10 a.m. at the Neighborhood Adult Participation Project (NAPP) Center at Holt Avenue and Ganesha Boulevard. Gertha Speigiher, the Rev. Warren Taylor and Helen Faylega moderated the 3½-hour session attended by about 75 persons.

Charles Johnson, president of Southern Area Conference NAACP and a Pasadena attorney, said police brutality is "rampant throughout the country and county. It is not a personal thing, but a conscious attitude within police departments. Police brutality is not an offense of the white officer alone. Such conduct is also initiated by the black officer."

Johnson attacked public apathy and lack of vigilance to alleviate such conditions and attitudes in law enforcement.

"Watergate is not behind us. If Nixon or a man like him can go all the way to the White House, then there are a helluva lot more beneath him that are like him or worse. We have only touched the tip of the iceberg. Waterberg represents an attitude," charged Johnson.

Don Barnes, president of the Ganesha High School PTA and associated with the Valwood Men's Group, an organization of black men formed to fight crime in the community, criticized the "holding tank" policy of Park Avenue Continuation High School, the elimination of school assemblies for communication between faculty and students and the non-involvement of area parents.

"If a student is labeled a troublemaker, he has two strikes and he's out. Even a man in baseball is allowed three strikes. Things are not right. They could be better. The contention is that anything positive that could happen in the system is not allowed to happen because there is continual doubt and fear that it can't work. People are not listening," said Barnes.

Dorothy Peterson, director of the N.A.P.P. Center, and Betty Williams, a parent and school volunteer, voiced displeasure about the open campus policy at Ganesha and the free periods for students during regular school hours.

These two conditions have created serious problems ranging from student inactivity to gathering at local parks for illicit sex, drug sales and usage and traffic congestion, they said.

Mrs. Peterson asked "How can a child be arrested on the school grounds during school hours and the administrators know nothing about it and parents are not notified?"

Pine, curently president of the school board, answered "It is the responsibility of the principal to summon the police if the incident justifies it. To the best of my knowledge the police could not come on the campus without the knowledge of the principal, unless they were in the area and witnessed an incident that merits entering the campus."

Wentz then outlined the chain of command to follow from the area school to the district office for parental complaints.

Mr. Taylor replied "We don't want to know who to contact. We want to know how this can be stopped; how a parent can be notified before his child is carted off to jail."

Barnes accused the administration of local high schools of maintaining confidential lists of students dubbed "troublemakers." Pine said "To this date, I am aware of no confidential list of troublemakers per se. To the best of my knowledge that type of list does not exist. If it does, I would pursue it and eliminate it."

Barnes reported that the information came from school personnel, but refused to name the staff members talking to persons in the community.

"It's a part of your system. You evidently don't know your system," he said.

Wentz contended that the campus had been opened in attempts to relieve some of the tensions that existed on campus, cause students to intermingle, and allow students the opportunity to demonstrate responsibility.

"We are searching for solutions to the problem. Whether you contain it by closing the campus or opening it up, the problems are there. What is healthy living for the community and the schools at the same time? This is the problem that has to be dealt with," said Wentz.

Mrs. Speiginer pointed out that the "educational institutions must be instruments of change. Your school cannot be an agent of change as long as you have people subscribing to one kind of community and sending out subversive literature and attitudes about the other communities. We must be concerned with the more than 20,000 children in this district. The minority community has been ignored far too long.

"Let's get out and find out what is happening. Then let's get together and do something about it. If you are concerned, it's time for us to stop talking and start acting and investigating. Talk to your neighbors and get them out here," Mrs. Speiginer added.

Watergate conspirators

Convicted Nixon aides used laws on conspiracy to intimidate foes

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon's most powerful aides were convicted in the Watergate cover-up trial under the very laws they themselves often used as a weapon against administration enemies —the conspiracy statutes.

During John N. Mitchell's tenure as attorney general, the Justice Department invoked the conspiracy laws to prosecute Dr. Benjamin Spock, the Chicago Seven, the Berrigan brothers, the Gainesville Eight and Daniel Ellsberg in what were referred to as the "New Left trials."

On New Year's Day the Watergate jury found Mitchell and three others —H.R. Haldeman, the former White House chief of staff; John D. Ehrlichman, the former White House domestic affairs chief; and Robert C. Mardian, once the assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Internal Security Division —guilty of their own conspiracy.

Conspiracy, as U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica told the Watergate jury several times, is simply two or more persons acting together in the furtherance of a crime.

The Watergate convictions raised anew some serious questions about the fairness of the nation's conspiracy laws.

Melvin L. Wulf, legal director of the American Civil Liberties Union, told UPI in an interview that he finds those laws and trals conducted under them objectionable because:

—Each member of the alleged conspiracy becomes responsible for the actions of every other member, whether or not they ever met.

—One member of the conspiracy may testify to what another member of the conspiracy told him —testimony which would be inadmissable hearsay in other types of trials.

—Hearsay evidence against one member of the conspiracy may be used as evidence against all other members.

Wulf, however, defended some applications of the conspiracy laws.

"There's nothing wrong with a conspiracy law, particularly if persons are conspiring to commit murder, rob a bank or obstruct justice," he said. "You just have to be careful how you use it."

Wulf said the Nixon administration used the conspiracy laws to stop persons from saying things to which the administration objected. In almost every case, the defendants were acquitted or the U.S. Court of Appeals set the convictions aside.

Spock was accused of conspiring to violate the Selective Service laws by urging young men to evade the draft in opposition to the Vietnam war.

The Chicago Seven were accused of crossing a state boundary in conspiring to incite a riot at the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Ellsberg was accused of stealing, espionage and conspiracy to obtain the Pentagon Papers about the Vietnam war.

The Berrigans, who are Catholic priests, were accused of conspiring to blow up heating tunnels in Washington and to kidnap Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Mitchell —who himself took part in discussions of G. Gordon Liddy's plan to kidnap demonstration leaders at the 1972 GOP convention —testified in the Gainesville Eight trial.

One defendant in that trial, Scott Camil, said: "The conspiracy that exists is a conspiracy on the part of the Nixon administration to silence any person, organization or political party whose actions do not reinforce the Nixon administration."

In the Watergate trial, Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mardian were accused of conspiring to obstruct justice in an effort to conceal top-level involvement in the Watergate bugging. Twenty other persons, including Nixon, were named as unindicted co-conspirators.

5 perish in crash of small airplane

MAMMOTH LAKES (UPI) — A twin-engine Beechcraft airplane crashed into the snowcovered Sierras shortly after takeoff from Mammoth-June Lake Airport Thursday, killing all five persons aboard.

The aircraft, registered to Le Roy Penhall, a Newport Beach business executive, crashed in the Sherwin Creek area about five miles from the airport.

The identities of the victims, all badly burned, were not available pending notification of next of kin.

Swear in new West End Municipal Court judge

William Pitt Hyde has been sworn in as a new Muncipal Court Judge in ceremonies at West Valley Municipal Court in Ontario.

Judge Hyde was elected to the bench last year to fill a vacancy created when Judge Kenneth Ziebarth was elected to the Superior Court.

A lifelong resident of the West End, Judge Hyde is a graduate of Chaffey High School and Chaffey College. He received his bachelors degree from Stanford and his law degree from the University of Colorado.

Prior to his election to the bench, he practiced law in Ontario for many years.

Judge Hyde was sworn in Friday by David C. Merriam, presiding judge of the West Valley Municipal Court Division of San Bernardino County.

In addition to his wife, Roxie, and two sons, Howard and Paul, the judge's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pitt W. Hyde, also were present for the ceremony, which was viewed by more than 100 dignitaries and guests of the legal profession in the valley.

In a short speech Judge Hyde noted that there is a great dissension in the country over the effectiveness of the justice system, with many claiming the judiciary is not working.

He warned, however, that judges cannot succumb to the public's clamor for maintaining order at the expense of individual rights and freedom guaranteed under the Constitution's Bill of Rights.

Fire destroys Casa Colina Hospital unit

A major fire at Casa Colina Hospital destroyed a mobile trailer and more than $30,000 worth of sophisticated therapy equipment, reported Pomona Fire Department officials.

The fire occurred late Friday night as the trailer stood unoccupied adjacent to the hospital.

Four fire units responded to the scene at 10:39 p.m. and were able to contain the fire to the trailer only. There was no damage to the hospital or injury to hospital personnel or patients.

A hospital spokesman said that the trailer was part of a new research and rehabilitative program for patients with serious lower back problems.

He indicated that despite the loss there would be no major interruption of service to patients, as alternate equipment was already being put into service.

The cause of the fire was not immediately determined and is still under investigation.

Officials reported that the apartment was fully involved in flames as four fire units responded.

The fire, which apparently began in the kitchen of the apartment, is believed to have been set by an arsonist.

Mozambique doctor

Quite a change from N.Y. to Kansas

SPEARVILLE, Kan. (UPI) — Dr. Guilherme Mabunda of Mozambique came a long way just to make house calls.

Eight years as an intern and resident in New York City convinced Mabunda that big city life was not for him.

"There you are living with 8 million people," said the surgeon, who speaks with a slight British accent. "You never know any of them. So I began looking for another place to live."

The search took Mabunda, 43, all the way from one of the world's biggest cities to this southwest Kansas town of 602 persons which had been without a resident doctor for three years. His initial reaction to Kansas was shock.

As with many easterners, Mabunda had expected cowboys, Indians and mountains. Instead, he found flat, windswept plains.

"Even if there were Indians here," he laughed, "There's no place for them to hide. It's so flat!

"I'm getting accustomed to the flatness now. It's different and I enjoy that. You have more space for yourself here. There's room to breathe."

He has only been in Kansas since December but so far he is impressed—especially with the people.

"They're helpful and congenial," Mabunda said. "I can even make house calls here. That's something I would never do in New York. It was too dangerous."

Life in Spearville so far has presented Mabunda no major problems. He said the fact that he is black seems to make no difference to anyone—least of all to him.

"I just don't think in terms of colors," he said.

Mabunda and his wife think Spearville will be a good place to raise a family.

"We'll do that later, after we're settled," the doctor said. "But right now there are too many other things to do."

10% tuition hike seen for private colleges

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Most of California's private colleges will have tuition increases of at least 10 per cent next year while at the state universities and colleges, tuition might be stable but total living costs for students will rise.

Arthur S. Marmaduke, director of the California State Scholarship and Loan Commission, said fees will run about $3,810 at Stanford University, a boost of about 12.9 per cent. Living costs, including room and board, books, laundry and other essentials will be $5,630.

Occidental College is planning an increase of about 10 per cent and the University of Southern California is considering a hike of between 9 per cent and 13 per cent, he said.

Tuition at USC this year is $2,965 for a full-time undergraduate, and may be increased by between $260 and $320 next year. USC and Stanford both said they hope to increase student financial aid programs to ease the tuition problem for students.

Fees at the 19-campus California State University and Colleges will stay between $180 and $220, but officials at Cal State Northridge estimated that it will cost more for students to live off campus.

Total costs at the University of California will probably go up to $3,000 or more, officials there said, although tuition and fees should remain in the same $625 to $674 bracket.

Zoos feeling pressure of inflated costs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation has reached the nation's animal population and endangers the future of zoos in the United States, according to International Wildlife magazine.

As an example of skyrocketing costs, the magazine said:

—In 1968, the Indianapolis Zoo acquired three giraffes for $21,000, including shipping and insurance. In 1974 one giraffe cost $22,000.

—Ten years ago, top quality alfalfa cost the Cincinnati Zoo $36 a ton. Now it is $100 a ton —when available.

—Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago, which uses 100,000 pounds of horse meat a year, saw the price it pays double last year from 29 to 58 cents a pound.

—The plan to update the Franklin Park Zoo in Boston would cost $27 million, and more than $20 million is needed to build a new zoo in Toronto.

The magazine also said animals are in short supply. With wild reserves in Africa, Asia and Europe dwindling, zoos increasingly have been breeding their own animals. But, the magazine said, in most cases today's zoo is not the kind of breeding center needed to sustain healthy species.

The average pay scale for menagerie keepers responsible for animal care is $2,000 less per year than a common laborer on the New York City payroll, the magazine said.

60 must stand trial

Breathalyzer use upheld

The use of breathalyzer tests to determine if a person has been driving under the influence of alcohol has been upheld in West Valley Municipal Court.

In May the breathalyzer machine used to test the level of alcohol in a person's blood stream was questioned by attorneys representing more than 60 persons alleged to have been driving while intoxicated when private tests showed that voltage variations could change the test results. Judge Kenneth Ziebarth ruled last week that the breathalyzer still would be accepted as evidence despite the question of its accuracy.

Ziebarth said the attorneys attacked the machine in three areas. First they alleged that because of the lack of a voltage regulator or rheostat to control the amount of voltage going to machines used by the West Valley sheriff's office, the result of each test was unreliable.

Second, the attorneys claimed, the accumulation of possible errors due to such factors as reading errors by the usual operator, the "backlash" phenonmenon, the use of inaccurate simulator samples, the failure to obtain a deep lung air sample and the use of defective ampules could affect the accuracy of the readings.

Thirdly, they contended the failure of the sheriff's crime lab to retain the test ampules used in each of the cases constituted a violation of the due process of rights of each of the individuals.

Judge Ziebarth, after numerous hearings on the matter, responded in a memorandum conceding evidence showed that a variation in the voltage going into the breathalyzer machine, either upwards or downwards from the anticipated 120 volts, can affect the accuracy of the test results.

"However," Judge Ziebarth said, "the evidence also established that under normal operating conditions, there is not a sufficient variation in the voltage being supplied by the Southern California Edison Co. to the West End sheriff's substation to materially affect breathalyzer test results."

He also said the evidence presented did indicate that each of the "errors" mentioned by the attornevs could affect the accuracy of a given breathalyzer test result to some limited extenet. "However," he said, "the use of dual test system (testing the subject twice) substantially reduces the probability of error as to all of the mentioned factors other than the use of an inaccurate simulator sample."

He said that while there is always a probability of error in any scientific test, not every test must be excluded merely on that ground. He said "more than a mere possibility of error must be established."

The retention of test ampules, he said, was recently considered by the California Supreme Court in the rehearing of People vs. Hitch.

In that case the high court ruled that the intentional destruction by the various law enforcement officers involved in the administration of the breathalyzer tests "did not constitute a violation of the due process of rights of any of the defendants involved."

After denying the defense motions Ziebarth ordered the defendants to appear for pretrial conferences on Jan. 13, and for jury trial on Jan. 21.

S & L chief optimistic about '75

S. MARK TAPER, chairman and chief executive officer of American Savings and Loan Association, has expressed an optimistic outlook for the industry for 1975.

"Americans have never been so conscious of their thrift habits as at the beginning of this new year," Taper said.

"Interest rates on savings accounts are at historic high levels, and a new $1,000 minimum, 6-year term accounts paying 8.06 per cent when held and maintained for one year, is an historic high for insured savings.

"The variety of accounts now available also provides wonderful opportunities for most savings and investment programs."

Taper said that increased capital and surplus at American Savings have encouraged substantial savings accounts with American in the six-and seven-figure range.

Increased free service available to customers have further brightened the outlook for savings increases during the new year, Taper said.

"Traditionally in times of economic uncertainties, the American public turns to a savings account as the ideal depository for a rest-free investment, thus realizing strong earnings with the highest safety," said Taper.

"In this current period, with its many uncertainties surrounding our country's economy and possible increased unemployment, we expect that people will save more."

Having experienced a year of continued growth and progress in 1974, Taper said that American Savings' total assets were almost $4.5 billion at year's end.

Savings balances increased in 1974 by approximately $110 million.

"In 1975, as in the past, American Savings will continue to have funds available to meet the needs for mortgage financing by credit-worthy borrowers on well-located real estate," said Taper.

He is one of only 22 award recipients from among 30,000 company employes, according to M. Cabell Woodward Jr., president of ITT Continental.

The award is given annually to recognize efforts of individual employes to maintain high standards established for the operations of ITT companies, Woodward said.

Reporter's 43-year-old memo revealed

Hoover's problems contemporary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The President, facing a deepening economic depression, was bitter about the nation's bankers and Wall Street. He worried about a growing threat of war. But he was confident at least that the Democratic Congress would cooperate with the Republican President.

"There are enough public spirited men in Congress in both parties to support legislation for the national good and there always will be," he told a reporter. "I've not broken with them or they with me."

While it may sound like a list of the country's current problems, the President was Herbert C. Hoover, speaking nearly 43 years ago.

His views were outlined in a hitherto private memo prepared by Henry F. Misselwitz, a United Press reporter, for his bureau chief after a 45-minute conversation with Hoover at the White House on Feb. 29, 1932.

The memo was found recently in the Washington files of United Press International, successor to UP.

Hoover was highly optimistic, particularly about solving the Depression, not knowing he was headed toward overwhelming defeat by Franklin D. Roosevelt in his bid for a second term that November and that war would rock the world eight years later.

Underscoring the informality that existed at the White House at the time, Misselwitz wrote: "I went in and talked with the President this afternoon. We went over a lot of things, chiefly the Shanghai situation, the short selling problem, prohibition, the 'truce' breaking between him and the Democrats in the House, and his finance program generally."

The reporter was granted the meeting on condition that he not write a story, although he could use the substance of the President's remarks — without attribution—as background for later stories.

Misselwitz said he opened the conversation by remarking he had just been in New York in connection with Japan's invasion of Manchuria. He said Hoover replied he had been following the China situation closely, but he did not favor an economic boycott against Japan.

"That is the surest way into war," he quoted the President as saying. "You're making economic war on women and children in the first place, and that is unfair. Furthermore, a boycott would throw thousands in both countries out of work and undermine the business interests of many others...

"And feeling would be bound to rise. The first thing we knew, some Japanese would be beaten up here and some Americans there. Then we'd have to defend our nationals and our interests, and the war would be on."

Hoover said his answer would be to impose diplomatic sanctions against the Japanese "and tell them that none of their actions in Manchuria or elsewhere would be recognized."

"I'm waiting now to see if the League (of Nations) has the courage to do that," he said. "The machinery of peace is available."

The widespread panic and unemployment that followed the stock market collapse in 1929 and subsequent bank closings had not reached their peak at that time, and Hoover was confident the Depression could be kept in bounds.

"I congratulated him on the way he has whipped Congress into line and got through everything he's asked for so far," Misselwitz wrote. "He seemed jubilant over the way things are going and denied that 'this truce between me and the Democrats has been broken.'

"There never was any truce," the reporter quoted Hoover. "There are enough public spirited men in Congress in both parties to support legislation for the national good, and there always will be. I've not broken with them or they with me.

"Of course, in their own habitat you'll find certain individuals growling about things and playing politics—but the leaders get together on things of major importance, and they will again. There wasn't any truce."

HERBERT HOOVER

He was convinced that individual hoarding was making business worse, and was bitter about the bankers and "bear raiders" on the stock exchange.

"We're going after the bankers next," the President said. "They're the worst hoarders of all. They're all panic-stricken. We've got to combat that hysteria among the bankers and get them to let their money go to work.

"They are hoarding in the sense that they won't extend credit to merchants, farmers and others, no matter what the collateral...The people are putting money back into the banks; now we must educate the fear-stricken bankers to put it back to work."

Hoover said one reason he was pushing for a nationwide system of home loan banks was to "divorce banking more than ever from the stranglehold that New York has on it. I want to see that hold broken. It will be infinitely better to have the banks independent in various states and localities."

Hoover, according to the memo, completely underestimated the forces that were plunging the nation deeper and deeper into depression. Noting that individuals had put about $100 million back into circulation since the start of his antihoarding drive, the President said "the general effect of the finance legislation is beginning to be felt. It is restoring confidence..."

As for stocks, Misselwitz said the President was indignant with "bear raiders," who undermined confidence in the market by offering to sell stocks at a lower price at some future date.

"Every time we do something down here (in Washington), they wait three or four days, or a week, and then start raiding the market with short sales," Hoover said. "I've been after them for the last eight months to check these raids. They've promised to do it, but every time they've failed."

He said he thought the problem could be corrected by making public the names of the "bear raiders." Hoover said:

"The thing to do, as I see it, is to show them up and, as happened in the insurance investigations a few years ago, and get public opinion so aroused that the stock exchange men themselves will have to change their tactics."

While he said he would mark time temporarily, the President said he was determined on a showdown because he considered the practice a foremost cause of the Depression. And if his approach didn't work, he added, "maybe a law will be needed."

Misselwitz said Hoover also laughingly "took a couple of pokes at politicians on the Hill for playing politics," saying "they always have to have something to growl about."

Hoover cited a highways bill that had just passed the House and said, "they know that road bill will never pass the Senate. It wouldn't do much to help unemployment anyway."

The reporter also sought to find out what stand Hoover would take on repeal of Prohibition at the GOP national convention later that year.

"'I'm not going to tell you anything about that right now,' he shot back with a grin," Misselwitz recounted. "'The wets and dries feel strongly on both sides. But I'm not going to tell you anything further about it'."

Misselwitz concluded:

"That was about all. He was in excellent spirits, smoking and chatting until my '10 minutes' slipped into half an hour and 45 minutes. He was still talking when I thanked him and told him I'd keep in touch with him now that I was back (from New York).

"'Drop in anytime,' he said as I left.

"He looked better than I've seen him in months, despite the fact that he's working day and night since Congress convened."

Hoover's interviewer now California retiree

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry F. Misselwitz, the United Press reporter who wrote the Herbert Hoover memo, is retired and resides in San Carlos, Calif., south of San Francisco, after a 43-year career as journalist, author and movie scenario writer.

Misselwitz, 74, a native of Leavenworth, Kan., and graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, began as a reporter for the Kansas City Star and St. Louis Post-Dispatch before he joined an English-language newspaper in Tokyo. While there, he was a part-time correspondent for United Press in Japan.

He covered the Kuomintang revolution in China in 1927 for The New York Times, and returned to the United States in 1930 as United Press night cables editor in New York.

Misselwitz was UP White House correspondent during the Hoover administration, from 1931 until Franklin D. Roosevelt's inauguration in 1933. He returned to UP headquarters in New York, where he was foreign editor until he risgned in 1937.

He moved to California, where he wrote scenarios for MGM, was a radio news commentator and wrote five books before he retired in 1965.

Mystery of Japanese mini-sub still remains

NAVY RECOVERS MIDGET SUB IN 1960

By DANIEL F. GILMORE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thirty-three years later, a mystery still surrounds one of the five Japanese midget submarines that secretly entered Pearl Harbor during the Dec. 7, 1941, attack that thrust the United States into World War II.

The question: what happened to the two-man crew of Midget D, which was found June 13, 1960, by Navy student divers 76 feet below the surface of the entrance to Pearl Harbor?

"Her torpedoes were still in their tubes, her hatch was undogged and, although her hull was encrusted with coral, she appeared to be structurally sound and a determination was made to raise her," Lt. Cmdr. A. J. Stewart wrote in the December issue of U. S. Naval Institute Proceedings.

Stewart recounted the saga of the five battery-powered submarines, each 80 feet long and weighing 56 tons, that spearheaded the Japanese assault on Pearl Harbor.

Each midget sub was launched at sea from the deck of a mother submarine shortly after midnight, Dec. 6.

At one point, Stewart recounted:

"The crews of the special attack unit could watch the dancing neon signs along Waikiki Beach. Rows of landing lights at Hickam Air Base and John Rogers Airfield blazed like jewels. Haunting strains of jazz music drifted from shore radios and honky-tonks, but all were too excited and busy to notice.

"A malfunctioning gyrocompass in the midget carried by I-24 remained defective in spite of all efforts to fix it. The midget's young skipper, Ensign Sakamaki, was asked by I-24's commander if he still wanted to go.

"Determined to perform the mission for which all his military training had prepared him, he replied without hesitation, "Captain, I am going ahead. On to Pearl Harbor!"

Midget A, another sub apparently cruising on the surface, became the first casualty of the Pacific war an hour before the surprise Japanese air assault on Pearl Harbor. The USS Ward, an inshore patrol destroyer, sent her to the bottom with a shot from her 4-inch guns that pierced the sub's hull.

A little later, Midget B launched one of her two 18-inch torpedoes at the U.S. seaplane tender Curtis, missed and hit a pier at Pearl City. The destroyer Monaghan spotted the sub, rammed it with a glancing blow and finished it off with depth charges.

Midget B later was retrieved from the harbor bottom. The two bodies within were removed and buried with military honors, and the sub became fill material for a new pier at the Pearl Harbor submarine base.

Ensign Sakamaki's ill-fated boat, Midget C, hit reefs while trying to enter the harbor. Her batteries began leaking chemicals which almost suffocated the two crewmen.

After drifting all night on the surface with dead motors, Sakamaki and Petty Officer Inagaki lit the fuse to a self-destruct bomb and abandoned ship. Inagaki drowned. Sakamaki was washed ashore unconscious on Dec. 8 at Waimanalo Bay, 30 miles from Pearl Harbor, and became America's first prisoner of the war.

The self-destruct bomb was a dud, and Midget C washed ashore to become the key attraction in a coast-to-coast U. S. war bond drive. The sub ended up as an exhibit at the Key West, Fla., Lighthouse Museum.

Midget E is assumed to have been a victim of one of four U.S. destroyers that dropped depth charges after they reported being under attack by an enemy submarine. The wreckage of Midget E has never been found.

Stewart described the scene when Midget D was raised.

"There followed the first, dramatic entry into the submarine as Capt. H.A. Thompson pried open the conning tower hatch and climbed down into the submarine.

"In the dark, muddy interior, bent piping, a door twisted off its hinges, her large electric motor torn from its mountings and much battered glass gave mute evidence that Midget D had suffered great damage from depth charges.

"However, no trace of documents or crew was found. No bone fragments or teeth were found. Experts agree that even if human remains had disintegrated over the two decades, the victims' teeth would have resisted the water's corrosive effects.

"Second, a study of the small lengths of time fuse found, along with three detonators, indicated that inasmuch as sulfur was still present in the fuse, the scuttling charge had never been activated."

The two still-live torpedoes were cemented by corrosion into their tubes and could not be removed. So the bow section was unbolted and dumped with them into the sea.

At the request of Masayaki Harigai, Japanese consul general in Hawaii, Midget D was returned to Japan and is now on display at the Japanese Naval Academy at Eta Jima.

"But what of her crewmen?" Stewart asks.

"The conning tower hatch of Midget D was undogged, an action that had to be accomplished from inside the boat. Little doubt exists that her two-man crew left the submarine. Whether or not they survived remains a mystery.

"If they were in the craft during the depth charge explosions, which caused extensive internal damage, they probably suffered gross injury.

"If they escaped from their boat after it had settled to the bottom, it would have been possible for them to reach the surface.

'Windy Sooner' power generation by spring

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Oklahoma's famed —or infamous —wind will be harnessed to produce electricity if a project undertaken by eight University of Oklahoma students and two professors works.

The students hope to complete a windmill, dubbed the "Windy Sooner," by spring and begin running experiments to produce electricity.

Karl Bergey, professor of aerospace, mechanical and nuclear engineering, said "Windpower, and solar power in general, is a technology whose time has come."

"People often talk about the unpredictability of wind," he said. "The wind is blowing a useful amount in Oklahoma about 60 per cent of the time."

He added they hoped to show it was possible to build a low cost, practical windmill that can supply a typical home with electricity and heat.

"Our windmill is different from the Dutch mills and the ones used in Oklahoma for pumping water," Bergey said.

He said the students' windmill is a modern, two-blade design with an automatic control system which always will align the blades to get the optimum use of wind energy.

The windmill will be mounted atop a 25-foot pole and will have a diameter of 13.1 feet, half the size the students believe is needed for the average home, Bergey said.

Bergey said wind as an energy source may never provide more than 15 to 20 per cent of the nation's total energy needs, but, he said, "That is a good bit."

He said it is conceivable for homes to have a switching system which would allow them to use wind power to produce electricity when the wind is blowing, then to switch to a conventional electrical system when there is no wind.

It appears feasible, he said, for a country home to be equipped with a windmill to provide energy for electricity and heating, and cities could be connected to large windmill farms located on the countryside.

Energy

NEW CONCEPT — Braving 35 mph winds, Helena, Mont., engineer Jim Taylor checks electrical connections on an odd-looking windmill built by a Helena engineering firm. Mill is used in conjunction with a solar heating unit which warms water in a reservoir for home heating. When sun is not shining, electricity generated by windmill warms the water. During tests, windmill power lit up rotating beacons.

1974 survey indicates 85 million more repressed and 192 million are freer

The survey examined the level of political and civil freedom in 152 nations and 57 dependent territories.

It assessed freedom losses in Argentina, Cyprus, and Malaysia (they moved from "free" to "partly free") and in Bolivia, Ethiopia, and Guyana (from "partly free" to "not free"). Peru, it said, moved down the scale within the "partly free" group.

Improvement was limited for 192 million in six countries, it said, because only one —Greece —entered the free category. Other improving nations, Egypt, Ghana, Liberia, and Spain, went from not free to partly free. And Brazil gained in the partly free group.

Freedom House is a 33-year-old nopartisan national organization conducting programs aimed at strengthening free institutions.

The survey started this year an analysis of "major subordinate peoples," large minorities within autonomous nations that the survey director, Dr. Raymond D. Gastil, termed "the new colonialism." A table lists 34 nations with one million or more subordinate peoples and the study examines the level of political equality granted them.

On this scale, Gastil said, "the great imperial states of today are the USSR and India" and the Soviet Union "is much closer to classic colonialism" than India.

The USSR includes 37.5 million subordinate peoples, including Byelorussians, Estonians, Lithuanians, Tartars, and Ukrainians who, he asserted, have no meaningful autonomy within the structure of the Soviet Communist state and party.

The 338 million subordinate peoples in India, Gastil said, have "general political and civil rights so that what regional dissatisfaction exists is widely known, and the peoples are able through protest to achieve most of their objectives within the Indian state."

Area specialists voiced these opinions:

The United States —There is a crisis of public confidence, but the target is "deficiencies in leadership, not inadequacies in the institutions of American politics."

Africa —Radical political changes in South Africa and Ethiopia, and widespread drought in the Sahel, made 1974 the most critical year since 1948.

Asia —The greatest gains for freedom were recorded in South Korea and South Vietnam during "vigorous contention and the weakening of quasiauthoritarian governments." There was greater openness in Thailand and a "slipping backward" in India.

Latin America —New emphasis on economic development may further downgrade human rights, now fully operative only in Venezuela, Colombia, and Costa Rica.

Middle East —Overshadowing the struggle for Cyprus and concern for individual freedom is the threatened renewal of Arab-Israel hostilities.

Twenty-four per cent of the world population —925 million —suffer the most severe restrictions, the survey asserts, living under regimes that "assume the right to use violent force both to prevent anarchy and to keep themselves in power through suppression of political and civil rights."

In this category it listed Albania, Bulgaria, Burundi, Central African Republic, Peoples Republic of China, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Guinea, Iraq, North Korea, Libya, Mongolia, Uganda, North Vietnam and South Yemen.

About 424 million persons live in the 17 freest nations, which the survey lists as Australia, Austria, Barbados, Belgium, Canada, Costa Rica, Denmark, West Germany, Iceland, Malta, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom and the United States.

Looser Russian tourism

By GORDON F. JOSELOFF

MOSCOW (UPI) — To a first-time visitor to Moscow, the sign at the lobby desk of the Intourist hotel does not seem unusual:

"Dear guests —please leave your room key here."

Those who have been here before know it is a sign of change in the Soviet tourism industry, which is already gearing up for the influx of thousands of visitors for the 1980 summer Olympics.

Since Czarist times, the keeper of room keys in hotels has been the "dezhurnaya" — literally woman on duty. Seated at a desk on each floor of a hotel, the dezhurnaya is part policewoman, maiden aunt and tour director.

She dispenses not only room keys but wake-up calls, glasses of tea and endless advice. She also is keeper of her guests' morals. Attempts to sneak a member of the opposite sex into your room always bring a stern "nyet."

The 100 dezhurnayas at the Intourist hotel have recently been retired or transferred to other jobs. Some other hotels in Moscow will also soon do away with the women beneath the ever-present portraits of Lenim. They are going in other major cities, too.

"It's a step forward," explained a woman behind the administrator's desk at the Intourist hotel. "We will be just like hotels in the West.'

While modernizing the Soviet hotel industry may be the main objective, it is also known that the hotel personnel officials have had difficulty finding young women to take over the boring, low-paying ($133 a month) jobs from the grandmother-types.

It will take a lot more than elimination of the irksome (to foreigners) dezhurnaya system to bring the Soviet hotel industry up to Western standards. But the important thing is that efforts are at last being made.

The Soviets hope to construct more than 40 new hotels before 1980 to house the Olympic crowds. A preliminary agreement has been signed with the Inter-Continental Hotel Corp. to build three hotels in Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev. Executives of other Western chains are being wooed to make similar deals.

Apart from hotels, the Soviets are attempting to upgrade other tourist services.

Several hard-currency Moscow souvenir stores catering only to tourists and resident foreigners have been changed into self-service operations. Gone is the clumsy traditional Soviet system of choosing an item, going to a separate cash desk to pay for it and then returning to the first counter with the ticket to pick up your purchase.

The new Western-made cash registers at the self-service souvenir shop at the Ukraine Hotel are ringing up increased sales as a result of the changeover.

Tourists carrying supermarket-type baskets move briskly along the aisles choosing lacquered boxes, dolls, samovars and other traditional Russian souvenirs as well as Russia vodka, western beer, alcohol and cigarettes.

"It's much better and faster," said a young blonde salesgirl. "And the tourists are happier because its easier for them."

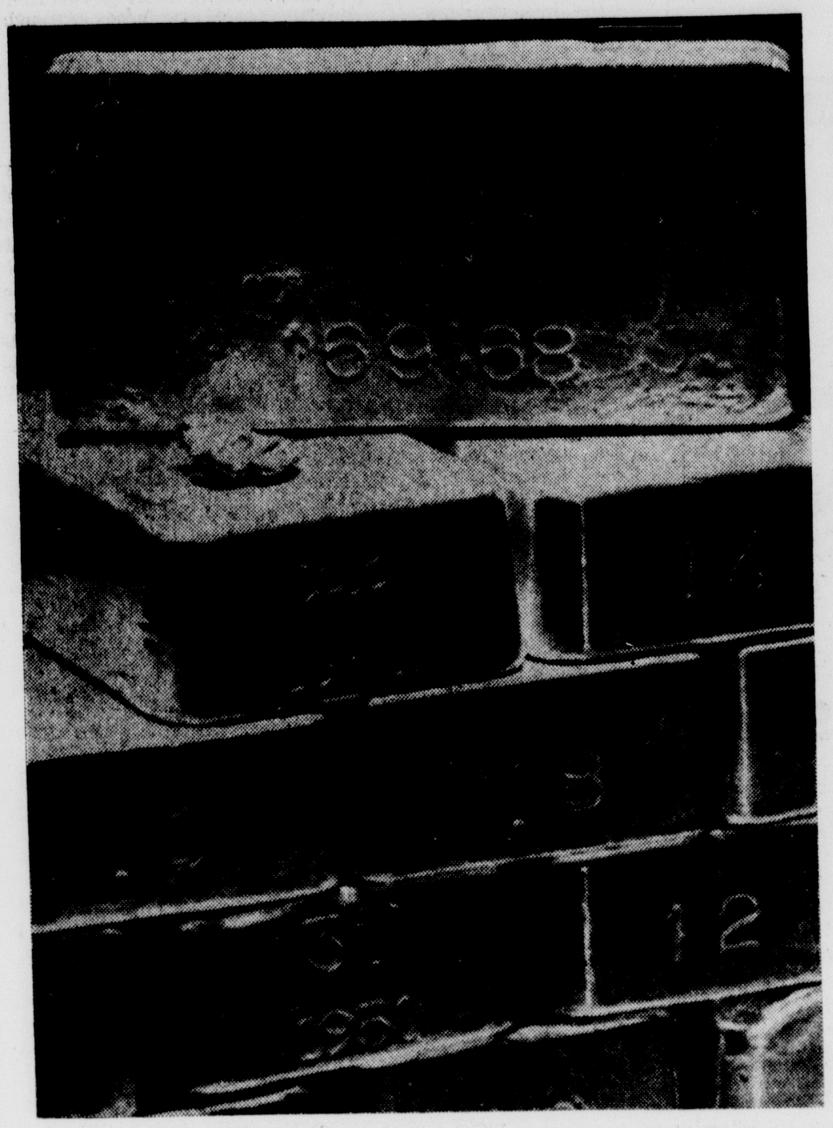
Valleyites immunized against gold fever



GLUT ON MARKET

Valleyites have demonstrated a ho-hum attitude toward freedom to buy gold since it became legal Wednesday.

By JON MORRIS
P-B Staff Writer

There has been no gold fever in the valley.

But then, valley banks, department stores and coin dealers are not exactly recommending its purchase.

The 41-year-old federal ban on gold ownership by private citizens ended this week, but in the local area, following the national trend, there has been no rush for gold.

A survey by the Progress-Bulletin has revealed that sales of gold have been almost non-existent in the valley. One banker, asked if he had sold any gold, said "Heavens, no."

The problems buyers run into, as illustrated in other cases around the country, is that gold pays no interest, is hard to store, and resales are awkward. One can only make a profit on gold if the price goes up, and experts say prices must rise 15 per cent a year.

Dick Farrand, manager of Crocker Bank at Holt and Garey avenues in Pomona, said he is not recommending that investors buy gold, but "we'll sell to a customer who knows what he's doing. No way will we sell to the little old lady investing her life savings."

Farrand said he's had 20 inquires about gold sales but no purchases.

"By the time you tack on the commissions it isn't worth it for the investor. Prices for a half-ounce gold bar is $109.93 and for an ounce, $209, he said.

There are some "religious fanatics" and others who fancy gold, Farrand said, but he does not expect many sales. "Where can you carry a bar of gold around?"

Valley bankers only place orders for investors, and claim they have no gold bars on hand. "You place the order with us, and we contact the supplier," said Mike Hiss, assistant vice president of Security Pacific Bank on Pomona Mall East.

Hiss said he not only has had no orders, but also no inquiries about gold.

"The public has not accepted gold as an investment as yet. Your average individual would have to come up with a large part of his savings to buy a small amount."

"It's not a normal investment, and the public is reacting accordingly."

Frank Carr, vice president-manager of United California Bank at Main and the Mall in Pomona, said it "surprises me" that the bank has not even had one inquiry about gold. "There has been no interest," he added.

"We're selling it to be competitive," Carr explained, "but personally I don't recommend buying gold. "I'm not buying it myself—it isn't productive enough."

Jim Carr, the owner of Pomona Coin, a downtown dealer at 333 S. Garey Ave., said he sold four gold bars—more than anyone elsewhere.

He added "We're not selling many bars, but we are selling more gold coins." In fact, he is selling lots of coins—but with the exception of one, a South African coin, all his coins were legally sold before this week when the new rush began.

Buyers who have opted for gold bars have been prominent, professional, and mostly wealthy citizens, the coin dealer said.

"It hasn't exactly been a gold rush here," he declared. "There is more of a curiosity thing, rather than a demand for gold."

But Carr adds he does not sell many bars because he believes coins are a better investment. "I deter people from the bars."

Robert Liedler, manager of Buffums Department Store on Pomona Mall, said his store is not selling gold now, but could be in the future.

"I don't anticipate being involved, but I also can't second-guess what they might do downtown," Liedler said.

Liedler said his jewelry department, where the gold would be sold, generally deals in tangibles. "We like to sell things you can have and hold and love."

2 water reservoirs to alleviate storage shortage

The City of Upland plans to begin construction of two new water reservoirs before April to keep pace with its growing population.

But the size of these concrete ponds won't be determined until bids are received. These will depend on the bid prices since construction will be financed by a $2.5 million bond issue.

Reservoirs will be located in a wash area north of 17th Street and west of Benson Avenue and on city property at 24th Street and Mountain Avenue.

"We are designing each site for different size reservoirs," said Harry Rohrbach, the city's director of water utilities.

"At 17th and Benson, alternate capacities are 5 million and 7.5 million. And at 24th and Mountain, the sizes are 7.5 million and 10 million," he added.

Included in the $2.5 million bond issue are funds for pump stations and pipes.

Both new reservoirs are expected to satisfy the city's storage needs for eight to 10 years, depending on the city's growth.

At present, Upland has six storage reservoirs with an 18 million gallon capacity. "And we do get down to where we don't have an adequate storage reserve during the hot, summer months," Rohrbach said.

The city's present population is estimated at 37,500.

City officials will appear Thursday before the San Bernardino County Planning Commission to seek a location and development plan at the 17th Street and Benson Avenue site. The area is outside city limits.

Provided approval is given, the city will issue a call for bids this month, City Manager Lee Travers said. Then hopefully, actual construction could begin by April. Both reservoirs are expected to be ready for use by mid 1976.

One reservoir will be constructed above ground and the second below ground, Travers said.

Ski class Tuesday at library

A cross country skiing program will be held Tuesday at the Pomona Public Library.

The free program, which begins at 7:30 p.m., will feature Jim Stowell of West Covina's Alphine County. His talk will be aimed at the beginning skier, but will also be of interest to the more experienced skier.

He will demonstrate various types of equipment and discuss the differences between cross country skiing and traditional downhill skiing.

Cross country skiing, he said, is more economical than downhill skiing and allows the beginning skier to progress at his own pace.

Children's events at the library this week will include guitar lessons on Monday at 4 p.m. The instructor will be Fran Dailey.

On Tuesday a preschool variety and crafts session will be held at 2 p.m. At 4 p.m. "Witches Brew" will be held, featuring stories for elementary school aged children.

Valley alcoholism center now open to public

Care and treatment for alcoholism now is being offered at Pomona Psychiatric Hospital, 566 N. Gordon St., according to Administrator William Loyer.

It was initiated in November after the hospital had been awarded a contract from the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services to care for and treat alcoholics in the San Gabriel Valley.

If a person receiving treatment is indigent the county pays for the care. For some, cost is determined by ability to pay.

The new program is supervised by Dr. Vernon Bohr, hospital medical director.

The private, 79-bed hospital also offers extensive acute psychiatric care for young adults in its Adolescent Growth Center and specialized care for adults suffering from emotional disorders or requiring treatment for drug related problems.

CHINO FIRE STATION EXTENSION

Electrical workers put the finishing touches on the new Chino Fire Station extension at Central Avenue and Chino Avenue. The motor bay was extended 30 feet to make room for a new $20,000 "telesquirt" engine ordered by the Chino Fire Department, due in July. A new business office and a new chief's office were added to the building along with the bay extension at a cost of approximately $56,000.

Largest coal mine development

Huge electric power plant planned

Kaiser Industries Corp., Oakland, and subsidiaries of three major electric utilities, have signed a memorandum of intent to jointly develop a 10-million-ton per year, underground coal mining facility in Southern Utah.

The facility will fuel the 3,000-megawatt Kaiparowits Power Project which will supply electricity to the southwestern United States including the southland.

"The signing of this memorandum signals a major step toward the development of Southern Utah's coal reserves which will contribute significantly to the national goal of self-sufficiency in energy," said William R. Gould, executive vice president of the Southern California Edison Co.

The Edison Co. is manager of the Kaiparowits Power Project which is owned jointly by Edison, the Arizona Public Service Co., San Diego Gas & Electric Co. and the Salt River Project.

Development of underground coal mining is contingent upon federal approval and availability of financing.

Development of the mining complex is expected to cost $300 million. The complex eventually will employ 2,400 people, according to estimates.

"Coal used to fuel the generating station will be the equivalent of 33 million barrels of oil annually," said William R. Roesch, president and chief executive officer of Kaiser Industries Corp.

"This project would be one of the largest underground coal mining facilities in the free world."

Initial facilities would consist of four underground mines, a coal preparation plant with related facilities and conveyors to move coal to the power plant.

Employes would be recruited in Utah and the Western states and trained at a facility to be built at the site.

Exploration indicates the existence of enough low-sulfur coal to fuel the Kaiparowits plant for its planned 35-year life.

If approved, construction could begin in 1975, with the first of four units beginning operation in 1980.

Council airs police brutality charges

A report by Mayor Ray Lepire and other Pomona City Councilmen concerning alleged brutality and racial discrimination by the Pomona Police Department will top a long agenda for Monday's regular meeting of the council.

At the last council meeting three weeks ago, a group called the Minority Coalition for Equal Justice confronted the council with a variety of charges against police and called for an outside investigation of the department.

Since that time Lepire and several other council members investigated complaints and will report findings at Monday's meeting.

Other agenda items for the 8 p.m. meeting include two ordinances dealing with housing in the city.

The council will give first reading consideration to an ordinance that would require issuance of a certificate of occupancy on all housing units at the time of sale, unless waived by the buyer. Issurance of the certificate would require a city inspection of the property to insure that the structure meets minimal building, health and safety codes.

The other ordinance to be considered would allow the city to notify the state's Franchise Tax Board of structures that have been declared substandard, The owner of the structure would then lose his right to claim a tax reduction for the building until it is would require a city inspectin of the brought up to city code.

The council also will receive a report concerning more than 100 public service jobs being offered by the city under federal funding. The jobs, offered only to Pomona residents, fall into a broad variety of work fields.

California Highway Patrol official

Cites 55 mph limit for slashing death, injuries

The reduced speed limit imposed last year was done primarily to conserve gasoline.

But based on California Highway Patrol area statistics, the 55 mile-per-hour limit was also instrumental in reducing the number of traffic accidents.

"We can't say just how much effect the slower speed limit had on reducing traffic accidents, but we do know when you reduce vehicle speeds you reduce the severity of of the collisions," said Capt. W. C. Jones, area commander.

During 1974, officers investigated 1,256 traffic collisions—273 fewer than the previous year. The number of persons killed dropped by only one—26 compared to 27.

But with the traffic accident decline came increase in traffic citations issued. Officers issued 45,075 tickets last year, up 8,000 from the 37,059 citations given the previous year.

The number of drunk driving arrests for the two year period dropped from 1,631 in 1973 to 1,311 in 1974, he noted.

The 26 persons killed last year were involved in 22 traffic accidents. This compares to the 27 persons killed in 27 accidents in 1973.

The biggest drop, however, is noted in the number of persons injured.

In 1973, 804 persons were injured in 501 collisions. Last year, there were 659 hurt in 399 accidents.

And non-injury accidents, frequently referred to as "fender benders," dropped from 1,002 in 1973 to 835 in 1974.

Last year marked the second annual decline in traffic accidents, noted Jones. For the 1972-73 comparison periods, the total number of accidents dropped from 1,827 to 1,529. And the number of persons killed was reduced from 30 to 27.

Jones had attributed that decline to a program where field officers become more involved in selecting enforcement areas as a means of reducing accidents.

"We would rather have officers in areas where more traffic accidents are occurring than writing citations."

Another contributing factor to fewer injury accidents last year may have been the inter-lock seat belt systems where alarm buzzes unless the seat belts are fastened.

"If we could get a great number of people to wear their seatbelts, then there would be a large reduction in traffic fatalities," he added.

Regarding the 55 mph limit, Jones said there is sometimes a difference in what people prefer and what they do.

Various opinion polls show that a majority of people questioned support the lower speed limit, he said. "Then when you get out on the highway, you find a majority of the motorists fail to comply with the speed limit."

But Jones notes the new maximum speed has had an effect on the overall speeds, "A motorist who now drives at 70 miles an hour sticks out like a sore thumb. This wasn't so when the speed limit was 65 miles an hour."

Vote for Manning for Mt. Sac board

Recently we called attention to the special election on Tuesday to fill a vacancy on the governing board of Mt. San Antonio College.

We also suggested that voters should vote for the candidate who had the most to contribute by his volunteer service on the junior college district board.

Of the 11 persons seeking the post, we believe that by background and experience that the best contribution to the board can be made by Travis L. (Tag) Manning, 54, of Hacienda Heights.

If elected on Tuesday, Mr. Manning would become an effective member of the board immediately. For four years he was a member of the La Puente Hacienda Heights School District board of education and for one year was president of the board. None of the other candidates have had school board experience.

Mr. Manning's candidacy for the junior college board of trustees is motivated by a desire to help Mt. San Antonio College maintain its high standards of excellence. He has no quarrel with the current board members, no axes to grind, no reform causes to espouse, no commitments to special interest groups.

Mr. Manning would be an asset to the board because of his experience as a successful general contractor, and his knowledge of school finance gained through previous school board service.

Because he has a track record of known commitment and dedication to the community where he has been a resident for more than 40 years, we recommend that voters in the Mt. San Antonio College District vote for Travis Manning on Tuesday.

Sovereign state of...

Magnificent as California is, there have for a long time been sporadic efforts — or at least talk — by various areas to secede. The Tehachapi split into North and South California has been the most significant. About 30 years ago some of the state's most northern counties considered a breakaway, along with an Oregon county.

Neither ever got very far. But the proposition revives every now and then. Take Mendocino County, for instance.

According to the San Francisco Chronicle a Council to Establish the New and Sovereign State of Mendocino is mounting a long range campaign for secession — a break that would, in the words of the Council's chairman, novelist Robin White, free Mendocino citizens from "high taxes, city-caused inflation and lack of representation from King Sacramento."

"King Sacramento" sets the tone of the current secession movement. Its Declaration of Independence from the State of California reads in part, according to the Chronicle:

"When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to separate themselves from another, it is incumbent upon them to state the causes . . ." Some of the causes:

Inflation caused by "big city interests" which, for one example sees Mendocino logs produced, "for low wages" shipped elsewhere and coming back "in the form of furniture we can't afford."

A "ridiculous" gasoline tax which pays for urban transit systems which "we country boys and girls don't need."

And so on. The core protest of the Mendocino uprising, however is "the top-heavy bureaucracy in Sacramento that eats away our tax money and initiative no matter who is in power."

It's a proposition that will elicit sympathy from many a Californian who never even thought about seceding.

Lib long ago

Emancipation of women, the opening up for them of equal opportunities with men, is very big today. But not entirely new.

A half century ago the country saw its first two women governors inaugurated.

On Jan. 5, 1925 Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross was sworn in as the chief executive of Wyoming. A few days later Mrs. Miriam Ferguson took the oath of office in Texas.

Considering the number of women who have since achieved high office in state and national government, the public plight of the distaff side hasn't been all bad.

That there is room for improvement in the availability of outlet for unquestioned talents is obvious. A nagging question however, is: will the strident efforts of the far out libbers really help achieve that improvement, or prove counter-productive in the long run?

A deal that Buckley can't refuse?

WASHINGTON — We find ourselves unhappy objects of the displeasure of William F. Buckley. For many years, we have coexisted on editorial pages—he the witty propounder of epigrams and ponderer of grand themes, we the truculent burrowers into the pigstys of the Republic.

This is not to say that colleague Buckley shuns the newsman's chore of grappling with public abuses. Recently, he did a definitive expose of the indifference displayed by the stewardesses and luggagemen of Spain's Iberia Air Line, raising a standard to which long abused jetsetters the world over rallied.

And before that, he inveighed forcefully against the purging of Latin and Greek from the American Catholic liturgy, and against the playing at Sunday Mass of the vulgar guitar. But, while he has thus paid his dues, the expose is not his preferred metier.

Except when it comes to us. Searching for the reason, we find that Buckley has materialized in our lives only when we have chanced to blackguard some particular hero of his — Sen. Joe McCarthy, Roy Cohn, Sen. Tom Dodd, E. Howard Hunt.

When such worthies are under attack, our nemesis dons his Sherlock Holmes cap and springs into action as sleuth for the defense. His investigative technique is unique. He does not call the writers of the story he is debunking to assess their proof. He does not call upon the witnesses for their testimony, or to test their bona fides.

He cuts through such preliminaries by phoning the targets of the story he is debunking and asking them straight out if they are guilty. They say no. Buckley then condemns the story as false, produces the denials as though truths etched in stone and looses a homily or two about the corrosive danger of falsehood. Case closed.

We last took note of this eccentric routine when Buckley's client was the late Tom Dodd. One of the lesser charges against the censured senator was that he promoted petty gifts from companies doing business with the government.

Ignoring the larger charges, Buckley pounced upon this one and quickly laid it to rest by interviewing spokesmen in Dodd's office and officers of some of the offending companies. All promptly denied any impropriety, whereupon Buckley branded the charges as the fabrications of a sex ring that had infiltrated itself into the senator's office.

Had Buckley called us, we could have acquainted him not only with eyewitnesses to the favor taking, but with receipts and ledgers to back them up. But being so surely in possession of truth, he had no need of facts.

Among the victims thus befriended by Buckley is an occasional military junta and here we come to the cause of our present perturbation.

Recently, we published two reports on the abuse and torture of American citizens by henchmen of the Chilean junta. We reported first that the American consul in Santiago, Fred Purdy, had taken a do-nothing attitude toward the abduction and even the murder of our nationals, rather than muddy relations with the new junta.

Second, we presented a graphic account of the ordeal suffered by one torture victim, Amy Conger, a 31-year-old teacher from Chicago.

Enter Buckley, nose sniffing, eyes flashing, teeth sharp and gleaming. In rapid fire, he solicited denials from our targets. Both solemnly obliged. Consul Purdy said he had heard nothing about torture from Conger.

Functionaries of the junta clinched the matter. They did not torture her. Besides, Amy Conger was a spy who "moved from residence to residence, apparently for the purpose of providing safe houses for young militant Ministas."

Another case closed, except for Buckley's parting homily: "Those who give currency to accounts of tortures of this kind are friends not of the tortured but of the torturers."

We were left to ponder this by a Buckley who courted the friendship and accepted the word of the accused torturers, without bothering to check the other side. He did not call or visit Amy Conger to hear her story before branding this naive, retiring, frightened young woman as a likely international spy. He did not call us or seek access to the range of informants from whom we built these accounts.

Instead, he accepted the charges of the Chilean jailers based on a "confession" extorted from this American girl after 13 days in their hands.

Buckley was impressed with the Chilean ambassador's invitation to "independent corroboration" of the junta's version of the torture story. We had an experience with the Chilean embassy we would like to have passed on to him.

We called the embassy early in our investigation (as we had called the State Department and as we have called Buckley). A Chilean delegation came to our office flaunting folders full of papers. Here was the proof, they said. They would be delighted to give us an English summary.

That's all right, we said, just leave the papers and we'll get our own translation. They flatly refused; so much for "inviting independent corroboration."

Well, we don't like to continue at odds with so elegant an ornament to our profession as William F. Buckley and we admit to some small fault in the feud. Our column has twitted Buckley once or twice.

But in the interests of amity within the profession, we hereby offer him a deal. We'll try to be less prickly if he'll promise to call us next time before questioning our facts.

TAX-PAID-ROMANCE: The chief counsel of the General Services Administration has spent thousands of dollars of the taxpayer's money on a whirlwind romance with another man's wife.

The government Lochinvar is Harold "Ted Trimmer, who flew with a beautiful associate on romantic escapades and charged the expenses to the taxpayers as official business. He was then associate administrator, the No. 3 man in the government's vast housekeeping agency.

So taken was Trimmer with a lovely young trainee, Joan Riordan, that he promoted her in 1971 to her present job as national coordinator of the GSA's information centers in 37 cities.

Not long thereafter, they embarked upon trips to several of the 37 cities, including Atlanta, Boston, Chicago and New York City, where they bedded down in luxurious hotels.

Their frequent official trips finally roused the suspicion of the lady's husband, Lee Riordan, who followed them to New York City. He drove all night and surprised them in a double bed at the Statler-Hilton.

Then he sued his wife for divorce and Trimmer for alienation of affections. Confronted with the evidence, Trimmer confessed in a sealed deposition to his indiscretions. He settled out of court for $6,500.

"There has to be some light at the other end!"

Just in jest

There is nothing more amazing than government in action!

Our political leaders threaten that if business firms continue to raise prices on their products and services they will be faced with government price controls. In the next breath Congress hikes the penalty for late income tax payments from 6 per cent to 9 per cent.

We spend millions to set up an Environmental Protection Agency which rules that the lead in leaded gasoline should be reduced. Then along comes a Federal Appeals Court and sets aside that ruling.

A law is passed that in Southern California counties cars of a certain age must be equipped with smog devices. But the California Highway Patrol announces that no citations will be issued requiring the owners of cars not so equipped to pay the prescribed fine.

One group of government experts announces that we will have gasoline rationing, we will have wage and price regulations, we will have a depression. Another group is equally insistent that we won't.

Government economists warn that serious efforts must be made to keep welfare costs from getting entirely out of hand. At the same time a court rules that aliens don't have to prove they are in this country legally in order to get welfare.

Even though they receive what to most ordinary mortals would seem to be a fabulous remuneration, some members of the Los Angeles City Council expressed dismay because they weren't given free tickets to the Rose Parade.

The Supreme Court rules the Jaycees were well within their rights in refusing to grant women membership in that all-male organization. But the Senate passes a bill granting girls the right to play Little League Baseball right along with the boys.

The Surgeon General of the United States declares emphatically that tobacco is injurious to health. But the government continues to subsidize the tobacco industry.

To say the least, it's all very frightening to a lot of tax payers who are footing the bills for all this confusion. No wonder Dial-a-Prayer is now receiving twice as many calls as it did a year ago.

The passing of the hourglass

The outgoing Old Year 1974 was looking just like he is supposed to, with his long flowing white beard and long white robes, carrying a scythe in one hand and an hourglass in the other. But he appeared to be just about exhausted as he slumped down wearily on a rock, having spotted the grinning, ribbon-and diaper-clad Baby 1975 approaching in the distance.

"Hurry up, kid!" Old 1974 shouted. "You wouldn't want to be late for your own year, now. Besides, I can't hold out much longer."

"What's the matter, old-timer," said Baby 1975 as he sauntered up, "Couldn't you take it?"

"That's it — laugh," Old 1974 wheezed. "You'll be laughing out of the other side of your mouth in a couple of weeks. Haven't you ever wondered why we years go so fast?"

"Nah, Pops," 1975 said. "I went through all the indoctrination classes: dos and don'ts, traditions and of course the old anthem. Would you like me to sing a few bars? 'You must remember this, a kiss is still a kiss, a sigh . . .' "

"No, no, never mind. Just tell me what they said about my, that is, what they said about 1974. How did I do?"

"Well, I'll be honest, Pops. You didn't rank up there with the great ones like 129 B.C. or 0 or 846 or 1776 or even 1928. (They still talk about how old 1928 didn't want to hand over the hourglass to 1929, you know.) But then you weren't as bad as 2,000,000 B.C. or 6 or 1648 or 1938, either."

"I did my best, kid. Sure, I had my energy crisis and my worldwide leadership crisis and my Mideast crisis and my economic crisis. But you have to remember, I had 'Rhoda' and 'More Joy of Sex.' And I kept all the days and months right in order. No Mondays the day after Thursdays, July coming right in there after June. I did my best."

"Well, old man, let's get on with it. I've got a lot of plans for this year, you know. Thought maybe I'd start out slow with a small war or two and maybe a minor plague then really get into the interesting stuff later on."

Old 1974 stroked his beard, then said, "Look, kid. This time last year, I didn't even want the darned hourglass. Poor old 1973 was desperate to get rid of it and had to chase me around until he got me to take it. I figured it would be too much responsibility. I mean, I wouldn't mind a week or a month. But a whole year!

"Anyway, I found out that this job is overrated. The fact is, you don't have that much influence on what happens. You just take the rap. You know, people will say, 'Gee, that 1947 was a pretty good year,' or 'Boy, 1932 was a rotten year,' or 'I hope next year will be a good year.' They never realize that they really control what happens, while we just sit up here and turn the pages."

"We'll see, Pop. We'll see. Anyway, it's about time for me to take the hourglass, isn't it? Auld Lang Syne and all that. What does 'Auld Lang Syne' mean, anyway?"

"I think it means, 'You're It,' kid. But you'll get used to the job.

"Have a good year."

Heartline: I am divorced and my ex-husband is dead. I have two children who are entitled to benefits, but I can't find his Social Security number. How can I go about getting his number? —T.B.

Answer: If you have his date of birth and can get a copy of his death certificate, your local Social Security office can help you to get his number.

Heartline: Will Medicare pay for meals delivered to my home? —P.F.

Answer: No, meals delivered to your home are not covered under Medicare.

SPECIAL NOTE:

Congress enacted legislation to restructure the railroad retirement system effective January 1, 1975. The legislation was based on recommendations negotiated by a joint committee of railroad management and labor representatives. That committee was formed at the direction of Congress mainly for the purpose of recommending a plan that would put the railroad retirement system on a sound financial basis.

In addition, the new law is intended to remove a number of inconsistencies from the previous law, preserve the existing equities of career railroad employees, and make certain improvements in the areas in which changes were needed most. To this end, the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 represents a completely restructured system and introduces a two-tier type benefit along the lines recommended by a Presidential Commission on Railroad Retirement.

Subsequent questions and answers in Heartline will illustrate the major changes made in the railroad retirement system.

Heartline: What is meant by a "two-tier railroad retirement system"? —D.R.

Answer: The regular annuity consists of two components. The first tier of a railroad retirement annuity is an amount calculated in roughly the same way so Social Security benefits are determined and based on the employee's work both inside and outside the railroad industry. The second tier is a staff type benefit based solely upon the employee's work in the railroad industry. These two tiers are separate from a supplemental annuity and the so-called "windfall" component described in future questions.

Heartline: I am retired. All my work was in the railroad industry. How does this new law affect my railroad retirement annuity? —B.L.

Answer: You are guaranteed that you will continue receiving at least as much in benefits under the new benefit structure as you previously received.

Teaching profession dropout rate's high

Three out of five teachers quit that line of work within five years after they go into it. In other words, their dropout rate is far greater than the dropout rate of their students. Curious, isn't it? Just about the first thing that pops into the minds of students on the opening day of school is whether they like their teachers. Do you suppose the first thing that pops into the minds of teachers is whether they like their students? No, certainly not. That remarkably high dropout rate among teachers must be due to pregnancy, alcoholism, anxiety neurosis or other evils indigenous to the system.

PLANTS

Q. "Where do chrysanthemums rank now on that list of most popular flowering plants in this country?"

A. No. 3. Right behind No. 1, African violets. And No. 2. geraniums.

THAT OUTFIT known as the Research Institute of America reports that at least three out of every four men really like their jobs. Aha, so we're in the majority. Excellent.

IF PROPERLY cooked, the tail of a beaver tastes a little like pork. That's what I said. Question arises now as to what's meant by properly cooked. Trappers of old chopped off said tail, stuck a stick into it, and broiled it over hot coals until the hide came loose. The white firm meat left on the stick then was broiled, roasted or baked until tender with beans.

DRESSES

You know those fancy dresses made of knitted, synthetic, non-bonded material? Only about one out of five women who own any of same realize she can both wash and dry those costumes in her machines. Most possessors still send them out to be drycleaned, though that's not necessary.

ANN LANDERS

83-year-old grandmother shouldn't be drafted for babysitting chores

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is a four-generation problem. I hope you are up to it.

My dear mother is 83 years old. She is still alert mentally but let's face it, she should not be expected to chase after four active kids, ranging in age from 3 to 11. Grandma had surgery four years ago and is not very steady on her feet.

I have explained all this to my daughter-in-law, but it goes in one ear and out the other. She still puts pressure on Grandma to come over and take care of the children when she must work odd hours on her part-time job.

In addition to her own four kids there's another 3-year-old over there whose mother pays my daughter-in-law to keep him from 8 till 5. I'm sure this child's mother doesn't know her youngster is often being cared for by an 83-year-old lady. Your opinion is wanted.—Slow Boil

Dear Boil: I think your son should step in (not you) and tell his wife she is taking advantage of the dear old doll.

In the meantime, I've said it before, but I'll say it again. It takes two to create a situation such as this one—an inconsideriate dame who would exploit an older person and a nebbish who would allow herself to be used so badly.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our new little daughter-in-law is precious. She and our son are living with us until they can find a suitable apartment. My husband and I enjoy them very much and they seem to enjoy us.

The problem is that I have a strong desire to correct her on several breaches of etiquette. The thing that bothers me most is the way she uses butter. Instead of putting some on her own plate, she takes the master butter knife and smears an entire ear of corn (or a large piece of French bread) straight from the butter dish intended for all.

Not only is this most unappetizing to watch, but it takes a long time because she puts butter on almost everything — peas, carrots, green beans, rolls — even steak.

How can I correct her gently, so as not to hurt her feelings?—Concerned M.I.L.

Dear M.: No way. Tell your son and let him correct her "gently." No matter how "precious" she is, any attempt to improve your daughter-in-law's table manners will put a crimp in your relationship—if not outwardly, inwardly. It's not worth it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know how you feel about people who don't write thank-you notes and I am in full agreement, but please say something about not jumping to conclusions until the "guilty" person has had an opportunity to speak in his or her own behalf.

For example, at the funeral of a neighbor I noticed an especially beautiful funeral wreath. I asked who had sent it. The sister of the deceased said sadly, "We don't know. There was no card. Two calls to the florist proved fruitless."

Last month my sister was a patient in a well-known hospital. She received a lovely plant. It was not intended for her but for a woman whose last name was the same as hers. She wouldn't have known it had she not found the card in the hall, on the floor.

When our daughter was married we received two gifts with no cards. The sender of one was identified by the store. The other was never identified because it was brought to the church. So please, Ann, ask people to telephone and ask if their gift was received if they don't get an acknowledgment after a reasonable period of time.—Houston

Dear H.: I have suggested it on several occasions, but once more won't hurt. Thank you for suggesting it.

Putting bite on suspected burglars

I ran across an interesting statistic the other day. Due to the increase in crime, more people are getting dogs for protection and dog bites have soared 33 per cent since 1965.

Unfortunately, the dogs have been biting their owners, families, and friends. Few dogs seem to want to "get involved" where there is violence.

A couple of years ago we lived on a remote farm, and my husband bought me an Irish setter. She should have been owned by an attorney. She'd take on a moving car at 55 mph, a group of children jumping rope or a jogger having a coronary in front of the house. But when anyone suspicious came to the door, she'd run under the sofa and I'd have to drag her out, prop her up and push her lip back over her teeth all the while explaing, "Make one move toward me and she'll tear you apart."

Her name was Kate and she was as much protection as Cannon pursuing on foot. Late one afternoon, two guys appeared at my kitchen door requesting a drink of water. They said they were with the phone company, but they had no truck and no utility belt sagging down to their knees.

"Steady girl," I said propping Kate up on her feet and hanging onto her collar. The men began to snicker.

"I suppose she looks friendly to you," I said as Kate licked their fingers and the breeze from her tail nearly knocked them off the step.

"She sure seems friendly," they said.

"Actually she's been to obedience school and when I command K-I-L-L' she goes for the throat. If you will stand perfectly still and don't make any sudden moves, I'll get your water."

When I returned Kate was on her back all four legs up in the air and her eyes closed drowsily as the rubbed her stomach.

"Look's like she's yawning to me," said one of the men.

"I thought it would look that way to you," I smiled. "It fools a lot of people. Just look at the size of those paws."

He fingered one and when he dropped it, it fell limply back into place. "Well, we certainly thank you for the water. Bye Killer," they said while the dog nuzzled against their legs.

"The dog?" asked his friend.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Ant-grasshopper story updated

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The late Will Rogers, sage of the Great Depression, used to say America was the only country in the world where people drove to the poor house in their own automobiles.

To which he now might add, "by way of Florida."

The prospect of hard times ahead has created a big recessionary upswing in winter tourist travel to Florida. Officials report unexpectedly large crowds of Northern visitors are flocking to the state with the attitude that they had better get a vacation in the sun while they can still afford it.

"A lot of people are either out of work or think they will be pretty soon, so they came down for some last-ditch enjoyment they hadn't really planned on," one resort motel owner explained.

Bravo! That is the sort of prudent financial planning that has made this country great.

I was so inspired by the foresightedness of the Florida vacationers, I sat down and wrote a little fable about them:

The Grasshopper and the Ant

Once upon a time a grasshopper, leaning idly on a lamp post on East Street and playing spritely tunes on his fiddle, espied an ant trudging by.

"Where you headed, ant," inquired the grasshopper, noting that the ant was loaded down with golf clubs, tennis rackets and Scuba diving equipment.

"Fort Lauderdale," replied the ant. "I'm subleasing a condominium just a block off the beach."

"How come? I thought you were the summer picnic type."

"Haven't you heard?" said the ant, solemnly shaking his head. "Hard times are coming. By summer we may be in the middle of a depression that will curl your hair. Then who could afford two weeks in the Catskills? Better get your vacation while the getting's good."

"What depression" scoffed the grasshopper, striking a few mocking notes with his bow. "Shucks, man, this is just one of those little recessions we get into every seven years. Things are bound to pick up again in the second half of the year."

So saying, the foolish grasshopper skipped off merrily down the street to call his broker.

While winter snows piled high in the North, the ant was blowing his savings on the third race at Hialeah. With the coming of spring, breadlines appeared.

Instead of taking a spring vacation, as planned, the grasshopper was reduced to selling apples on a street corner.

The ant, returning North, was equally destitute. But at least he had a nice tan.

Texas Panhandle source of Power

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) — Five months of research has concluded what any native of the Texas Panhandle could tell scientists —it is the windiest area in the United States.

Two physicists, Dr. Vaughn Nelson of West Texas State University and Dr. Earl Gilmore of Amarillo College, say those Texas breezes should be harnessed to help the nation meet some of its electricity generating needs.

"The potential electrical output from the wind in Texas is estimated to average 250,000 megawatts, or about 8 per cent of the nation's anticipated demand for electrical power," Nelson said.

"This is important because fossil fuels are finite and polluting and we will have to find alternate energy sources to meet the growing needs of the future," Gilmore said.

Aware of the energy potential of wind, the National Science Foundation is leading a government effort to develop huge windmill generators and storage systems that could produce electricity at a price competitive with current oil, coal and nuclear fueled power plants.

Nelson and Gilmore used data from 15 Texas weather stations and seven surrounding ones to conclude that "the Texas Panhandle has the highest wind energy potential in the United States."

Gilmore said there is a large region in the panhandle where a windmill generator could be operating with 20 mile an hour winds 40 per cent of the time. In some areas, such generators could be producing power 50 per cent of the time.

The wind energy study, financed by a $14,000 grant from the governor's advisory council on energy in Texas, was based mainly on data taken from 23 feet above ground.

The energy potential was estimated for heights of 100 and 300 feet since wind velocity increases with altitude. Nelson and Gilmore plan to instrument a 1,626 foot television tower to obtain additional data on wind energy as it relates to height.

Both researchers believe that a series of windmills, or "wind energy conversion systems" as they call them, could be constructed in Texas by 1985 to produce 500 megawatts.

"That should be enough to provide the energy needs of more than 100,000 persons," Gilmore said.

Nelson and Gilmore have requested a $44,000 grant for an experimental system which would supply most or all of the heating and cooling requirements for a one-family house at the West Texas State Nance Ranch west of Canyon. The generator's rotor would be mounted on a 40 foot tower.

P. G. WODEHOUSE

Insignificant sort of a blister now a knight

REMSENBURG, L.I. (UPI) — "Let's face it," the Old Party once wrote. "I am a pretty insignificant sort of blister, not at all the type that leaves footprints on the sands of time, as the fellow said.

"Ask the first 10 men you meet: 'Have you ever heard of P.G. Wodehouse?' Nine of them will answer 'No.' The tenth, being hard of hearing, will say, "Down the passage, first door on the right.'"

It's "Sir Pelham" now, which ought to be some kind of footprint in the S. of T., as Bertie Wooster might have said.

The 93-year-old humorist says he is "very pleased" at his knighthood by Queen Elizabeth New Year's Day but doesn't think it will affect his life style much.

"I don't suppose it will make much difference, actually, but it might be a help," he said in a telephone interview at his home. "It is quite a compliment, isn't it?

"I've always thought that the two things that establish an author are getting a knighthood and being put in Madame Tussaud's, and now I've accomplished both."

There is a question where and when Wodehouse will receive the accolade —the sword tap on the shoulder that formally makes him a knight.

"I won't be able to go to England, because my legs have gone back on me," he said. "I think I will be able to get down to Washington and go through the ceremony there."

Despite his advanced age, Wodehouse is still active as a writer and works regularly in his Long Island home. His latest novel, "Aunts Aren't Gentlemen," was published in England last fall.

Wodehouse's novels, which he has described as "musical comedies without the music," usually picture old British gentry and their eccentric relatives practicing ritualized chivalry no matter what happened.

The most famous of his befuddled young men was Bertie Wooster, who was rescued at every turn by his valet, Jeeves.

Wodehouse also has written more than 300 short stories. He has been a columnist for the London Globe, a drama critic, musical lyricist and the author or co-author of several successful plays and musical comedies.

The honor wiped out wartime condemnation of Wodehouse for broadcasts he made from Berlin to America after he was arrested when the Germans overran France in 1940.

He said the broadcasts, describing his experiences as an internee, were meant to be humorous and harmless, but his action evoked sharp criticism and there was a movement in England to try him for treason.

It was later generally agreed the broadcasts were without political implication and that Wodehouse had no intention of helping the Nazis.

Wodehouse has lived in the United States since 1947 and in Remsenburg since 1952.

por CAROL COOK

Accarreando mochilas, Fructuoso Arriola, de 30 anos, y Enrique Hurtado de 26, esperan caminar desde Tierra del Fuego hasta Montreal, Canada, un total de 14,104 millas.

Planean salir este mes, y completar su gira de 15 naciones en poco mas de 27 meses, llegando a Montreal a tiempo para los juegos olimpicos en 1976.

El viajo a pie desde la ciudad de Mexico a Munich para las Olimpiadas de 1972, con un descanso para cruzar el Atlantico en barco desde Veracruz.

La caminata de Arriola en Europa lo llevo a Espana, Francia, Italia, Suiza, Austria y Alemania. Cubrio 3.813 millas, visitando 600 pueblos y ciudades, y tuvo una audiencia con el Papa.

"Aprendi es ese viaje que la gente es espoendida. Antes de salir, oi que los espanoles eran muy orgullosos, los alemanes, secos, y demas. Pero no es cierto. Los conoci a todos, y me trataron maravillosamente."

No todo fue facil.

Caminando en carreteras de asfalto, me dio muchas ampollas. Todas las noches las abria con aguja e hilo, dejando el hilo durante la noche para desagotar las ampollas y prevenir que sangraran. A la noche siguien te, mas ampollas."

Arriola y Hurtado, planean caminar de 10 a 12 horas por dia en su viaje por las Americas, cubriendo de 25 a 30 millas, llevando a sus espaldas mochilas que contienen bolsas de dormir, ropa liviana para el tropico, ropa de lana y rompevientos, linternas, cantinas, medicinas y comida.

Mientras tanto, se preparan para caminar, corriendo 45 minutos por dia, y aun cuando sus pies se endurecen, Arriola espera tener que perforar ampollas otra vez.

"Comenzaremos a caminar entre las 6 y ocho de la manana, despues del desayuno, y continuaremos hasta la una de la tarde," dijo. "Entonces comeremos, descansaremos por una hora, y despues continuaremos hasta el anochecer, o mas tarde aun si nos sentimos con ganas."

Pasaran por Buenos Aires, Montevideo, San Pablo, La Paz, Lima, Quito, Bogota, Ciudad de Panama, San Jose, Managua, San Salvador, Guatemala, Mejico, San Antonio, Dallas, Memphis, Indianapolis, Nueva York, Boston, y finalmente, Montreal.

"No se puede hacer esta clase de cosa esperando relajarse o estar comodo", dice Arriola. "Si se deja de caminar, aunque sea por una semana, es muy dificil comenzar otra vez."

Por que lo hacen?

"Por espiritu del deporte" dice Arriola. "Y por mi pasada experiencia en Europa, de compartir con la gente sus vida, el intercambio de ideas, expresando la afeccion que sentimos por toda la humanidad."

PLANEAN GIRA — Dos Mejicanos, Fructuoso Arriola, de 30 anos, a la izquirda, y Enrique Hurado, de 26, hablan de planes de caminar desde Tierra del Fuego en Argentina hasta Montreal in Canada. Planean comenzar la caminata que cubrira 15 paises y 14,104 millas este mes y completarla in 27 meses.

Bad checks spur DMV to add fee

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — To cope with the increasing number of bad checks it receives, the Department of Motor Vehicles says it will charge a $5 service fee for handling dishonored checks.

"Lots of our manpower is spent chasing down these bouncing checks," DMV Director Robert Cozens said recently. "In fairness to the taxpayer, the check writers should absorb this cost."

Cozens said the department also will cancel a drivers license, void a vehicle registration or suspend any other DMV services which were paid for with a bogus check, until the payment is made.

Muchas residentes 'invisibles'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Un miembro del concilio de la ciudad dijo el miercoles que la mitad de los residentes de sus distrito son oficialmente "invisibles," porque son ilegales.

De acuerdo al censo, hay menos de 14.000 habitantes en su distrito, dijo David Cunningham, pero actualmente, unas 30.000 personas viven alli.

El vecindario en el centro de la ciudad, alberga muchos ilegales que se deslizan por la frontera con Mejico, a 100 millas al sur, y se mezclan con la numerosa poblacion Mexico-Americana.

Cunn ingham le dijo a la Asociacion Legal del Condado, en una audiencia acerca del problema, que el gobierno federal tendria que declarar una amnistia de seis meses, durante la cual los mejicanos prdrian legalizar su estada.

Sen. Sam Ervin: Satisfied he defended Constitution

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After a 20-year Senate career that began with McCarthyism and ended with Watergate, retiring Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., is satisfied he made progress in "fighting big government" and defending the Constitution.

As staff aides filled packing crates with his files and mementos, Ervin, 78, said the Bill of Rights had been "endangered and, to some extent, rescued in my time," but the task was not finished.

Shortly after Ervin was appointed to the Senate in 1954 to fill a vacancy, he became a member of the select committee whose report led to the Senate's censure of the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis.

Two decades later, Ervin became known to millions of television viewers for his eyebrow-waggling, Bible-quoting discourses as chairman of the Senate Watergate hearings, when the public learned the full scope of the scandal for the first time.

Interviewed in his office before he was summoned to the Senate floor for one of the last roll call votes of the waning 93rd Congress, Ervin called Watergate "a most tragic episode of American history," with important lessons for the public.

The scandal stemmed from the Nixon administration's "thirst for political power," he said, expressing hope it would impress Americans with the truth of Lord Acton's observation that "power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely."

"As a result," Ervin said, "the people should be more concerned about how they vote and who they vote for."

On the plus side, he said, Watergate has resulted in "some legislation to make it more difficult to hide contributions of great sums of money (and) weakened the power of money in the political process, which is as it should be."

Although the scandal has had the temporary effect of souring people on politics and politicians, he said, "it ought to inform the people that 'eternal vigilance is the price of liberty'."

Still, he is cheered by the thought that "there is an increased veneration for the Constitution and its principles among the young."

He saw the Bill of Rights endangered when the Justice Department, under former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, succeeded in gaining passage of so-called "preventive detention" and "no-knock" legislation over criticism that it violated the rights of criminal suspects.

"But we've been able to get a repeal of the no-knock laws," Ervin said.

He is proudest of his role in drafting legislation enabling Congress to write its own federal budgets, with full knowledge of funds available for appropriation, and preventing executive branch impoundment of appropriated funds.

"That was a real landmark piece of legislation," he said. "It should result in the balancing of the budget."

Among his greatest disappointments, Ervin said, was Congress' failure to restrict use of executive privilege, the doctrine cited by former Richard M. Nixon in his efforts to withhold the Watergate tapes, and to protect the political rights of government employes.

"Why anyone except a bureaucratic tyrant would oppose such legislation, I don't understand," he said.

Summing up, Ervin said "I've always been fighting big government and the use of government of power, and I think substantial progress has been made in that fight."

Asked if he regretted any of his past Senate votes, or supported causes he now felt were wrong, Ervin replied: "I formed the habit of not looking back."

He did express chagrin over changes he has detected in the Senate in the past 20 years.

Buyers billboard . . . . . even oats feel the pinch

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several months ago a reader in Alexandria, La., sent the price tag from a small box of Quaker Oats —marked at 55 cents — with a comment no doubt repeated in many American households.

"Fifty-five cents is an enormous price to pay for a small box of Quaker oatmeal," she wrote, "when it (formerly) was 39 cents."

We sent the letter along to Quaker in Chicago asking if they could explain it. They were late in replying because of internal problems, and presumably the price is higher now than it was in August.

But Quaker's comments are worth passing on. You may want to take exception to some of the points the company makes in the following letter, but we present it in an effort to air a position that sometimes gets lost in the crossfire over higher prices:

"Just as you have been doing your best to follow a food budget, we also have tried hard to hold the line on price. However, we too are consumers and have been faced with sharply rising costs for materials and services which we purchase. Our margins, frankly, have been squeezed as tight as they can be. Despite increased prices, Quaker's profits have been down this year for the first time in many years.

"Food processing companies in general have historically experienced such narrow profit margins that it is impossible to absorb all cost increases and still compete effectively in the marketplace. Let me explain some of the spiraling costs which have affected our business and I think you will understand why cost increases for our products —within government guidelines —were unavoidable.

"First of all, there has been an escalation in costs for raw agricultural products. Since the beginning of 1973, grain prices have climbed to record highs. For example, the per bushel price of oats —certainly one of the more important commodities for Quaker —doubled within a year.

"Recently, agricultural commodity prices have declined somewhat, but the lead times inherent in purchasing make it too early to predict the farm harvest this fall. You may want to check newspaper quotations for grain market prices, if you would like further insight into this situation.

"To the increased cost of oats, add soaring prices for manufacture, machinery and plant maintenance. I would also cite packaging material as another specific example. Though the round outer shell and label are all that are needed for the traditional oats in a tube, the expense of these two items increased by 45 per cent in a year. Not included in that figure is the added expense of shipping cartons which are now in short supply and may drive packaging costs up yet further.

"In the past several months, we have all become acutely aware of the energy crisis. Hopefully the worst is over, but, as you know, gasoline prices remain at unprecedented levels. An even greater transportation dilemma for us has been the present rail car shortage. Since it is more profitable for the railroads to ship televisions, for example, than oatmeal, we often cannot find freight cars to move our products, regardless of price. You can imagine what that means in terms of inventory costs and lost sales.

"Finally I would emphasize the importance of comparison shopping. We do not set the retail prices for our products. You may find the identical item varying in price by several cents at different stores in your community. Those pennies you save by shopping around can surely help in stretching the food budget.

"It now appears that the fundamental changes in recent years in the entire American food system mean that higher prices are here to stay. Yet if you figure the cost per ounce of Quaker oats, you're getting a hot, nourishing breakfast of one ounce of oatmeal (about two to three cups cooked) for two and a half to three cents or thereabouts..."

We guess the most frightening aspect of the above discussion —beyond the prediction that high food prices are here to stay —is that it demonstrates the degree to which the economy seems to be out of control. Even if you accept only some of Quaker's arguments, it does appear the producer, like the consumer, sometimes is trapped.

Send your consumer questions or suggestions to Buyer's Billboard, UPI, 315 National Press Building, Washington, D.C. 20045.

House blast injured boy, 6

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An explosion from an undetermined cause leveled a home New Year's Day and critically burned Johnnie Hernandez, 6, and hurled him from a stairway into an outside alley.

The boy was treated at Glendale Adventist Hospital for second and third degree burns over 60 per cent of his body.

Firemen said the blast virtually leveled the structure and set off a fire. Three city fire units knocked down the blaze in five minutes.

West German diets

LONDON (UPI) — Prof. C. Northcote Parkinson is best known for the kind of gentle ridicule of business and industry typified in his famous "Parkinson's Law." His new book is quite a switch.

This time his ridicule is reserved for politics and political institutions. There is nothing gentle about it. He not only defends that much maligned invention, the multinational corporation, but sees it as the hope of mankind.

Parkinson's recently published "Big Business," is a glossy and sweeping survey of an enormous subject. It's author is a lifelong student of business, but this survey is a long way from his 1957 dictum that "work expands so as to fill the time available for its completion."

"Big business in modern times was the invention of Cornelius Vanderbilt, who made his fortune out of U.S. railroads," Parkinson writes. His overview traces the development of what was always "regarded as a typically American phenomenon" into the world-spanning international business giants of today.

He touches upon personalities who made big business big, examining the careers of such men as John D. Rockefeller in oil, Andrew Carnegie in steel and Henry Ford in autos.

But he is hunting bigger game than dry and donnish history. Parkinson's sights zero in on his real target when he compares business and politics.

"Wherever our technology may take us, our politicians lag all too far behind," he argues. Political institutions are incredibly outmoded, and political behavior has brought "a growing sense of disorder, confusion and collapse."

Big business stands in stunning contrast to this political stagnation, Parkinson says. Man's central problem "results from the appalling contrast between the competence of our industry and the abysmal inefficiency of our political systems, concepts and leadership."

The final chapter of his book argues that big business has made our lives, that it is no bad thing that this is so, and that big business must grow bigger still.

He sternly attacks nationalization of industry and is scathing about the narrow national concept which will not recognize that "the trade route is a reality and the frontier a fiction."

In human as well as international relations, Parkinson writes, "it is the highminded and intolerant people who do the damage...People in business, by contrast...know that it is folly to quarrel with your customers, or even your rivals."

Already multinational companies, outgrowing their national base, "are not within the political framework. They overshadow it." And this trend, Parkinson believes, is man's best hope.

"If we are to save our civilization from tragedy, it will be through applying to politics the trained intelligence and methodical thought we have already applied to science and technology," he writes.

"But even that will not be enough if we fail to apply the lessons of big business: the lessons of organization and control, and above all of the international approach...

"If we are to have a prosperous future we shall owe it to men who have already learned how to cooperate and have come to see the world as one. It is big business men who have the greatest lesson to teach."

Tempo picks up; solid gains shown

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, bidding good riddance to the old year, entered the first week of 1975 with a solid gain as the trading tempo picked up on the New York Stock Exchange.

One of the reasons was that investors this week began anticipating Washington would take some concrete steps to remedy the nation's economic ills. This played a part in a New Year's eve rally that carried through the end of the holiday-shortened week.

The Dow Jones industrial average, whose performance last year was its worst since 1937, gained 32.38 points to 634.54 for the week. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which also had a disastrous 1974, gained 3.57 to 70.71. The NYSE common stock index added 1.99 to 37.35.

Advances topped declines, 1,688 to 206, among the 2,012 issues crossing the tape. Observers were pleased with this development because it showed the week's advance was broad-based.

Volume during the four-day week totaled 69,555,700 shares, compared with 52,448,256 a week ago and 82,088,600 the same week a year ago. The trading this week included a turnover of 20,970,000 shares Tuesday. Last year, there were only nine sessions in which volume totaled 20 million or more shares.

In the process of Tuesday's rally, President Ford formally scrapped plans for a 5 per cent tax surcharge and there was speculation he might call for a tax cut in an attack on the deepening recession. While inflation hurt the stock market last year, investors were more concerned about a severe recession—which the nation is now in.

"I think Wall Street believes Ford will come up with a strong program and I think that's one of the reasons for the uplift the market got this week," Monte Gordon, analyst for Dreyfus Corp., said.

"An awful lot depends on how he acts. The market is ready to explode if he lives up to hopes," Gordon said. The market staged the best rally in its history in early October when Ford announced his first economic program.

The momentum of the rally allowed the market to overcome some negative news developments late in the week. Trendsetting First National City Bank of New York raised to 10 ¼ from 10 per cent the prime lending rate it charges key corporate customers. Most other banks have a prime rate of 10 ¼ or 10 ½ per cent. High interest rates have bothered investors for months.

The Federal Reserve Board late Thursday reported loan demands at New York banks remained heavy in the latest reporting period, while the nation's money supply declined, so the increase by Citibank was not too surprising.

Late Friday, the Fed allowed six of its banks to lower the discount rate they charge members banks for borrowing to 7 ¼ from 7 ¾ per cent. This could help the market next week. A lowering of the discount rate helped the market out of its 1937 slide.

In another disturbing development this week, the Labor Department said the nation's unemployment rate rose to a 13-year high of 7.1 per cent in December. This report generally had been anticipated, however.

1974 profit picture: up to 2,000% higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — With notable exceptions, 1974 wasn't a bad year for business. Some companies never had it so good.

Figures are not in for the last three months of the year, but based on the first nine months, it is apparent oil, steel and sugar companies in particular did very well. In some cases, profits were at record levels.

According to the Wall Street Journal tabulation of 578 companies, after-tax profits increased 25.6 per cent in the second quarter and 29.6 per cent in the third quarter.

Some did extremely well.

In the third quarter, profits of Western United, a major beet sugar refiner, rose more than 1,100 per cent and those of Amstar, the nation's largest sugar company, climbed 250 per cent.

The profits of a smaller company, Michigan Sugar Co., soared 2,000 per cent.

Meanwhile, consumers were paying 400 per cent more for sugar off grocery shelves.

Profits of the nation's major steel and oil companies also scored sharp gains.

Despite a 25-day coal strike and drastically reduced auto production, the steel industry produced about 109 million tons last year, breaking the 100-million mark for only the second time in history. An industry spokesman said domestic steel production should hit about 102 million tons in 1975.

U.S. Steel's profits were up 145 per cent in the third quarter and 109 per cent for the first nine months. Both were records. Sales rose 38 per cent.

Steel prices rose 30 per cent during the year. U.S. Steel posted price increases of 4.6 to 8 per cent for the first six months of 1975, but reduced the hike by 20 per cent under pressure from President Ford.

The profits of the nation's 12 largest oil companies were up 80 per cent in the aggregate, with some reporting increases in the 200-300 per cent range. The four largest —Exxon, Texaco, Mobil and Gulf — averaged profit gains of 76 per cent in the first quarter, 67 per cent in the second and 25 per cent in the third. Fourth quarter earnings are expected to be as high or higher, although the windfall profits brought about by higher oil and gas prices appeared to be dwindling.

The profit outlook for oil companies is uncertain. The Organization for Petroleum Exporting Countries has established a new pricing system that OPEC claims will require the companies to absorb crude oil price increases in the future. But most oil companies have indicated higher crude costs eventually will be passed on to consumers no matter what OPEC does.

Nonetheless, high profits were expected to continue at least through 1975. Exxon, the world's largest oil company, was expected to return earnings of $10 to $11 a share in 1975 compared to an esti mated $13 for 1974.

Oil company suppliers have benefited from the increased exploration activity. The net of Baker Oil Tools and Hughes Tool Co. rose about 35 per cent. Reed Tool's was doubled.

The coal industry had a good year, and 1975 is expected to be even better. Standard & Poor's a financial reporting service, says "the outlook for coal industry profits is better now than at any time in the past century." Coal prices have more than doubled since the Arab oil embargo made coal an attractive alternative energy source.

In the first nine months of 1974, earnings of many bituminous coal companies were more than double earnings for the same period in 1973. For example, Pittston Company's net went from $16 million to $73 million.

Even Hollywood has profited. The Motion Picture Producers Association said gross income from theaters in the United States was up 24 per cent in 1974. Ticket prices were up an average 8 per cent.

"It doesn't take as much gasoline to drive to a neighborhood theater as it does to a ballpark," said a spokesman for the association.

In many cases, high profits were illusionary, the paper value bloated by inflationary increases in inventory. To compensate for inflated inventory values, many companies switched to LIFO last-in, first-out) accounting.

What this means is that companies assume for accounting purposes the last —and presumbly most expensive stock items —were the first to be sold. The company thus charges off heftier costs.

This method also reduces taxable income.

By switching to LIFO, B.F. Goodrich Co. lowered its reported profits from an 81 per cent gain to a 15 per cent increase.

Economists agree as the recession deepens in 1975 it will take its toll on company profits to the tune of about 20 per cent. Still, those industries that did well in 1974 generally will fare better than others in 1975. And those that suffered the most in 1974 are expected to pay the piper again this year.

Among the industries that are expected to do especially well are coal, oil and food processing. Among those industries not expected to withstand the recession as well are autos, textiles, appliances and forest products.

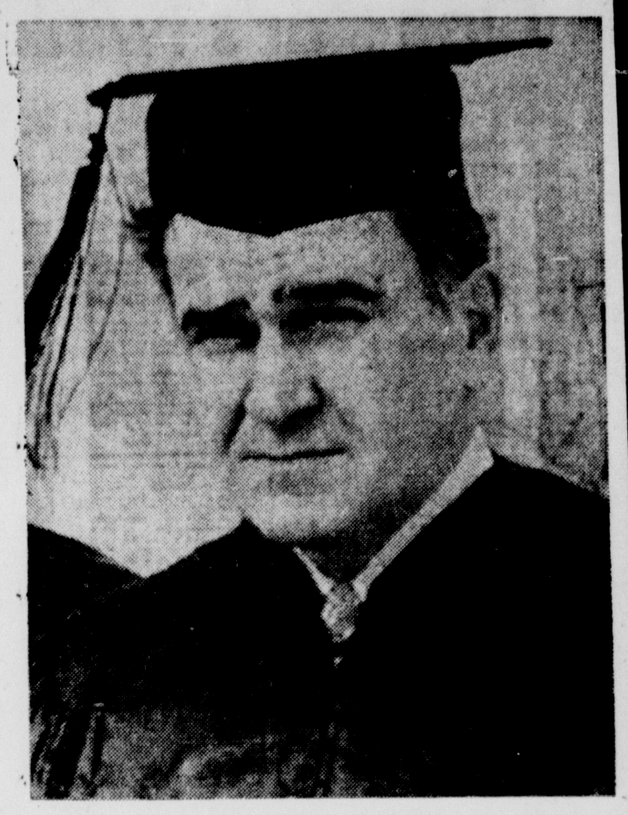
WILLIAM HEIRENS



. . . . . AND NOW

William Heirens:
'Cath Me Before I Kill More'
By DAVID SMOTHERS
UPI Senior Editor

STATEVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — He was a bright, popular college kid. On the night of Dec. 10, 1945, according to the state of Illinois, he took a lipstick and wrote on the wall of a woman he had just murdered, "For heaven's sake, catch me before I kill more."

William George Heirens, 17, was caught 28 years ago when an off-duty Chicago policeman found the husky freshman on a burglary prowl and knocked him out with three thrown flower pots.

Heirens, now a graying 45, has spent most of the rest of his life as No. 24-109 in Illinois' Stateville Penitentiary, fighting all the way to get out and convinced he will make it some day.

Heirens went to Stateville in 1946 on three consecutive life terms for the murders of Mrs. Josephine Ross, a 43-year-old widow, Frances Brown, a 33-year-old ex-Wave, and 6-year-old Suzanne Degnan.

It was on the wall of Miss Brown's apartment that the "stop me" message was written. It was the Degnan murder that aroused Chicago as few others had.

According to the charges and Heirens' oft-repudiated confession, he rose from his bed in a University of Chicago dormitory Jan. 6, 1946, in obedience to a familiar urge to make a classic schizophrenic change from Bill Heirens to "George Murman," short for "Murderman."

He traveled, so it is charged, by elevated train from the South Side campus to his old Rogers Park neighborhood at the other end of the city. This, it is said, was the habit of "George Murman."

There, he went to the home of James Degnan, an official of the Office of Price Administration. He found a ladder and placed it against the alley wall.

It was believed he was after the Degnans' elder daughter, Barbara. But the ladder was too short. He wound up at the open window of Suzanne. She was awake when he crawled through.

He muffled her with a blanket until she was unconscious. He left a prepared $20,000 ransom note on the floor. He strangled her. He carried her down the ladder, found an open basement and dissected her body in a laundry tub, the parts he placed under sewer lids about the neighborhood.

That is the charge. It is not what happened, Heirens has insisted through the years. "I confessed," he said, "because I would be killed if I did not."

Heirens wrote that in an article which appeared in the Joliet, Ill., Herald-News the day in 1972 when he received a bachelor of arts degree from little Lewis College —the first man ever to obtain a college degree while in an Illinois prison.

These days, the man Heirens must answer to is David Brierton, administrator of institution services for Illinois prisons.

Brierton said Heirens is still "a pretty bright guy, a very bright guy.

"He's still studying. He's interested in electronics and works in the electronics shop. He gets along fine.

"He's been paroled on one charge but is still doing time on the others. He's still fighting for a parole."

More Plain Talk.

Inflation. It costs you more to feed your family. It costs us more to stay in business.

Several weeks ago I "talked" with you, as chairman of the California Milk Advisory Board, about some very serious problems threatening dairy farmers. It seems to me there's a mighty big communications gap between city and farm people when the subject of food and milk prices comes up.

I hope to bridge that gap with some more plain talk.

My wife and I buy groceries for our family just like you. We know what's happening to food prices . . . and just about all other prices, for that matter.

We have another "family" to feed, too. Several hundred dairy cows that have to be milked twice a day, 365 days a year.

Since our cows give milk all the time, they eat all the time. And that's a problem for us because hay and grain costs have gone out of sight.

For instance, our 350 milking cows in Chino eat nearly 25 tons of hay a week and about that much grain. In 1972 that cost us $2,569 each week. Now, the same quantity of hay and grain costs us $5,390 a week. That's an inflationary increase of 109 per cent. Our total operating costs have increased approximately 80 per cent. But, during the same period, the money we get when we sell our milk to the processing plant has only increased about 49 per cent.

I guess I don't have to convince you that no business can stay healthy under these inflationary conditions.

My feed bill is the biggest part of my total costs, but I want to say a few kind words about the farmers who grow that feed. They have their share of inflation problems, too. Take grain for example. The demand has increased tremendously in this country and overseas, but bad weather has actually cut back production, causing shortages.

The fertilizer needed in growing feed crops has doubled in cost. We buy much of our feed from out of state, so freight rate increases do their bit to raise prices. Fertilizer and freight trains are dependent on energy—oil in most cases—for production and movement. And, we all know what's happened to the price of oil.

I could go on and on about other costs on my farm, over and above feed. Many are the same ones that pinch your budget—utilities, fuel, everyday purchases.

Because of the huge investment in land, cows, equipment and feed, most of us dairymen depend on loans to keep our farms going. Interest rates for me during the last two years have gone from 7 per cent to 12 per cent or more. I know some dairymen who simply can't afford to borrow any more at these interest levels. They are falling farther and farther behind in paying bills. Some will be forced out of business in the next few months. Several hundred others have already gone out of dairy farming since this big squeeze began.

Inflation and recession. How can we have both at the same time? What's going to happen next? Even the best economics experts haven't come up with the answers yet. And we're not waiting for their answers, because we have to save our farms now.

California dairymen are looking for alternative, less costly feeds. We're cutting corners on operational expenses whenever we can. We're trying every way we know to increase our already record rate of productivity. But we need to cover costs if we are to remain in business.

Here's what we dairy farmers and our families want. To operate our farms at a fair return. To continue providing the highest quality milk and dairy products at a price that's fair to you. That's all we ask.

One star's twinkle will turn on United States' Bicentennial glitter

HONOLULU (UPI) — The twinkle of a star spanning two centuries may join the 50th state with the birthplace of the United States during the nation's bicentennial celebration in 1976.

The Hawaii Bicentennial Commission is exploring the possibility of using a portion of galactic light that was born and began traveling in 1776 to light up Independence Hall in Philadelphia, where the Declaration of Independence was signed.

Dr. John T. Jefferies, director of the Institute for Astronomy at the University of Hawaii, said "there are a lot of ways" to accomplish the unusual feat.

Epsilon Lyrae, a star in the constellation Lyra, is positioned 200 light years away from earth. On any night islanders observe Epsilon Lyrae, they are looking at light that is reaching the earth after traveling through space at 186,000 miles per second for 200 years.

D. Wilson Benware, a Pasadena, Calif., real estate man whose hobby is astronomy, realized that the light leaving the star when John Hancock signed the Declaration of Independence in 1776 has not yet reached the earth. He sent his observations to members of the Hawaii and California congressional delegations and to the Pennsylvania Bicentennial Commission.

"My original idea was to catch the light from the star and transmit it to Philadelphia to ring the long-silent Liberty Bell," Benware said. But the Pennsylvania Bicentennial Commission informed him that since the bell has cracked on at least two occasions in its past, it could not peal again at the risk of further damage.

"I am patriotic," Benware said. "The love of country has always been deep within me. I wanted to think of something special for our country's 200th birthday."

So Benware suggested that the starlight be used to light up Independence Hall, where the bell is displayed.

One of the most famous buildings in Philadelphia, Independence Hall was the scene of some of the most important events in American history. George Washington was chosen commander-in-chief of the Continental Army in the hall in 1775, the Declaration of Independence was signed there July 4, 1776 and the Liberty Bell proclaimed the news from the tower.

Jefferies explained that the theory is that the portion of Epsilon Lyrae's light generated at the time of the signing of the Declaration of Independence is still en route and will arrive in time for the bicentennial celebration.

Jefferies said the dramatic event could be accomplished at little cost. He suggested that astronomers at the 13,000-foot Mauna Kea Observatory on the island of Hawaii point a telescope on Epsilon Lyrae on a cloudless night when the star is visible in 1976.

"The light goes into a receiver, and an electrical signal is transmitted from the observatory via radio or through telephone lines," he said.

"This signal could be picked up by an antenna in Philadelphia which would generate an electrical current to light up the hall."

Jefferies recalled the light from the star Arcturas opened the Chicago World's Fair in 1933 and the light of a star was once used to light up the marquee of a Hollywood theater.

In his proposal to the Hawaii Bicentennial Commission, Benware said, "This light which left the star as John Hancock inscribed his name for posterity might well be engaged at the coming bicentennial exposition.

"What could be more fitting than that Hawaii, our 50th state, take active part in the ceremony?"

200th birthday sail in

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than 120 sailing ships representing 30 countries and with 6,000 cadets aboard will sail into New York Harbor on July 4, 1976, in one of the major events planned for this nation's bicentennial celebration.

Tagged Operation Sail '76, this windjammer parade is being sponsored jointly by the Sail Training Association of London and the American Sail Training Association and will get underway from a yet-to-be-named European port on Sunday, May 2, 1976.

The tentative program calls for the ships to race to Lisbon, Portugal, a distance of 755 miles, on the first leg of the voyage. From Lisbon, the fleet will cruise leisurely to Tenerife, Canary Islands, some 700 miles, where on May 23 they will begin a race for Bermuda, 2,530 miles away.

Hopefully, the winners and all the stragglers will be into Bermuda by June 23 when the tall ships line up for the starting gun again, this time to race 635 miles to Newport, R.I.

During an approximately 10-day stay in Newport, there will be a series of intership competitions on the water, an in-shore regatta, and an opportunity for the public to visit many of the ships.

The schedule calls for the fleet to sail down Long Island Sound in two groups on July 2-3 to New York where they will form up for the climax of the big event.

The Independence Day parade will pass a fleet of reviewing ships in the harbor, the Statue of Liberty, the Battery and the lower Manhattan skyline, with most then heading for night anchorages in the Hudson River.

Frank O. Braynard, general manager of OPSAIL '76, predicts that more than one million persons will view the parade from the shores of Manhattan, Brooklyn and Staten Island.

Braynard hopes to get part of the Verrazano Bridge connecting Brooklyn and Staten Island closed off for spectators, and he estimates that hundreds of small pleasure boats will be out in force to view the scene from the water.

A tickertape parade up Broadway for the officers and crews is scheduled for the following day.

Among conditions of the event, each ship, except for the largest, Class A vessels, must take part in at least one leg of the transatlantic race. And 50 per cent of the crew of each ship must be trainees.

Russia, which has five tall-rigged ships, is expected to enter at least one in the event, which the sponsors describe as a display of international friendship.

The 245-foot, barque-rigged Eagle of the U.S. Coast Guard will represent this country.

Allen Carter and Joe Davis:

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

Allen Carter and Joe Davis began their collegiate football careers at the University of Southern California in remarkably different ways.

Carter, an All-Everything halfback at Bonita High, was probably the most courted prep athlete ever to come out of the valley. He turned down several scholarship offers before he picked USC.

Davis was a relatively obscure offensive lineman at Claremont High. To his surprise, USC recruiters offered him a scholarship. He accepted because, "it was a challenge for me to go to USC."

That's the way it was for them as the decade of the '70s began.

As 1975 opens, both are enjoying the afterglow of the dramatic 18-17 victory over Ohio State in the 61st Rose Bowl game New Year's Day and the National Championship that was the result.

Carter, who hit the line for 75 yards in his third Rose Bowl game, is hitting the books this weekend for final exams. He expects to graduaee this June with a bachelor's degree in public administration.

He would like a chance at professional football. Most observers feel he will be a high draft choice when the pros gather to make their picks of the best collegiate football talent in the country.

Not every school wins national title—Carter

"Right now I'm concentrating on finals," said Carter in a telephone conversation from his Los Angeles apartment. "I want to finish school and then I would like to play pro ball. As far as a career is concerned, I'm not sure about that yet. I picked public administration as a major because it's a broad field. I may go on to law school or go for a master's degree in business management or public administration."

Carter was bothered with leg injuries through most of his career at USC. But he got his chance to see considerable action in the Rose Bowl when Anthony Davis went down with an injury to his ribs.

Carter played intermittently in the first half and all of the second, rushing for 75 yards net on 18 carries, to tie Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin for most yards gained in the game.

"I really enjoyed being in the game and the excitement of coming from behind. As far as my career is concerned, I wish I had played a little more. But it's not every school you can go to and end up as a national champion twice."

The Trojans wrapped up a national championship in 1972 with a 42-17 win over Ohio State in the Rose Bowl when Carter was a sophomore.

Only a junior this season, Davis will be back next year for a shot at his fourth Rose Bowl and a national title.

"We didn't do anything different against Ohio State than we did against any other team," he said over the telephone from his parents' home in Claremont. "We just went right at them — we did what we do best. Ohio State's defensive line is about the best we've faced. Notre Dame was big — just huge. But Ohio State was extremely well coached."

We did what we do best against Ohio State—Davis

The Trojans, says Davis, had talked of a national title all season until the 15-15 tie with Cal.

"After that we never mentioned it. It was a different team after the Cal game. We had had inconsistent performances from all of us. After the Cal game we put things in perspective."

Carr gives Kings tie with Flyers

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Gene Carr, who shaved off his moustache to change his scoring luck, rammed home a power play goal with 2:48 remaining in the second period Saturday night to earn the Los Angeles Kings a 2-2 tie with the Philadelphia Flyers.

The Flyers took a 2-1 lead on Reggie Leach's 20th goal of the season just 61 seconds before Carr scored for only the fourth time this season.

The 23-year-old Kings' center trimmed his moustache before Thursday night's Los Angeles-Boston match here, hoping to end a slump which had seen him hit the post 22 times this season in addition to missing many open net opportunities.

The Kings evened the score 7:23 into the second period when Tommy Williams connected on a 15-foot shot that just barely caught the crossbar before ricocheting out.

The tie dropped the Kings two points behind Montreal in the NHL's Division 3.

Minnesota North Stars, Boston Bruins and referees are involved in a real knock-down, drag-out fight in the first period of their game Saturday night. Boston eventually won the contest, 8-0.

Bruins take Oklahoma apart in 111-66 rout

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Richard Washington scored 17 points and Dave Meyers, Marques Johnson and freshman Brett Vroman each added 14 Saturday night to pace third-ranked UCLA to a 111-66 rout of Oklahoma.

Washington, who played only briefly in the second half, hit seven of his eight shots on jumpers ranging from 7 to 21 feet. Washington had 14 points at the intermission.

The Bruins had six men in double figures.

Sooners' 6-9 junior center Alvan Adams led all scorers with 25 points. Reserve forward Randy Gentry, who did not play in the first half, hit 14 for Oklahoma. Bob Pritchard added 11 for the Sooners.

UCLA broke open a 14-12 game by reeling off 14 straight points in 3:05 and breezed to a 48-22 halftime lead.

Oklahoma had scoreless stretches of 3:45 and 3:20 in the first half.

The victory gave UCLA a 10-0 mark and was its 73rd straight at Pauley Pavilion since 1970. For Oklahoma, it was its fourth loss in 12 starts.

The Bruins open defense of their Pacific-8 championship next Thursday night when they host Washington. Oklahoma plays at UC Santa Barbara Monday night.

Trojans finish non-conference play with win

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Clint Chapman and Biff Burrell combined for 43 points Saturday night as the No. 5-ranked University of Southern California Trojans outfought Furman, two-time defending Southern Conference champion, 91-84.

It was the Trojans' 10th win in 11 games in thier last non-conference start before opening their Pacific-8 state next week.

Chapman connected for 22 points, 16 in the second half, and Burrell for 21, 12 in the alst half.

Clyde "Marvelous" Mayes, Furman's 6-9 forward, led all scorers with 26. Fessor Leonard, the Paladins' 7-1 center, had 18.

The Trojans led 36-35 at halftime and Chapman put them ahead to stay on a reverse layup at 40-39 2:09 into the second half.

USC practically wrapped up its victory by outscoring Furman 15-2 in a five-minute span to take a 57-43 advantage 8:16 into the final half.

UCLA selects Bill McPherson

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bill McPherson, an assistant at Santa Clara for 12 years, has been named an assistant to UCLA head coach Dick Vermeil, it was announced Saturday.

McPherson replaces Jim Mora, who coached the Bruins' linebackers last season. Mora has taken a job as defensive coordinator at the University of Washington.

McPherson was a defensive coordinator at Santa Clara and headed the school's intramural sports program.

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

"We just got whipped. That's all there was to it." Gene Victor said it and he meant it Saturday night after his Mt. San Antonio College basketball team dropped its first game in 15 outings.

Pasadena City College, a team MSAC had beaten by five points, 63-58, in the Chaffey Invitational three weeks ago, outshot, outrebounded and outplayed the Mounties in an incredible second half comeback enroute to a 102-81 decision on the MSAC court.

"No, there was no pressure because we were unbeaten," Victor said. "We were loose in practice. We felt no pressure. We just got beat."

Both teams shot 50 per cent from the field in the first half and MSAC led twice by 11 points and several times by nine points before the Lancers trimmed the lead to one, 47-46 by intermission.

The Mounties, who had made 20 of 39 field goal attempts in the first 20 minutes, managed only 10 of 35 in the second half.

A string of turnovers which added up to 27 when the game was over turned it around.

Pasadena outscored the Mounties 16-10 in the first seven minutes of the second half and then hit 10 unanswered points in a two-minute span at the midway point to surge into a 70-56 advantage.

Forward Greg Griffin, who led the Lancers with 30 points in the first meeting with MSAC, equaled that total Saturday night. He had 14 points in the first half and added 16 in the second half blitz.

MSAC's George Schader had matched Griffin's total in the first game, but managed only 11 points in the loss. Veteran forward Roger Borg was high was the Mounties, coming off the bench to hit 14. Subs Tom Pokorski and Alan Carlson had 10 each and center Duaine Harding scored eight and grabbed 10 rebounds.

West rally comes up short, 34-25

East stars post easy Hula Bowl win

HONOLULU (UPI) — The East welded a bullseye passing attack plus smoothly executed option sweeps to beat the West, 34-25, Saturday in the 29th annual Hula Bowl game.

Some 22,000 sometimes wet, sometimes dry fans saw the East, quarterbacked mostly by Condredge Holloway of Tennessee build up a 26-6 halftime lead and then frustrate Southern California's Pat Haden's passing attempts to pull the game out in the closing minutes.

The second of the West's two last-quarter touchdowns came four seconds before the end of the game.

Thirty to 35 knot winds and a heavy rain squall failed to upset either Holloway or Haden's passing, but the East, playing clutch defense, came up with key interceptions that won them the game.

Holloway was voted the outstanding offensive player and Rubin Carter of Miami was named the outstanding defensive player.

Holloway threw a 59 yard touchdown pass to Larry Burton of Purdue and scored on a six yard run. Burton tallied a second TD when he hauled in a 55-yard pass from Dennis Franklin of Michigan. The other East points came on an eight yard run by Stan Fritz of North Carolina State and a 47-yard pass from Harvard's Milt Holt to Danny Buggs of West Virginia.

Haden, who took over in the second half, passed for three touchdowns. His first was a record 98-yarder to Oscar Roan of Southern Methodist, the second a 19-yarder to Roan and the third a 14-yarder to USC teammate John McKay. Roan had scored the West's first touchdown by grabbing a nine-yard pass from All America Steve Bartkowski of California in the first half.

The East scored four times before the West finally got on the scoreboard. Once Haden was inserted as the West quarterback, the complexion of the game changed dramatically as he time and again hit open receivers. His TD throw to McDonald cut the East lead to nine points but on the following kickoff and with only four seconds left, the star Southern California quarterback was unable to muster a drive and in fact, his final desperation pass was intercepted to end the game.

Garey High grad scores 17 points

Greg Ballard does it again for Oregon's Ducks, 86-73

EUGENE, Ore.(UPI) — Crucial baskets by Stu Jackson and Greg Ballard in the second half allowed unbeaten Oregon to pull away from Providence Saturday and record an 86-73 victory.

The 10th-ranked Ducks, now 9-0, lost a first half 10-point lead, and the No. 13 Friars returned from a 47-42 halftime deficit to knot it at 55-55.

Jackson hit Ballard with a pass underneath and then took another pass from Ronnie Lee to make it 61-56. Then Ballard hit two straight field goals to make it 65-58. Jackson then took two Ron Lee assists to the hoop to ice the game.

The Ducks slowed down the pace of the game and Providence never recovered.

Lee paced Oregon with 19 points, most coming late in the contest. Ballard added 17 and Jackson and Ernie Kent each had 12 points.

Providence, 7-3, was led by Joe Hassett and Bruce Campbell with 17 points each.

Ballard, a graduate of Garey High in Pomona, was named the Valley Basketball Player of the Year in 1973. He was also an All-CIF first team selection in '73 while competing in the CIF 3-A division.

The 6-foot-7 Oregon sophomore led the Garey High Vikings to the San Antonio League championship for two consecutive seasons.

Apples, flour Super Bowl bets

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Allegheny County commissioners have bet the Hennepin County (Minn.) commissioners 50 pounds of Grade A fancy apples against 50 pounds of flour that the Pittsburgh Steelers will beat the Minnesota Vikings in the Super Bowl on Jan. 12 in New Orleans.

Allegheny County Commissioner Thomas J. Foerster was so confident of the outcome that he said the flour would be delivered to Kane Hospital so its 2,100 patients can get a "taste of the Steeler world championship victory."

In another wager, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., bet Sen. Walter F. Mondale, DMinn., a bag of anthracite coal against a turkey that the Steelers would be victorious.

Starr selects Bratkowski to handle Green Bay QBs

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Green Bay Packers Coach Bart Starr Friday night named Zeke Bratkowski, his backup man at quarterback during the Packers' dynasty years, as an assistant coach.

Bratkowski, 43, will handle the Green Bay quarterbacks next season. He is the second assistant and the second former Packer to be named by Starr. Earlier this week, Starr named Dave Hanner as his top aide and defensive coordinator.

Bratkowski has been an assistant coach with the Chicago Bears the past three years. He has maintained his home near Starr in suburban DePere during that time.

Bratkowski was the backup man to Starr in Green Bay's drive to successive NFL championships in 1965-66-67 and led the Packers to a victory over Baltimore in the 1965 Western Conference playoff.

He was an assistant coach with the Packers in 1969 and 1970 and became an active player again in 1971, starting the Green Bay opener.

Brown undergoes knee surgery

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Torn cartilage has successfully been removed from the right knee of Washington Redskins running back Larry Brown.

The operation was performed at St. Anthony's Hospital Thursday by Dr. Don O'Donoghue, who previously has performed surgery on Sonny Jergensen, Willis Reed, Len Dawson Gayle Sayers, and other athletes.

O'Donoghue told Redskins coach George Allen that Brown would remain in the hospital for a week before beginning rehabilitation, the spokesman said.

Brown went to O'Donoghue Monday for a diagnosis and was told the surgery could be performed Tuesday. Brown decided, however, to wait until after New Year's Day.

Oakland not for sale yet

OAKLAND (UPI) — Charlie Finley has a lot of things on his mind these days, but selling the World Champion Oakland A's is not one of them.

At least that is what Finley claims.

After a local superior court judge refused to vacate an arbitrator's award which had cut star pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter free, over strong objections by Finley and his attorney, Neil Papiano, Charlie was asked how close was he to selling the A's.

"I'll answer any question you want me to," he said, "but not that one, and the reason is simple. I've never said I was going to sell the club, although I have let it be known that I would entertain bids, so what can I say at this time. I've got too many things on my mind and that isn't one of them."

Papiano, who also is the attorney for Marge Everett—who failed in a bid to buy the San Diego Padres a year ago— more or less confirmed that sale of the A's to his top client is a dead issue for now. Mrs. Everett has made a substantial offer to purchase the A's.

"If you are asking me my personal opinion," said Papiano, "I don't believe sale of the A's is imminent. Of course, things could change quickly, but I don't think they will. I don't think Mr. Finley is all that interested in selling."

Papiano was disappointed, as was Finley, when Alameda Country Superior Court Judge George W. Phillips upheld the arbitrator's award that made Hunter, winner of 106 games over the last five seasons, a free agent. That was three weeks ago and Hunter, after vigorous bidding by every major league club except one, signed a $3.7 million, five-year contract with the New York Yankees.

"We are mapping our plans," said Finley, "and if we have to we will go all the way to the Supreme Court in an effort to get a reversal. That was a bum decision when when it was made and it's still a bum decision."

Papiano said he will file for a hearing before the California District Court of Appeals and, if he can't get a reversal there, he will continue with the California Supreme Court and then the U.S. Supreme Court. The latter body has upheld baseball's reserve clause three times in the past.

Papiano and Finley's argument in the Hunter case is that the arbitrator lacked jurisdiction to declare Hunter a free agent. They claim baseball rules are clear on this point.

"If the reserve clause means anything," said Papiano, "then Hunter still belongs to the A's."

"The reserve system does not apply to a player whose contract has been terminated," argued Joseph Freitas, a San Francisco attorney, who represented Hunter. "If a club defaults in paying a player his salary, all obligations to the club by the player shall come to an end. This couldn't have been clearer than in this case."

Finley's alleged failure to transfer half of Hunter's 1975 salary of $100,000 into a non-taxable annuity was the basis on which the arbitrator, Peter Seitz, declared the pitcher's contract null and void in an historic decision.

Aside from the Hunter headache, Finley faces big salary demands by many of his A's, which means he may have to spend the better part of the next six or seven weeks at arbitration hearings.

Captain Sal Bando, among other A's, has said Hunter's signing by the Yankees for $3.7 million "proves what some of us are worth. I don't see how we can ever get the owner to agree, so look for many of us to go to arbitration."

Finley fairly bristled when he heard that.

"I'd hate to think there's anybody who would try to take advantage of me because of Catfish," he said. "But if they do, they'll have a helluva battle on their hands. I'm not going to cave in on something like that. The players will get what they deserve and nothing more."

Poets prevail, 82-58

Leos drop SCIAC opener

By MIKE BROSSART
P-B Staff Correspondent

WHITTIER — The La Verne Leopards opened their 1975 SCIAC basketball season Saturday night with a 82-58 loss to the Whittier Poets.

The Poets had little trouble disposing of the visiting Leos as the story was told by the shooting percentages. Whittier shot a fine 53 per cent from the floor while La Verne managed only a sloppy 35 percent mark.

The strategy certainly worked as the five Whittier reserves who saw action actually outscored the starting five by a 44-38 margin.

Reserve center Steve Johnson of the Poets was high scorer in the game with 15 points. Other Poet players in double figures were Jim Preston with 13 points and Ray Garwacki and Kent Wagner with 12 points each.

Three Leopard Players scored 12 points each: Tim Gillette, Bill Rockwood and Dave Castenada each had a dozen. Dan Carroll, starting for the first time, added eight.

The scoring began slowly as Garwacki hit the first field goal of game with 2:30 gone to put the Poets ahead 2-0.

The lead changed hands four times before Gillette's second bucket tied it at 10-10 with just over six minutes elapsed. The Leos then built a 20-14 lead with two baskets each by Rockwood and Castenada before Garwacki's sixth field goal made it 20-16 with 10:29 left in the half.

Garwacki left the game in favor of Johnson who scored three of the next four field goals to tie the score for the last time, 22-22, with 7:20 remaining.

Seven more unanswered Whittier points gave the Poets a 29-22 lead and the score was never close after that.

Whittier built a 40-32 halftime edge. Its largest lead was the 24-point margin at the final buzzer.

La Verne now is 0-1 in league play and 5-6 overall. Whittier advanced its record to 4-5 while again going to the top of the conference standings, a position the Poets have occupied for the last two years.

The Leos host Claremont-Mudd Wednesday in the Supertent. Whittier travels to Pomona-Pitzer as the Sagehens open conference play.

Owls beat S.B. in conference start

Four Citrus starters scored in double figures, led by forward Dwight Dyck's 18 points. Ordell Newkirk, Ron McNary and Sukie Melgoza each hit 10 points apiece for the winners.

Dyck's bucket with 45 seconds left in the game provided the margin of victory for the Owls who upped their record to 7-7 for the season.

The Owls cut their turnover rate to 17, down from an average of 28 a game. They also upped their free throw average from 43 per cent for the season by hitting 13 of 15 against San Bernardino.

Sub forward Roland Allbright led the rebounding for Citrus with 13. He also hit five points.

The Owls return to action Wednesday when they visit Mission Conference foe Southwestern at Chula Vista.

Mrs. Coburn, of Buffalo, N.Y., trailed going into the final frame but got a break when Miss Costello missed a chance to win the championship by rolling a nine.

Stags, Cougars lose road games

Saturday night was another bad night for both Azusa Pacific and Claremont-Mudd.

APC dropped an 82-74 game at Occidental as the Tigers' John Zorotovich pumped in 24 points, seven of them in the last two-and-a-half minutes.

C-M lost to Point Loma in San Diego, 87-67. The defeat dropped the Stags' record to 2-9 for the season.

APC, now 7-4, lost center Keith Walker. The 6-5 Walker injured an ankle late in the game. The Cougars were playing without 6-7 forward Mike Leatherby who has a sprained ankle. Leatherby is expected to return for Saturday's game at UC San Diego. Walker's condition is uncertain.

Berry, a 6-5 sophomore, proved an able substitute. He led the Cougars in both scoring, 21 points and rebounds, 14. Walker had 16 points and 12 rebounds when he was injured.

Kraig King and center John Roach added 18 and 16 points for the Tigers, (7-4). Roach had the most boards, nine.

The Stags open Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SCIAC) competition Wednesday night at La Verne.

Both will be honored at the club's annual banquet Saturday, Jan. 18, along with Oakland's George Blanda who will receive a special award for his outstanding performance in football over a 25-year career.

Southern California star Anthony Davis has been designated college back of the year and Maryland's Randy White was named the outstanding college lineman for 1974.

The Central Michigan Chippewas were selected as the NCAA college division team of the year.

Crusader coach Hanna fired

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Cleveland Crusaders coach John Hanna has been fired, it was announced Saturday.

Hanna was asked to step down as coach of the World Hockey League team Friday night.

Jack Vivian, 33, takes over the double duties as coach and general manager. He will be on the bench with the team when they face off against San Diego tonight at the Coliseum.

The Crusaders compiled a 14-16-1 record under Hanna who signed a one-year contract last summer.

Vivian said the change was "the hardest decision I've ever had to make. The way the team was going, we just couldn't afford to wait any longer to make a change."

Running it up

WORCESTER, Mass. (UPI) — Holy Cross scored one of college football's most notable upset by defeating Boston College 55-12 in 1942. Seven years later, BC took its revenge in a 76-0 stampede over the Crusaders.

KHJ (9) 10 a. m.

A crowd of just under 20,000 is expected for the 10 a.m. PST kickoff.

Steve Joachim, Temple University's second team All-American and the nation's total offense leader during the regular season, is expected to start at quarterback for the North with rollout quarterback Rocky Felker of Mississippi State getting the nod for the South.

The South is loaded with players from Florida—13 of the 32-man squad, including five from the University of Florida, four from Tampa University, two from Miami and one each from Florida State and Florida A&M.

Joachim will have Iowa State's Mike Strachan and Princeton's Walt Snickenberger in the backfield with him, and one of his primary receivers will be Gil Chapman, a Michigan running back expected to be used at wide receiver.

The South also will use a special wide receiver—Tampa University quarterback Freddie Solomon who was fifth in the nation in total offense and second in scoring. The dangerous open field runner can break open a game on one play. Chris Kupec of North Carolina will back up Felker at quarterback for the South, while Steve Grogan of Kansas State will back up Joachim.

Fezler holds one stroke lead in Confidence Open

MONTEREY, Calif. (UPI) — Touring pro Forrest Fezler who won his first event on the PGA tour last year, was on his way to another victory Saturday in the $50,000 Confidence Open tournament.

Despite a bid for a hole-in-one that hit the pin and bounced 30 feet away, Fezler managed to shoot a four-under-par 68 on the historic Del Monte golf course which gave him a three round total of 206 and the lead for the $10,000 first prize.

Trailing him by a stroke was 36-hole leader Bob Wynn, another touring pro, who shot 70 for 207.

Tied for third was long hitting Larry Ziegler, the Morracan Open champion who had a 210, the same total turned in by young Bob Kelley, a mini-tour performer.

Davis' life has changed, as might be expected, since his freshman year at USC when he was encouraged to become a Christian by five Trojan linemen — Al Gallaher, Dave Brown, Al Graft, Mike Ryan and Mike McGirr — who are now playing professional football. McGirr is a product of Rowland High.

"I have a lot to be thankful for," says Davis. "On the '72 team there were a lot of guys who were Christians. Their comaraderie, satisfaction and contentment just kinda rubbed off on me.

"I always thought being a Christian was going through the motions: going to church, singing hymns.

"I've experienced a tremendous satisfaction that I can't describe in words. It's being born again."

A business major, Davis isn't looking too far into the future right now. "I don't want to think about playing pro ball or anything just yet. I want to see what happens next year.

"When I went to USC, I decided my first responsibility was to get a degree and second to have fun playing football."

So far, three Rose Bowls have satisfied No. 2.

'Pack finishes third

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — All-America David Thompson recovered his shooting touch and poured in 26 points Saturday night to lead top-ranked North Carolina State to an 82-67 victory over 8th-ranked North Carolina.

The victory gave the Wolfpack third place in the Big Four Tournament that pits the four North Carolina members of the Atlantic Coast Conference against each other. Wake Forest, which upset North Carolina State 83-78 Friday night, met Duke in the title game.

The Wolfpack held only a 38-34 lead over the Tar Heels at halftime, but North Carolina went cold midway through the second half and North Carolina State roared away.

The Wolfpack had won 36 straight games prior to the loss to the Deacons and is now 8-1. North Carolina is 5-3.

Hoosiers roll

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Second-ranked Indiana opened defense of its Big Ten basketball title Saturday with a 107-55 victory over a Michigan State team shorn of every varsity member but one by a player rebellion against Coach Gus Ganakas.

Ganakas suspended 10 of 11 varsity players after they walked out of a morning meeting when Ganakas announced that skinny 6-foot-7 forward Jeff Tropf would be in the starting lineup.

The incident was not believed to be racially motivated, although all protesting members were black and Tropf, from nearby Holt, Mich., is the lone white player on the squad.

Cards win in o.t.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Freshman Ricky Gallon scored a tip-in at the buzzer to tie the game for fourth-ranked Louisville, and the Cardinals went on to defeat Bradley 82-80 in overtime Saturday night.

Six free throws by Phil Bond gave Louisville its winning momentum as the Cardinals stayed ahead throughout the extra period.

Junior Bridgeman led all scorers with 25 points in pacing the Cardinals to their eighth victory and their first Missouri Valley Conference encounter of the season. He took over the Louisvillle attack in the last half when the Cards lost two starters, Bill Bunton and Wesley Cox, on fouls.

Kentucky coasts

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Ninth-ranked Kentucky outclassed Louisiana State University 115-80 Saturday night as the Wildcats notched their first Southeastern Conference victory in the third straight game where they topped the 100-point mark.

Kevin Grevey contributed 20 points and freshman reserve center Mike Phillips added 18 as five Wildcats went into double figures in Kentucky's eighth victory in nine games.

The Bengals played without their top scorer, Glenn Hansen, who suffered a broken nose when LSU lost to Texas last week. Senior forward Randy Herring led all scorers with 21 points for LSU.

Terps triumph

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — John Lucas and Owen Brown scored 23 and 22 points, respectively, to lead the seventh-ranked Maryland Terrapins to a 90-82 victory over Notre Dame Saturday in a homecoming spoiler for Washington D.C. native Adrian Dantley, who led the Irish with 29 points.

The Terps pulled out in front mid-way through the first half, took a 46-37 lead into the locker room at halftime, and stayed ahead for the rest of the game.

Dantley's one-man heroics, including 10 rebounds, was not enough to stop Maryland's attack, which featured five starters in double figures.

S. Carolina wins

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — South Carolina, concentrating its attack with guard Mike Dunleavy and Alex English after its other starters got into foul trouble, downed Manhattan 82-63 Saturday in a regionally televised game.

The soft-shooting English had 22 points to lead the Gamecock scoring while co-captain Dunleavy hit for 19 points as South Carolina captured its sixth win of the season against three losses.

Manhattan, now 3-5 for the year, was led by center Bill Campion who hit for 18 points and guards Charlie Mahoney and George Bucci who each had 14 points.

Michigan romps

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Sophomore John Robinson scored a career high 28 points, mostly on layups, Saturday and missed only one field goal attempt in leading Michigan to an 85-73 win over Ohio State.

The Wolverines are now 2-0 in the Big Ten and 9-1 overall. Ohio State, 6-5, was playing its first Big Ten game.

Robinson, a 6-foot-6 forward, scored 14 of Michigan's first 19 points with seven layups out of eight shots.

The only shots the youngster missed in the second half came when he was fouled and he sank four free throws.

Iowa blitzes

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Bruce "Sky" King scored 18 points to top five Iowa players in double figures Saturday, leading the Hawkeyes to a crushing 95-70 win over Illinois in a regionally televised Big Ten game.

The score was knotted 20-20 with 10:58 to go in the first half, but the Hawkeyes dominated the rest of the way. Iowa then outscored the Illini 18-4 to make it 38-24 with 1:10 left in the half.

The visitors, who drop to 4-5 overall and 0-2 in the Big Ten, never challenged in the second half. Iowa led by 31 points three different times, including an 89-58 margin with 3:06 to play.

Sports news in brief

ALAMEDA, Calif. (UPI) — Barry Asher of Costa Mesa, Calif., making the most of two late-game errors by Mickey Higham of Kansas City, Mo., won the $60,000 ARC Alameda Open bowling tournament Saturday, climaxing a comeback that began on Thursday night.

Asher beat Higham, the top seed, 236-188, after Higham missed an easy spare in the seventh frame and followed with a disastrous split.

Asher, who captured his ninth pro bowling title while winning $7,000, breezed home when he posted five consecutive strikes.

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Archie Roboostoff, former All-American at the University of San Francisco, signed Saturday for his second pro season with the San Jose Earthquakes of the North American Soccer League, a team spokesman said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Track Coaches Association elected as coaches of the year Saturday Ted Banks of the University of Texas at El Paso, Stan Humpsman of the University of Tennessee, and Bill Dellinger of the University of Oregan.

Banks was named coach of the year for indooor track, Humpsman for outdoor track and Dellinger for cross country.

BOWIE, Md. (UPI) — With negotiations in the five-day-old racetrack strike broken down, Bowie officials continued efforts Saturday to train inexperienced personnel in hopes of resuming racing program in Maryland Monday.

Track officials said no decision would be made on whether to use non-union workers to resume racing Monday until after striking union members met today to discuss their next move.

Crosby started it all in 1937

By PHIL ROCHE
P-B Staff Writer

IN 1937, a well-known entertainer invited some of his Hollywood friends to Rancho Santa Fe near San Diego for a friendly little golf tournament where the pros played all rounds with the amateurs.

It was the birth of the pro-amateur celebrity golf tournament. The entertainer was Bing Crosby.

On Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 25-26, Bing will be host and special commentator for the exclusive ABC telecasts of his 34th Annual Bing Crosby National Pro-Amateur Golf Tournament live from Pebble Beach.

The Crosby, which moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1947, is now played over three famous courses—Pebble Beach, Spyglass Hill and Cypress Point.

IT WAS ON Cypress Point, also in 1947 that Bing, already famous as a low handicap golfer, entered the golf hall of fame when he became only the second man to ever make a hole in one 222 yards over the water on the famous 16th hole on Monterey Bay. Only two other men in history have ever made an "ace" on the challenging 16th.

Bing notes that during the tournament, the professionals inevitably play the 16th safe if they have a good score going and the wind is difficult.

"Jack Niclaus, however, goes for it every time he plays, regardless of how he stands or what the conditions are," he says.

"AND LET ME tell you that the awesome stretch of sea and sand that intervene between tee and green do make a fella tighten up a little."

As to the often-stormy weather at Pebble Beach for the Crosby (the tournament lost a day because of rain last year and in 1962 it actually snowned), Bing thinks the challenge of the elements adds "zest" to the play.

"Of course, it would be better to play the Crosby in the fall, but since the tour is out here starting in January, we just have to live with our time," says Bing.

JOHNNY MILLER, 1974 Pro Golfer of The Year who says he plays some of his best golf when he's apprehensive, may break the course record 64 at La Costa Country Club on Monday.

Miller will be playing with the cream of the West's sports journalists, whose golfing talent sours to the point where even the unflappable Dean Martin might become apprehensive.

About 60 writers, television and radio sportscasters will honor Miller at a golf tournament and dinner for his extraordinary accomplishments in 1974. Johnny will play a few holes with each group of players.

Miller won nine tournaments (the Dunlop Phoenix in Japan was unofficial), including the Bing Crosby, Phoenix and Dean Martin-Tucson in succession, the Heritage Classic, MONY Tournament of Champions, Westchester Classic, World Open and Kaiser International.

For his feats John was rewarded with nearly $400,000 ($384,321, of which a record $351,321 was official).

Hosts of the day will be Allard Roen and Jim Bingay, president of Mutual of New York, sponsors of the MONY Tournament of Champions.

Previous pros honored by writers at La Costa have been Billy Casper, 1968; Orville Moody, 1969; Jack Nicklaus, 1970 and 1972; Lee Trevino, 1971, and Tom Weiskopf, 1973.

J. C. SNEAD, who earned three times as much on the 1974 golf tour as his famous uncle, heads a list of commitments for the eighth annual Andy Williams San Diego Open golf tournament Feb. 13-16 at Torrey Pines.

Others of prominence include John Schlee, Phil Rodgers, Dale Douglass, Ken Still, Ron Cerrudo and ex AWSDO champ Pete Brown.

The younger Snead finished fifth on the 1974 money list with $164,486. Uncle Sam (Snead, that is), finished 49th, pocketing $55,562. Of course, J.C. is 33 years old, Sam 62.

J. C. (for Jesse Carlyle) came into golf prominence in 1971 when he went from 122nd on the money list to 17th and had wins at Tucson and Doral-Eastern. He passed the $100,000 mark in both 1973 and 1974 without any first place finishes, but got into the annual record book with back-to-back nine-hole 30's at the Tournament Players Championship.

Schlee was 10th on the money list in 1973 when he won the Hawaiian Open, but went back to 37th in 1974.

Rodgers, of La Jolla, who has five tour wins in a touring pro career dating back to 1961, had his greatest year in 1966 when he won Doral and Buick Opens and was sixth in earnings. He must qualify for tournaments in 1975, however.

Douglass finished 52nd in 1974 point standings and is thus exempt from qualifying. Still finished in the top 60 in earnings for eight consecutive years through 1973 but must qualify this year. Cerrudo has two tour wins, but is not exempt for 1975.

Brown, thanks to his victory in the AWSDO in 1970, won in a dramatic playoff over Tony Jacklin, will not have to qualify here.

HALL OF FAMERS Joe DiMaggio and Otto Graham, the oldest twosome in the $30,000 American Airlines Golf Classic, is also the most consistent team and overdue for a victory.

Tournament chairman Thomas J. Ross Jr. said DiMaggio, 59, and Graham, 52, will be playing as partners for the seventh time in the ninth annual 54-hole football-baseball tournament Jan. 31-Feb. 2 at Canyon Hotel Racquet & Golf Club in Palm Springs.

The worst DiMag and Graham have finished was 10th. They were sixth twice and fourth once. They finished third in 1971 after a five-team playoff for the championship. In 1974, they tied for second.

DiMaggio, still unbelievably popular with the fans, won't settle for consistency. "Otto and I are about due to win this great tournament. This year we're coming out swinging at the fences," Joe warned.

The former greats kid one another during competition. After Graham was out of a hole last year, he said, "I heard you were great under pressure, Joe. Let's see you make that 15-footer for a birdie."

Joe sank the putt and said. "Otto, are you testing me?"

"Not any more," replied Graham.

When DiMag had to miss a pro-am because of the flu, Graham the next day was asked his partner's condition. "Oh, the flu is gone," said Otto, but now he's got a sore back. He's been carrying me all day."

The two stars have won about $20,000, including a car, between them in all the Classics and have donated it all to various charities.

"The championship trophies we'll keep, however," said DiMag.

In three of Jerry Heard's six seasons on the PGA circuit, the solidly built Californian has pocketed more than $100,000.

Just 27, he already has career earnings of $538,445. In 1974, he had his best year ever, winning $145,788. The Visalia, Calif., pro scored his fourth career tour victory, taking the Florida Citrus Open in March, finished second three times and was third twice.

But something is missing and Heard knows precisely what.

"It's just a matter of winning a major tournament and then backing it up with some wins," he said. "I'd like to win that major tournament this year. I've come close several times but it just wasn't to be. Of the four major titles, the U.S. Open and the Masters appeal to me most."

The 1975 tour kicks off with the $150,000 Phoenix Open Thursday and Heard wants to get out of the starting gate quickly.

Tradition favors Vikes, but odds back Steelers

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The oddsmakers have gone against tradition in establishing the Pittsburgh Steelers as three-point favorites over the Minnesota Vikings in next Sunday's Super Bowl IX.

The Steelers, who have never won a league title in their 42-year history, are making their debut in the Super Bowl while Minnesota will be appearing for the third time. Both previous appearances were losses.

And tradition had it that no team appearing in the Super Bowl for the first time has ever beaten one that's been there before.

The situation has come up five times and all five times, the experienced club came out ahead.

Green Bay, which defeated Kansas City in Super Bowl I in January, 1967, was the first club to make a repeat appearance and downed Oakland the following season. The Chiefs made their second appearance in Super Bowl IV and defeated Minnesota and the following year, Baltimore, which had lost to the New York Jets in Super Bowl III, came back to beat Dallas.

The Cowboys' turn came a year later when they blasted Miami in Super Bowl VI and then it was the Dolphins who picked up the tradition the next year, beating Washington in Super Bowl VII.

Last year's game was the first matchup between teams that both had previous Super Bowl experience and again, the more experienced club won. Miami, with two previous title games, beat the Vikings, who were there once before.

The Steelers have only one player, reserve running back Preston Pearson, who has been in a Super Bowl. He played for Baltimore as a return specialist in Super Bowl III. Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll was an assistant coach on that same Baltimore club.

Actually, the oddsmakers have had little success in forecasting Super Bowls. The favorite has won in just four of the eight games. Pittsburgh also is only the second American Conference club to enter the game as a favorite, following Miami last year, though the AFC representative has won five of the last six games.

Green Bay entered Super Bowl I a 13-point favorite over Kansas City and won 35-10. The Packers were listed as 14-point favorites the following year and came out ahead 33-14.

The biggest betting disaster was in Super Bowl III when the Jets were listed as 18-point underdogs and upset Baltimore 16-7. Minnesota was a 13-point favorite the following year and again the AFC club stunned the bettors as Kansas City won 23-7.

Dallas was a one-point favorite in Super Bowl V and lost 16-13 to Baltimore but managed to bounce back the following year, entering the game as five-point favorites and beating Miami easily 24-3.

Washington was a two-point favorite over Miami in Super Bowl VII but the Dolphins kept the experience tradition alive with a 14-7 win. Last year Miami was favored by six points and won 24-7.

The first two Super Bowls only seemed to strengthen the National Football League's claims of superiority over the AFL, which had been formed in 1960 and eventually forced a merger six years later. Vince Lombardi's Packers absolutely dominated Kansas City and Oakland the first two years.

But then came the game that established parity between the former warring factions. Joe Namath, openly scoffing at the huge odds against his club, predicted the Jets would beat Baltimore, then being acclaimed as possibly the finest defensive team of all time. He was right and the merger was finally complete.

Connors plans to be cool

Of course not, says the 22-year-old tennis sensation of 1974.

"It'll be just like any other match," Connors said with the proper amount of conviction.

"The money's bigger but that's the only thing that's different. If I started to think about the money, then I'd be putting pressure on myself."

The former UCLA star, who lost his Australian championship in a four-set final against John Newcombe at Melbourne Jan. 1, pointed out that he didn't get the jitters before he met Ken Rosewall in the finals at Wimbledon and Forest Hills last year. Connors won both championships.

"I wasn't thinking abut the titles, the money or the prestige," he continued. "I was only thinking about winning. You have to put everything else in the back of your mind."

The Connors-Laver winner-take-all $100,000 confrontation is scheduled at Las Vegas' Caesars Palace. Both men are lefthanders. Connors is 14 years younger than his Australian opponent.

"Don't get me wrong," Chris Evert's former boyfriend said. "I'm very excited about this match. It's the first time anybody has ever played for this much money and it's exciting to be one of the first two guys.

"But I can't let the thought of the money overwhelm me. I have to beat Laver first. Then the $100,000 is mine."

Despite his Wimbledon and Forest Hills crowns and a record $285,490 in earnings in 1974, Connors is still a hungry tennis player. Success has only whetted his appetite.

"It was hard to get to the top," said the Belleville, Ill., product. "It'll be harder to stay there. But I didn't work all my life to get where I am to let somebody take it away from me.

"I'm still eager and I still hate to lose. I don't like to lose even a little bit."

Claremont is team to beat in SAL soccer race

By JIM McCONNELL
P-B Staff Writer

"Beat Claremont" must have been the New Years' resolution of San Antonio League soccer coaches.

Claremont High has won the SAL title the past two years and ran through the league slate without a defeat last season. Both years the Wolfpack made it all the way to the CIF finals, so dethroning them will be no easy task.

That task is not going to be any easier this year, as Claremont returns several of last season's starters, including CIF record holder Gesner DoCarmo.

DoCarmo scorched the nets for 46 goals last year to set a CIF mark for most scores in a season, and the Brazilian flash, now a senior, is almost impossible to contain for an entire contest.

DoCarmo's supporting cast is most impressive. Jim Vanzee, who put in 27 goals himself in 1974, is back as is goalie Casey Roberts.

Ton ilight halfback Gregg Kaufman, an all-league pick last year, also returns along with lettermen Kevin Oss and Jerry VanZee.

Add to the already awesome Claremont cast promising newcomers Mark Kaufman, Harvey Macaulley, Chick Purdy and Paul Carroll look improved this time around, and both might challenge for the SAL title with consistent play.

Coach Phil Herrera has the Vikings playing spirited ball at this point. Garey benefits from the return of Peter Manzo, who was the team's MVP in 1974. Top newcomers include Frank and Joe Trejo.

David Segura, the Giants' leading scorer last year, and Edwin Lopez, the team's MVP, return for 1975, along with Mark Hirsch, Mark Cox and Ron Rentz.

Webb coach John Heyes has an inexperienced squad and the Gaels are not expected to make a run at Claremont this season.

However, Heyes does have Tom Hildebrand, Doug McCowan and Paul Richards back from last year and an exciting varsity newcomer in Ernie Contreras.

San Antonio League soccer action begins Wednesday, Jan. 8.

Other local schools are expected to do well in the Inland, Montview and Olympic Leagues.

Chaffey High is among the favorites to capture the Inland League title. Tiger mentor Seiran Stepanian has some fine soccer talent lined up, with top scorer Marvin Fernandez returning along with Gabe Aponte, Nick Sedwick and Jack Castillon.

A TEAM AGAIN — In 1965, Walter Matthau, right and Jack Lemmon teamed up to make "The Fortune Cookie." In 1967 they worked together in "The Odd Couple" and last month their latest movie "The Front Page" (above) was released. Lemmon said in a recent interview "I love working with Walter. There's a built-in chemistry that works for us."

Interviewing the TV interviewer

NEW YORK (UPI) — When you step into Mike Wallace's office at CBS, you expect to see him sharpening a hatchet for his next interview on "60 Minutes."

Instead, Wallace is warm, jovial and bright, like colors of his wife's painting that hangs behind his desk. "He's a pussycat," said one associate at CBS.

Mike Wallace, TV's best and toughest interviewer, is ready to talk. The initial subject, the return of "60 Minutes" Sunday and his chat with G. Gordon Liddy, the silent man of Watergate.

"He's stubborn, brave, a patriot, and an erratic and confused man," said Wallace. "He says he doesn't think there can be a democratic army, and he likes to talk about the German work ethic —Volkswagens are better than Vegas.

Liddy, who is now free pending the outcome of his appeal, has already served 22-months of a six year sentence. For his appearance on "60 Minutes," he refused to discuss anything substantive about Watergate. Nevertheless, Wallace, once called TV's DA, tried to pick Liddy's combination.

"I really didn't expect him to tell me what he wouldn't discuss in court," said Wallace. "But I tried, and he told me he expected me to do it. What the segment will show is really a character sketch of the only man who didn't talk."

Despite Liddy's silence, Wallace, 56, has had his share of headline making revelations.

On "60 Minutes," Paul Meadlo told about Lt. William Calley and the Mylai massacre; Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert (ret.), who alleged his military career was wrecked when he charged the Army with covering up war crimes in Vietnam, was embarassed when his answers conflicted with the testimony of others.

William Carpena of Claremont, free lance, award-winning photographer, is showing an exhibition of his work at Casa Colina Hospital, Pomona.

A hospital volunteer, he has taken numerous photographic assignments for the hospital on a voluntary basis. He became interested in Casa Colina when his son, David, 13, became an outpatient there.

A member of Professional Photographers West and the Royal Photographic Society of Great Britain, Carpena has studied at the New York Institute of Photography; the Fred Archer School of Photography in Los Angeles; the Brooks Institute of Photography, Santa Barbara and the Artography Academy of Photography, North Hollywood.

His works include portraits, art, fashion and architecture and have been shown in various one-man exhibits in the Los Angeles area and as entries in the Professional Photographers West Exhibits.

World's biggest mosaic collection goes on display

The Gilbert Mosaic Collection, one of the most extensive of its kind in the world, will go on exhibit Jan. 14 in the new Decorative Arts Gallery of the Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

The collection, which is being shown publicly for the first time, is composed of over 60 examples of this nearly forgotten art form. The only known comparable mosaic collection is in the Hermitage in Leningrad.

The mosaics, made between the 16th century and the present, range in scale from table tops and chests-on-stands inlaid with "pietre dure" (semi-precious stones) to micro-mosaic boxes and jewelry.

Mosaics are generally classified by material or method of production. The Gilbert Collection contains two types of mosaics, Roman and Florentine. Within the Roman category, the collection focuses on micro-mosaics which are made of small fragments or "tesserai" of colored stones, clay or glass. Florentine mosaics are distinguished from other types in that they are made of marble and "pietre dure."

Mosaic works of this type are generally used as table tops, inlaid plaques on cabinets and walls and as mosaic paintings. The marble and semi-precious stones employed are of a wide variety.

The subject matter in both Roman and Florentine mosaics varies from geometrical designs to still-lifes, mythological scenes, Renaissance or classical motifs taken from the engravings of Piranesi and typical 19th century "genre" subjects."

Among the highlights of this collection are a late 18th Century medallion depicting Romulus and Remus; a mid-19th Century suite of micro-mosaic jewelry composed of a necklace with 12 classical scenes, a pair of bracelets, a center pin and a pair of earrings; an early 19th Century panorama of Rome by Antonio Testa; and a Regency rosewood table incorporating an octagonal mosaic top depicting Hebe, cupbearer of the gods, in the neo-Classical style.

Progress-Bulletin Music, Art, Drama

REGENCY ROSEWOOD — This octagonal Regency rosewood table of early 19th Century England is one of the works from the Gilbert Mosaic Collection which will go on exhibit at the county Museum of Art Jan. 14. The mosaic top depicts Hebe, cup-bearer of the gods, in the neo-classical style. Admission to the gallery is free. The exhibit continues to March 2.

This table, dating from about 1812, was formerly in the Glemham Hall Collection, Suffolk, England.

Monumental silver from the Gilbert Collection is being installed with the mosaic collection. This is one of the most important private collections of Georgian silver in America and features silver and silver-gilt pieces by Paul de Lamerie and Paul Storr. Both collections are on loan from Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gilbert of Los Angeles.

Women

Wednesday Club sets program, luncheon

For the winter guest day of the Wednesday Afternoon Club of San Dimas Mr. and Mrs. Felix Giroux will present a slide commentary program, "Three Months in Belo Horizonte, Brazil."

Hostesses for the 1 p.m. luncheon on Wednesday at Griswold's Indian Hill Inn will be Mrs. B. R. Day, Mrs. James Balthrope, Mrs. Richard Harbin and Mrs. Minnie Nelson.

The slides will depict views of Belo Horizonte, a city of 1½ million people and sites of interest within a 100-mile radius of Belo Horizonte. This will include churches, universities, colonial towns, mining towns and industries. Mrs. Giroux will present the woman's view of Brazilian life.

Last April Mr. and Mrs. Giroux of La Verne flew to Belo Horizonte where Mr. Giroux advised the ACESITA Steel Company for three months on developing industrial training programs and technical recruiting programs.

After 27 years at Kaiser Steel Corporation in Fontana, Mr. Giroux retired as personnel department supervisor. He then volunteered his services to the American International Executive Service Corps, New York City, an organization of 8,000 retired executives in this country who volunteer for a specific project in the developing countries. The volunteer program is financed partially by A.I.D. and by private American funds and is balanced by donations in private sectors in foreign countries.

DESIGNS FOR HAND KNITTING

The ready-to-wear market is currently full of big, bulky sweaters. Next fall there will be an even stronger emphasis on big, oversized, bulky sweaters. To capture this trend a big, bulky, coaty, outerwear sweater with accessories has been designed in a first instruction booklet by Viola Sylbert for a leading yarn manufacturer. The sweater and accessories, left, and soft mohair look of today in scarves and hats, are among designs offered.

Women graduates of '75

Employment looks up

NEW YORK (UPI) — What can a woman college graduate expect in the way of a job offer in 1975?

Something good, probably — even with the downturn generally in employment opportunities.

Northwestern University's 29th annual Endicott Report on National Employment Trends shows women college graduates with bachelor degrees that they can expect to find a few more jobs open to them in business and industry in 1975 than in 1974.

Of these, 126 indicated they plan to hire an average of seven per cent more college women in 1975 —2,139 as against 1,998 from 1974 graduating classes.

Male college graduates with bachelor's degrees can expect about one per cent more jobs.

The companies participating in the survey said employment of women graduates in 1975 will equal 19 per cent of the number of men graduates planned to be hired —11,186 with bachelor degrees.

The companies hope to be able to hire 627 women in general business. In other fields, some 475 jobs are indicated in accounting, 266 in liberal arts, 289 in data processing and mathematics, 110 in engineering, 119 in marketing and retailing, 55 in science and 56 in other fields.

The survey, as any one involving a scientific crosssection, can be projected to show the nationwide situation.

For example, if the companies in the survey showed, as they did, a seven per cent increase in jobs for women, it is pretty safe to say that probably will be the trend at most companies.

Other points made in the report:

Average starting monthly salaries for women range from a high of $1,075 in engineering to a low of $784 for liberal arts graduates;

Entry level salaries for men range from $1,062 a month in engineering to $776 in liberal arts for bachelor's degree holders;

In three fields —engineering, general business, liberal arts — women's average salaries will be slightly higher than men's average salaries in 1975. Most other fields show entry-level averages for women only slightly below those for men.

The Endicott report also focused on the turnover rates for male and female college graduates. Since turnover is not regularly calculated in many companies, only 76 of the surveyed firms responded to the question.

The results show a median percentage of loss for women during the first three years of employment at 36 per cent.

The median rate of loss for men in engineering and other technical fields was 23 per cent and for men in business administration and other nontechnical fields it was 33 per cent.

Endicott believes that many women are more uncertain than men about what they want to do in business and often secure jobs that they later come to dislike.

In addition, he noted that women often are less able to control their personal reasons for having or keeping a job.

For example, a married woman may not be able to accept a transfer because her husband can't or won't be able to move and she may leave the company.

There was a reflection of women's lib in the report. To wit:

Endicott believes the traditional reasons of childbirth and child rearing are becoming less influential as many companies come to treat pregnancy as an extended leave of absence rather than a termination with the company.

Lifestyle of mugger

Victim needs data

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — The eyes of a mugger may be upon you when you count money at the bank or in a supermarket after getting a check cashed.

He watches through the big glass window or from a good observation point inside the bank or store.

If you're to contribute to his $20,000 a year tax-free income, you'll have the most attractive amount of cash he's seen so far that day.

And that day, if it's typical, he'll mug three times.

These points about the lifestyle of a mugger were made in an interview with James Willwerth, who spent over four months with one.

Willwerth, an author, doesn't know the mugger's name, so he called his book about the man "Jones: Portrait of a Mugger" (Evans).

Jones is a former choir boy, street fighter, drug addict, drug dealer, and prison inmate, in that order. He started mugging at 15 to keep up a $200-a-day drug habit.

At 22, Jones would like to turn to other work but, with his prison record, most jobs are closed. He gave Willwerth the impression he's sworn off mugging but Willwerth isn't sure.

About how Jones mugs, let's pick up the scene with you counting money after getting a check cashed in a bank or supermarket.

When you emerge, Jones will appear from out of nowhere, walking beside you, asking the time or for directions.

You pause and look at your watch or otherwise treat him as an honest inquirer. He engages you in little conversation but keeps walking with you.

"By this time, he has his eye on the doorway or building he's going to shove you against at knifepoint," Willwerth said. "Elapsed time —maybe 20 seconds.

"All the time a mugger needs is 30 seconds."

He puts his hand on your shoulder, turns you toward him, shoves you against the doorway or building and has his knife against the jugular vein in your neck.

"Your money," he says, with a frantic edge to the words.

The mugger is in a high state of excitement. He is ready to fight for his life, if necessary, and for his future outside prison.

If you scream or resist, he'll either hit you on the head with the weighted handle of his knife or knock your feet out from under you.

If this won't stop you, the mugger will cut you. He doesn't like doing that. But he has no choice if you continue to resist him.

If you figure that karate or judo will help, forget it.

"The mugger has been in street fights since the age of eight," Willwerth said. "You won't stand a chance against him."

"The important thing to remember ... is that the mugger is in such a state of fear and torment that he's like a ticking bomb. You can set him off."

"If you act a little nervous, the mugger figures you've got something to lose," Willwerth said.

"Or if you're too well dressed for a neighborhood, he gets the idea you've probably got a bundle of cash."

Some tips from Willwerth on protecting yourself:

—If a gang of youths follows you, cross the street. If the gang crosses, run. You've probably been sized up for a group mugging.

—Don't break stride if someone suddenly joins you on the sidewalk and seems to walk step by step with you while asking a question. Breaking stride will give the mugger enough time to get control. The best course: walk faster, if possible, and ignore the questions.

Two points about Jones:

—When he has you backed into a doorway or against a wall he will not hurt you if you don't fight.

—He has worries. "My work is dangerous. But it's the only work open to me."

A postscript from Willwerth:

"I came to see Jones as a human being and as a friend. Still, it is not enough that he happens to be likable.

"He is a dangerous and unstable man."

What's Going On At Griswold's

The BOILER ROOM is getting its share of attention. NBC-TV will be filming a story on Pomona College campus the week of January 6th and 11th and have chosen the BOILER ROOM as the setting for part of it. The producers are entranced with the decor, the live action, and the type of entertainment. Holden and Moubry are holding forth on Fridays and Saturdays. OCCURRENCE AT OWL CREEK will be back Tuesday thru Thursday nights beginning January 14. We've had more requests for this group than any other we've ever booked.

The problems of maintenance men at Griswold's are fantastic — everything from getting a lady out of a bathroom in the motel to plugging up telephone conduits which bring GALLONS of rain water into the bakery or restaurants during storms. Only rough and rugged men can handle the myriad of problems in this department.

Ask Dr. Brothers

New baby's home

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I've been having a lot of mother-in-law trouble lately and because of this and also because of my husband's demands on my time, I've been under a great deal of tension. Before I got married and had my baby I worked in an advertising agency so I'm used to tension, but what disturbs me now is that try as I may, I can't seem to keep my anxieties to myself. My baby always seems to sense my problems and when she does, she doesn't sleep or eat well.

I know it probably sounds ridiculous but the scenes my husband has been making since the arrival of our baby makes me think he's sorry we had the child. He wanted me to breast-feed the child but when I do, he invariably starts some argument unrelated to anything other than his own bad temper. Between his mother's advice and my husband's bad moods I'd just like to run away from them all and take my baby with me.—C.R.

Dear C.R.: Be patient a bit longer and you'll probably lose your desire to leave. It sounds as if your husband is suffering from a mild case of jealousy over your newborn child. Some men; especially those who are insecure and immature, feel a sense of rejection at the birth of their first child. In many cases, this type of man enjoyed the role of being the most wanted in the household and may even have felt that he could be both child and husband. He feels that a child is taking his place in his wife's affections and that this new arrival is getting all the attention and love that used to be devoted to him.

Once this type of man identifies himself with the child, pride in his offspring replaces his feelings of jealousy and envy. Wives can help their husbands by allowing them to share in the baby's care.

Studies show that some babies refused to eat when fed by mothers who were anxious and in conflict, yet they accepted the same food when it was fed to them by someone who was calm and relaxed. Certainly, a child's response to feeding is greatly influenced by the emotional tone of the person who is holding him and feeding him. Since you're having problems with your mother-in-law and your husband, try to politely suggest that when you feed your baby, you'd like to be alone with the infant until the situation is more conducive to peace and inner harmony.

I'm sure your husband's mother means well and that her primary concern is for her grandchild. Your child is fortunate to have a grandparent and if you can improve your relationship with your mother-in-law both you and your child will benefit from what she can give you in warmth, affection and even guidance. This doesn't mean that it's necessary for you to accept and respect each other as individuals and if you can communicate, without hurting her feeling, your relationship could grow to be very rewarding for all concerned.

One immediate way to help you and your baby relax is to try the old-fashioned rocking chair. Pediatrician Frederic Burke of Georgetown University feels the rocking chair should be restored in homes for mothers rearing babies. It helps relax both the mother and child and the act of rocking involves a basic rhythm that encourages the mother to dissolve her own tensions. No one rock in a hurry, he points out. He has observed that where there are rockers in the home, colic is reduced. Many cases of colic are a manifestation of the infant's insecurity. A rocker, which is great for relaxing, might get your husband used to holding and rocking the baby.

Housing industry recovery forecast

That is the forecast of the National Association of Realtors' department of economics and research in its report on the "Real Estate Outlook for 1975."

Existing home sales will stir from the doldrums but not before encountering further difficulties, states the report. "During the first quarter of 1975, the much heralded improvement in mortgage credit will be overshadowed by a wave of consumer caution."

Fearful of unemployment, potential buyers will be reluctant to assume the greater mortgage debt associated with moving up the housing ladder while workers who are gainfully employed will be less willing to strike out for new locations and new opportunities, it added.

An improved mortgage market situation, coupled with lower interest rates — and a generally lower rate of inflation — should begin to improve existing home sales in early spring and new home construction in the summer, officials predict.

Initially, however, buyers and builders will not benefit fully from a flow of funds back into thrift institutions. Savings and loan associations, the nation's prime mortgage lenders, will be concerned first with reducing the large debt incurred in borrowing from Federal Home Loan Banks, they added.

One encouraging note for those who will be in the housing market during 1975: "During the coming year, mortgage interest rates will descent to the eight per cent level. Reductions much below this must wait until inflation has been effectively blunted and thrift institutions get out from under the high-cost certificates of deposit to which they are committed," the report notes.

But how much of an improvement will there be in the 1975 housing picture? The Department of Economics and Research believes that only "modest gains" in sales will be achieved over the 1974 level for both existing and new homes.

The rental market picture, however, will continue in directions begun in 1974, the department predicts. "The dismal level of multi-family starts experienced during 1974 makes it certain that completions will continue to drop throughout 1975 and into 1976."

Preliminary data for November show multi-family starts at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 206,000 units. This is a decrease of 72 per cent from November of last year and an 83 per cent drop from the record level established in February, 1972, the department notes.

This drop in rental unit starts and completions is expected to have an effect upon rents charged.

"Multi-family rental vacancies, which have been edging upward since 1970, will stabilize and begin to decline during 1975. Therefore, the competition for existing units will be keen, giving rise to additional pressures for rent increases," the report states.

Another effect of the decreasing availability of rental units — and increasing rents — will be a slowing down in the conversion of existing rental units to condominiums, and a diversion of new units originally intended for condominium ownership into the rental market.

The same result will be seen in the construction of new single-family homes, but for different reasons. "The substantial inventory of 400,000 unsold new homes carried into 1975 will hang heavy on the market and work against an early resurgence in single-family starts," the department says.

"In general, the recovery (in new home construction) will be lackluster, and while the pace of housing production will pick up somewhat towards year's end, it will not be sufficient to greatly reduce the high unemployment rates (more than double the national average) which have characterized the homebuilding industry," the report states.

The department predicts that when 1975 ends ground will have been broken on just 1.4 million new residential units, compared to more than 2 million each year from 1971-73.

However, while the outlook for 1975 is cloudy at best, the longer-term forecast is promising, the department reports.

"Once normal supply and demand relationships are restored, the market will put forth increased levels of housing production to provide for replacement of substandard units and to accommodate the rising rate of household formation expected during the remainder of the decade.

"The fastest growing segment of the population pyramid will be in the 25 to 35 age group. Housing demand by this group always has been strong and is a positive factor in the outlook for both the existing and new home market," the department notes.

Century 21 will expand into Canada

The Century 21 Real Estate Corp. has completed arrangements for expanding into Canada and has reached a milestone in its U.S. operations by assigning the location for its 1,000th brokerage office.

Projections are for 10,000 Century 21 offices in the U.S. within five years, said Art Bartlett, president. Several Century 21 offices are located in the valley.

In less than three years after the first Century 21 offices were introduced, brokers are involved in an average of more than $4.5 million in gross sales daily in the nation, he added.

The franchised real estate organization was formed to give brokers the best of two worlds. These are independent ownership and operation with big company programs designed to help them compete more effectively in a rapidly changing industry, said Bartlett.

"The real estate industry has become more competitive because of the development of large real estate chains and of the interest large retail operations have shown in real estate sales."

By joining Century 21, brokers gain a heavily advertised big name identity; recruitment and training of personnel; cooperative multi-media advertising in local markets on a scale the average broker can't afford on his own; professionally researched and designed sales aids; management seminars; motivational programs such as a national convention; and a nationwide relocation service.

Third unit started in Upland

Lewis Homes has begun construction of the third unit of its Prestige Series development in Upland.

The 34 homes, valued at $1.75 million, will be located at San Antonio Avenue and 22nd Street. The site was chosen because of its excellent view of both the mountains and valley and the area's schools and parks, said officials.

The one and two story homes will feature four bedrooms and three bathrooms. With six different floor plans and 13 exterior elevations, the development will have the look of a community of custom built homes, they added.

The houses will include air conditioning, shake roofs, three car garages, and carpeting in the living rooms, dining rooms, all bedrooms and hallways.

Other features are custom built fireplaces, formal dining rooms and ceramic tile entryways. Kitchens have built-in ranges, self-cleaning ovens, dishwashers, large pantries and cabinets, hot water dispensers and ceramic tile counter tops.

In addition, the homes will offer up to 2,700 square feet of living area.

Buyers are offered FHA, VA, Cal Vet and conventional financing plans. Interest rates as low as eight per cent are available to qualified buyers.

The homes should be ready for occupancy by early spring. For more information on these homes, persons may go to the model homes in the development's second unit. These are located on Coolcrest Avenue at 21st Street. Or prospective buyers may phone 985-9118.

Lewis Homes has two other subdivisions located in Upland. The Classic Series is located on 14th Street a block west of Mountain Avenue. Model homes are now offered for sale.

The third project is at San Antonio Avenue and 15th Street where homes have reached the roofing stage.

Coffee from Ethiopia

The habit of drinking coffee appears to have originated in Ethiopia and spread from there. In Arab territories it was so popular it was called "the wine of Islam" and in some languages was given the name for wine.

Two associates get real estate awards

McCasland has been associated with Red Carpet, Realtors, in Pomona for two years. During this time he has earned the "top listing salesman" award twice for the San Gabriel and Pomona valleys.

Earlier this year, he was selected as both "top salesman" and "top listing salesman" for the entire Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

McCasland, a graduate of Mark Keppel High School in Alhambra, is enrolled at Cal Poly. His major is marketing-business administration.

Mrs. Burdick has been associated with the Rosa Schwartz Realty Co. for three years. She recently fulfilled the requirements for her broker's license and will receive this at Citrus College.

She and her husband, Howard, have resided in Claremont for 11 years. They have three grown children.

Dear Santa:
You forgot to remember Grandmother this Christmas. We included her name on our list and in our prayers. We asked you to bring someone nice to live with her in her mobile home in Montclair. Someone who doesn't smoke, drink, or swear. Someone who hasn't forgotten how to laugh and that would be good company for her. She's so easy to love, Santa. She's a young 75 she's not an invalid; she just doesn't get around like she use to since she had a stroke a couple of years ago. She needs help with cooking and keeping the trailer straightened up, but mostly, she needs warm friendship. Grandmother has been living with my aunts (Mom and Dad both work) but Grandmother wants so to move back to her own home. She isn't rich, Santa. She can only afford $160 a month, plus room and board. Would you see what you can do, Santa? You can call Mom after 5:30 in the evenings, Monday through Friday at 624-9347.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — When attempting to change a washer in a kitchen faucet, I could not remove the screw holding the handle because of sediment build-up. I poured some vinegar over the screw, left it to work for a while and this freed the screw. — BOB.

DEAR POLLY — Here's a clip-and-save pointer: We have "recycled" a small swimming pool our daughter has outgrown. We place just a few inches of water in it and our dog has her very own pool. She just loves this! — CHARLOTTE.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — To prevent arguments about what clothes belong to whom I put two markers in the closet my sister and I share. Circles were cut in the center of two squares of stiff cardboard and a slit made in each from the circle to the edge of the board so they could be slipped over the rod. My sister's name is on one and mine on the other. Our clothes hang behind our names. — DONNA.

DEAR POLLY — I use an old toothbrush to keep my fuzzy house slippers looking neat, as they do get so messy looking. This brush is also good for smoothing furry stuffed toys. — NANCY.

DEAR POLLY — Recently I shortened a long dress I had worn to a prom and discovered the material cut off the bottom made a lovely matching short shawl. It was quite easy to make a drawstring cape to wear with the dress. — DEBBIE.

DEAR POLLY — Any dish or bowl can be turned into an infant's spillproof dish by using those round suction discs sold in variety stores for holding soap to the shower or sink. Dampen the disc, press on the bottom of the bowl and then press the bowl to the table or high chair tray. — JUNE.

DEAR POLLY — My mom saves old nylons, especially those with elastic tops. She cuts off the feet. When the weather is bad, she puts them on over our boots and slacks. They come up to our knees. No snow gets in our boots and no mud on our legs while playing. They wash and dry quickly. — MIKE.

DEAR POLLY — I use a well-known brand of liquid hair spray that you spray on manually (not the aerosol type). To prevent possible leaking in luggage I pack it in one of those stacked potato chip cans. Leave the paper liner in to prevent rattling. There's room for a small comb and a few hair clips, too. — FAYOLA.

1975 Album

The new 1975 Needle Work Album is now available. It is filled with dozens of designs in all types of needlework. Also included are directions for making 12 items — the Filet Madonna Panel shown is only one; plus a free-pattern coupon. Price: $1.00 a copy.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

DAN KEATING OF OAK LAWN, IL, ASKS:

"WHAT CAUSES A SONIC BOOM?"

WHEN AN AIRPLANE FLIES AT ORDINARY SPEEDS, IT CAUSES WAVES IN THE AIR WHICH MOVE AHEAD OF IT AT THE SPEED OF SOUND. A SONIC BOOM OCCURS WHEN A PLANE CROSSES THE SOUND BARRIER. AT THE SPEED OF SOUND THE PLANE CATCHES UP WITH THE WAVES OF AIR WHICH PILE UP IN FRONT OF THE PLANE. AS THE PILED-UP AIR FANS OUT AWAY FROM THE PLANE IT FORMS A POWERFUL SHOCK WAVE. WHEN THE SHOCK WAVE TRAVELS DOWN TO THE GROUND YOU HEAR A THUNDER-LIKE SOUND, A SONIC BOOM!

Send No Money Now—We'll Bill You Later

NATIONAL HOME LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY

Art Linkletter, is a member of the Board of Directors and has a financial interest in the Company.

"Hospital and Surgery Bills will cost even more this year."

Art Linkletter

This steady rise in medical costs increases the need for supplemental protection.

There are few things that touch us more deeply than when the doctor tells us that someone we love will be hospitalized and needs an operation.

Most of us have had it happen . . . to a child, a wife, a mother or a father. Often it's a friend or neighbor we hold dear.

Yet each time we're shocked again.

Even though we know how common it is, without insurance we're never prepared emotionally . . . and rarely are we ready to handle the terrible cost!

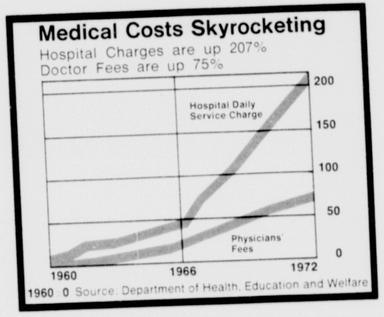
We usually depend on our health insurance to see us through, yet few of us realize until it's too late that basic health insurance doesn't usually cover all the bills for an operation.

As a result some people have to go into debt to meet the high cost of an operation today!

The suffering and heartache we feel when someone we love has surgery is bad enough. We don't need the fear of big bills, too.

That's why you may need this National Home plan that pays from $10.00 to $1,000.00 for surgery according to the Surgical Schedule in policy . . . regardless of benefits from any other company's insurance you have.

Read on; you'll be glad you did. ▶



Surgical bills can be the most expensive part of going to the hospital.

Anyone who's been through surgery lately will probably tell you about the high cost of hospitalization.

It's not surprising!

The cost of all medical care has gone up over 200% in the past ten years, and medical bills alone are up 75%, as the chart above shows.

Think what that means. The medical expenses from an operation that may have cost $500.00 in 1963 would probably cost as much as $1,535.00 today!

Your basic health insurance may not pay the entire surgery bill. But ten years ago you could probably afford to pay what your policy didn't cover. Today, however, it's a totally different story!

Inflation has so increased the cost of medical care that what your plan may not pay is far more expensive than even a few years ago!

Your basic insurance plan may leave you with big bills to pay out of your own pocket!

Have you ever read your basic health plan, cover to cover? Do you know that many plans have a "surgical schedule" that probably doesn't cover the entire cost of an operation?

Not only that, some plans have deductibles of $50.00 to as much as $250.00 that you must pay before any benefits are payable. And even then, you may have to pay 20% of the rest of the bill!

In some cases, when an operation takes place in your physician's office, you may not receive anything.

Surgery costs may force you to dig into your savings. And if that's not bad enough, you may even have to try to borrow money from a relative, a friend, a bank, or any place you can get it.

SURGICARE pays from $10.00 to $1,000.00 for any covered operation

Benefits are paid based upon the surgical schedule stated in your policy when you or a covered family member has an operation. Benefits are paid for surgery performed in the doctor's office. And, it is all paid regardless of any other company's insurance.

When more than one operation is performed at the same time in different operative fields, we pay for the one that has the highest benefit amount plus 50% of the scheduled benefit for all others.

You may have to depend largely on yourself!

And maybe you haven't considered that the high price of an operation may be only the beginning! As expensive as surgery is, it's just the first step in getting well.

You probably belong to some sort of group plan. Most people do. But if you think such plans pay all medical bills, you're probably in for a surprise.

That's why you need the additional protection of this National Home plan. Because we pay benefits that you can use to help pay any of the expenses an operation can cause.

SURGICARE

helps protect you and your loved ones against...

Covered operations resulting from accidents like:

Falls	Boat Mishaps	Fractured Hip	Fracture
Burns	Shooting	Cuts	Spinal Injury
Automobile Accidents	Knifing	Choking	Scalds
	Explosions		Wounds

Gall Bladder	Kidney Stones	Tumor	Hemorrhoidectomy
Appendicitis	Tracheotomy	Hernia	Transplants
Brain Surgery	Mastoid	Bowel	Skin Grafts
Amputation	Embolism	Biopsy	Abdominal Surgery
Eye Surgery	Lung Removal	Mastectomy	Tonsils

We've created these examples to show how SURGICARE can help fill the needs of many people.

Suppose an office worker, has a group plan that pays 80% of surgeon's fees, leaving her with 20% to pay. That's why she needs National Home's SURGICARE. If, for example, she has to go into the hospital to have her gall-bladder removed, SURGICARE pays $300.00. Her company plan pays some benefits, but it's the benefits from SURGICARE that may keep her from having to dig into her savings!

Suppose a man owns his own business. He knows that if someone in his family goes to the hospital he would lose substantial income or even lose a good part of his savings. Sure, he already has a plan, but it may fall short of the protection he needs. If, for instance, his little girl has to go into the hospital for an emergency appendectomy SURGICARE pays $200.00. He will thank the day he enrolls in SURGICARE.

And we pay regardless of Medicare! Here is an example of a retired man who needs extra protection to help pay the bills Medicare doesn't pay. The deductible and 20% of surgeon fees is just too much for him. That's why he needs SURGICARE. If his wife has a hysterectomy we pay $300.00. SURGICARE can help give them the security they need . . . and the peace of mind they are looking for!

1.	Tonsillectomy or removal of adenoids—or both	$ 70.00
2.	Mastectomy (radical removal of breasts)	$ 500.00
3.	Appendectomy	$ 200.00
4.	Slipped disc	$ 450.00
5.	Heart surgery (repair of Myocardial Aneurysm)	$1,000.00
6.	Hernia	$ 180.00
7.	Hysterectomy	$ 300.00
8.	Thigh bone fracture	$ 250.00
9.	Dislocation of shoulder, elbow, knee or ankle	$ 250.00
10.	Gall Bladder	$ 300.00
11.	Thyroid removal—Goiter	$ 350.00
12.	Fracture of nose	$ 30.00
13.	Removal of Cataract (Lens Extraction)	$ 400.00
14.	Cornea transplant	$ 500.00
15.	Fracture of arm, collar bone or shoulder blade	$ 70.00
16.	Removal of nasal polyp	$ 100.00
17.	Removal of kidney stones	$ 100.00
18.	Fracture of kneecap	$ 120.00
19.	Lung removal	$ 500.00
20.	Removal of spleen	$ 300.00
21.	Removal of stomach	$ 500.00
22.	Repair of larynx or trachea	$ 500.00
23.	Excision of hemorrhoids	$ 100.00
24.	Removal of pilonidal cyst	$ 150.00
25.	Incision of a tendon	$ 100.00
26.	Removal of pancreas	$ 700.00

These are just a few of the many types of operations listed in your policy. And we pay from $10.00 to $1,000.00 benefits for every covered operation. Even if it is not listed in your policy, we'll pay benefits based on the time and difficulty of the operation as related to the amount specified for a comparable listed operation.

Add this "Optional Hospital Benefit" $900.00 a month ($30.00 a day) from the very first day you are hospitalized for any covered accident or illness . . . for as long as you stay

The price of surgery can be shocking. But remember how expensive all the other costs of hospitalization can be! And your basic plan may not cover all the regular bills when you are hospitalized. The part you have to pay could cost you a fortune.

That's why we've offered this "Optional Hospital Benefit"—it entitles you to benefits for every day you're hospitalized for any covered accident or illness. And, unless, of course, you request otherwise, benefits are paid direct to you.

What the "Optional Hospital Benefit" pays—

in hospital benefits—when under 65. Coverage starts the very first day of hospitalization for any covered accident or illness and continues for as long as you stay, no matter how long that may be. And remember, there is no reduction in benefits because of age.

■ $900.00 a month ($30.00 a day)

when your child is hospitalized (if you have Coverage for Children); benefits begin the first day for any covered accident or illness and continue for the entire stay.

Today's hospitals are full of people who felt fine just a short time ago. Why gamble on your future when you can make your whole family and your savings more secure with National Home's "Optional Hospital Benefit."

65 or over? You can also get Hospitalization Benefits. Just check the box above the Enrollment Form. We'll send you free information immediately.

—These are the exclusions—

- Any illness, disease or physical condition originating during the one year period before the policy went into effect. These conditions are any for which medical advice or treatment was given or for which distinct symptoms were evident. (These pre-existing conditions are not covered until the policy has been in force for one year.)
- War injuries or losses sustained through any act of war.

CONSUMER Renewal and Rate Change Provisions

A renewable for life clause is in each of these plans. It guarantees that as long as you pay your premiums, we cannot cancel your protection for any reason whatsoever.

Once you have enrolled in this plan from National Home Life Assurance Company, your rate can be increased individually only if there is a rate increase on all our policies of this class in your state.

It cannot be increased because of how much or how often you receive benefits from us—or because of your advanced age. We will issue you only one policy of this class.

What's more, the regular monthly renewal premium shown (for age at time of enrollment) does not automatically increase as you pass from one age bracket to the next.

Act Now! Without Obligation!

It's easy to enroll. Just fill in the enrollment form, and be sure to check the box if you want "Optional Hospital Benefits." Mail the enrollment form in the enclosed prepaid envelope. That's all there is to it. Send no money now—we will bill you later.

When you get your policy, look it over carefully. If you like it, pay the first month's premium. If you decide not to send in your dollar you will not have coverage and there is no further obligation.

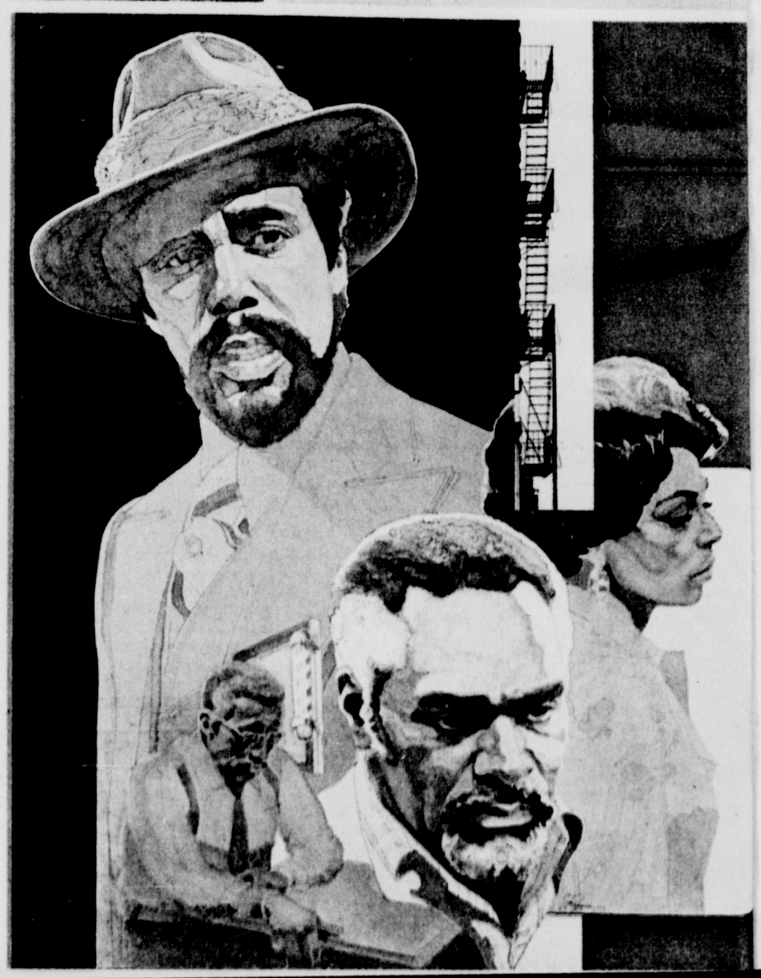
'NEW MONTE CRISTO'

Probably one of the most frequently filmed stories in the world, "The Count of Monte Cristo," by Alexander Dumas, gets another new treatment—this time as a two-hour Bell System Family Theatre presentation on NBC, Friday from 8 to 10PM. Filmed on location all over Italy, the special stars Richard Chamberlain as Edmond Dantes; Taryn Power (daughter of Tyrone Power) as Valentine, the daughter of the evil DeVillefort, who has Dantes imprisoned; Louis Jourdan as Devillefort; Trevor Howard is the Abbe Faria; Kate Nelligan portrays Mercedes; Donald Pleasence is Danglars; and Tony Curtis portrays Mondego.



ABC THEATRE

Douglas Turner Ward, Godfrey Cambridge, Robert Hooks, Glynn Turman and Rosalind Cash star in "Ceremonies in Dark Old Men," an ABC Theatre presentation Monday from 9 to 11PM. Written by Lonne Elder III, the special is a production of the Negro Ensemble Company, America's foremost black theatre group. The story tells the ironic tale of an aging ex-vaudevillian father, and his three grown children, trying to improve their lives in the best way they can—be it in or out of the system. The Negro Ensemble Company was formed in 1967 by playwright-actor Douglas Turner Ward, theatrical manager Gerald S. Krone and producer-actor Robert Hooks. Their concept was to intertwine an extensive training program with a professional theatre designed for the production of plays relevant to black life. During the years since its inception, the NEC has been extremely successful, and one of their most recent productions was "The River Niger," which enjoyed a successful run on Broadway and here in Los Angeles.

BARBARA EDEN IN 'SWITCH'

Barbara Eden is one of the very few actress-singers who can alternate back and forth between dramatic television movies and musical variety shows and display prowess in each field. Barbara stars in "Let's Switch", the ABC Tuesday Movie of the Week at 8:30PM, which was produced by Universal Studios. "Let's Switch" is a comedy in which Barbara portrays a girl who decides to switch life roles with a femme friend. The musical side of versatile Barbara was seen on the Sesame Street Special, "Out to Lunch", which aired recently on ABC, and she will demonstrate her vocal ability again when she guests on the new Tony Orlando & Dawn Show over CBS at the end of January.

Barbara's recent dramatic appearance on "Stranger Within", another ABC Movie of the Week, earned for her not only excellent reviews from the critics but also a top rating. She has starred in quite a number of top-rated network motion pictures, including "The Feminist and the Fuzz" and "Guess Who's Sleeping in My Bed?" for ABC, "A Howling in the Woods" for NBC and "The Woman Hunter" for CBS.

Barbara enjoys both film and live audiences. Each year, in addition to her TV films and variety shows, she performs before the public in both summer stock and in the nation's leading supper clubs. This gives her an opportunity to "keep in touch with the audience". These engagements, together with concert appearances, Keep Barbara enormously busy. Having brought the beguiling Jeannie to television for five years in NBC-TV's I Dream of Jeannie series, Barbara looks back at her "magic lady" with affection.

'2000 YEAR OLD MAN'

"The 2000 Year Old Man," an animated 30-minute special created and, written by, and with the voices of, Carl Reiner and Mel Brooks, airs as a CBS Special, Saturday (Jan. 11) at 8:30PM. Produced and directed by Leo Salkin, "The 2000 Year Old Man" is based on the popular Reiner-Brooks recordings of the early 1960s in which Reiner took the role of an interviewer questioning Brooks, who portrayed a man claiming to have lived for 2000 years. Reiner and Brooks reprise the roles in the animated special.

Reiner, who has scored in every facet of television, stage and motion picture production, is the recipient of eleven Emmy Awards from the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. Among his accomplishments, Reiner was creator-writer-producer of the original Dick Van Dyke Show, one of television's biggest comedy successes during its run on CBS.

Brooks is equally at home in all phases of show business. He has won two Oscars from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences and was nominated for an Emmy in 1967.

COVER CLOSE-UP

'AM AMERICA'

"AM America," as a dictionary might put it, is a new way to go, an alternative, a refreshment, an entertainment-news program with the emphasis on features studded with celebrities. "AM America," premiering Monday, will be seen each weekday morning from 7 to 9AM. It is the first entry into early morning programming by ABC and it is dedicated to the prospect of giving the early bird viewer a broader insight into the world that surrounds him before he plunges head-on into his work-a-day schedule.

Host Bill Beutel and co-host Stephanie Edwards will be headquartered in New York and Peter Jennings will be co-host based in Washington, D.C., and he will anchor six-minute newscasts at the beginning of each hour and three-minute newscasts following the half-hour mark of each program. Jennings will also interview live the important newsmakers of the day. Additionally, a bevy of noted personalities will make frequent contributory appearances such as former New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, who will appear about once a week, often from other cities, to comment on urban issues and problems; Sen. Sam Ervin and former U.S. Attorney General Elliot Richardson will appear once every other week, commenting on government and politics. Author Studs Terkel has also been signed to develop features based on his book, "Working."

Bill Beutel, Cleveland-born, Dartmouth-educated, served as a correspondent for ABC News in Europe, serving as Bureau Chief in London and covering such major stories as the fighting in Northern Ireland and the crisis in Biafra. He is currently co-anchorman for Eyewitness News at WABC-TV, New York's No. 1 rated news show and anchorman for the Sunday Night Edition of the ABC Weekend News on the ABC Television Network.

Stephanie Edwards is a native of Minnesota where she studied at the University of Minnesota before launching her career as an actress and musician (piano, trombone). She has appeared in two motion pictures, "Stand Up and Be Counted" and "Maurie," co-starring in the latter. Miss Edwards has appeared on a number of prime-time television shows, including Marcus Welby, M.D. and Love American Style. Since February, 1971, Miss Edwards has been co-host of Ralph Story's AM, a popular morning series on KABC-TV, Los Angeles. Mr. Story will serve as West Coast correspondent for the new series.

Peter Jennings leaves his post as ABC News Bureau Chief in Beirut for his new "AM America" position. Jennings served as anchorman of the ABC evening news from 1964 through 1968 when he requested and returned to the field as a national correspondent. His assignments ranged throughout Europe and Asia, covering events in Vietnam, the Soviet Union, India, Japan, Thailand, England, France and Italy. Jennings received the National Headliners Award for his coverage of the Bangladesh conflict, when he and his crew were among the first foreign journalists to be admitted to the area. Due to his knowledge of the Middle East and its leaders, he was sent to Beirut, Lebanon, to establish the ABC News Bureau. He has numerous documentary production credits including "Sadat: Action Biography" which aired recently on ABC.

Senior Producer Jules Power explains the intent of "AM America thusly: "What we are going to do is recognize what America is all about these days and then we're going to do the best feature-type show to explain it. Our approach to morning programming will be quicker-paced and will offer a greater diversity of short features on subjects ranging from government to pets to gardening. We aren't going to bump heads with other morning shows because in style and content we will be different." In regard to Sen. Ervin and Elliot Richardson, Power pointed out: "Wherever possible, it's going to be a 'Walk With Sam Ervin' or a 'Conversation with Elliot Richardson' on remote situations due the recent major advances in TV camera technology."

Power brings 20 years experience as producer, writer, and director to his new post which was highlighted by his nine years as the executive producer of the multi-award winner ABC News' "Discovery." The series won an Emmy, three Thomas Alva Edison Awards, The National Conference of Christians and Jews Brotherhood Award, and many others.

Riding herd over the entire "AM America" concept since its inception has been Dennis E. Doty, Director of Morning Program Development, ABC Entertainment.

Advice to Young Mothers: How Much Time Does Baby Need?

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR KATHRYN CROSBY

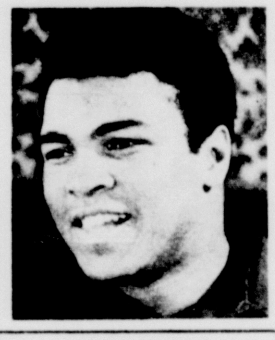
Why has your marriage lasted so long when most other Hollywood marriages fail?—G. Burney, Sacramento, Calif.

● I married a superman who's a constant challenge to me. Everything Bing undertakes comes easily to him. He wants very little from life and has to be coaxed to work. I want to work, and things come hard for me. So I suppose we complement each other, which means life is never dull. Boredom is the greatest marriage killer. Bing is easy to please, understands my "insanities," and I, on the other hand, am very accepting of his continual "wanderlust."

FOR FREDA PAYNE

You've been described as "a favorite of the international set." What does that mean?—J. M., Huntington, W. Va.

● I guess it refers to my dates with Omar Sharif and Afghanistan's Prince Hassai Durrani. And early this year, I became a Dame of Malta (because of my work for sickle-cell anemia and the March of Dimes). I've been through two broken romances and have seen friends suffer through bad marriages. I fear marriage and dig being single. I like minks and diamonds, but I can get them without marrying.

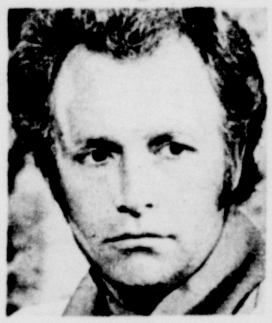


FOR MUHAMMAD ALI

You criticized George Foreman's way of training and said you had seen him in mixed company the day before the fight. This leads me to ask how you cope with sex while training?—John Mason, Atlantic City, N.J.

● I start getting sex off my mind about six weeks before a fight. For most athletes, two weeks ahead is enough. Not for me. I send my wife away, and I don't like too many women around my camp, no matter who they belong to.

FOR EVEL KNIEVEL



I've heard that you made $16 million from your Snake River Canyon jump. How much will you net after taxes and expenses?—Curtis Schell, Twin Falls, Idaho

● My answer is that it is none of your business what I'll net.

FOR MAJ. GEN. WALTER R. TKACH, physician to former President Nixon

Is Mr. Nixon's health, mental and physical, on the edge of collapse, or will he recover?—A. S. Kravitz, Brooklyn, N.Y.

● His health is not collapsing. He has been dealt a severe setback in terms of carrying out the policies for peace that he had hoped would be accomplished before he left office. It will take time, but he will recover and be the same strong, determined and great American he has always been.

FOR HILDEGARDE

What is it that keeps you so young? Religion, as you once stated, or a face-lift?—D. Appel, N. Miami Beach, Fla.

● I'm on the far side of 60. I've never had a lift—I'd admit it if I had. What keeps me from having one is diet, exercise and skin care—and religion, or faith. To lack faith is to despair. Despair has a way of tugging down the corners of the eyes and mouth. The result is wrinkles. Despair also drops a mask of unhappiness and age across a face. Whatever troubles I've gone through, I've never succumbed to despair.

FOR POLLY BERGEN

What made you decide to go into the cosmetics business?—B. Rose, Austin, Texas

● When I was 31, I got three offers to play a grandmother! I panicked. I thought I still looked 21. I peered in the mirror, saw things I never saw before, bought all kinds of gloop and started experimenting. I was soon told I looked "fantastic." I loaned my formula to friends, who liked it and suggested I start a mail-order business. Next year (1966) on Merv Griffin's show, I joked I was "making turtle oil." In five days I got 2,700 letters, all with checks. I decided to fill them.

FOR DR. BENJAMIN SPOCK

● Most persons who complain that children have no values really are saying that children don't have the same values that they do. Wanting a simple life is not a lack of value but a difference of value. I have spent most of the last eight years with young people, and I am impressed with their values, their consciences. Most of them have much higher standards than older persons.

FOR BILL ANDERSON

I get the impression that all country-music singers started life in poverty. Is this true?—M. K., Tupelo, Miss.

● I didn't. Although we weren't well off, I never felt deprived. But country music was created in poverty, in which many of our ancestors were raised. Music was all they had. Mama played the piano and Papa strummed the guitar. The kids sang in church choirs. Country folk aren't SUPPOSED to be rich. Maybe that's how the idea got around that country-music singers all began poor.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Was there ever anything between Richard Burton and Sophia Loren?—A. Somes, Troy, N.Y.

● The truth is they're just friends. When Burton and Liz Taylor had their separation and reunion last year, they stayed in Sophia's Rome villa. She's happily married to Carlo Ponti (who's 21 years her senior) and has been for the past 24 years. Richard was recently quoted in a London paper as saying, "I'll never marry again. If I find the right girl, I might live with her. I've put out some offers, but they've all said, 'No.'" But now he's apparently changed his mind about that. His fiancée (at this writing) is Princess Elizabeth of Yugoslavia, who wants to become an actress—but Richard is against that.

Last year, famed novelist Erskine Caldwell wrote an article for FAMILY WEEKLY in which he explained that every seven years he and his wife feel the desire to pack up and move. They were living in Dunedin, Fla. (and still are), but they felt it was getting to be that time again. "Just for fun," they said, "why not send in your suggestions of where we should move?" FAMILY WEEKLY readers responded.

A Follow-up by the Erskine Caldwells:

We Asked You Where We Should Live—And Boy, Did You Tell Us!

By Virginia and Erskine Caldwell

We got thousands of fascinating letters from our readers in response to the article "It's Time to Move On," published last year in FAMILY WEEKLY. There were also hundreds of books, magazines, newspapers, maps, postcards and photographs, as well as the letters, that made up what we called "Our Mountain of Mail."

During these times of dissatisfaction and discontent around the world it was tremendously reassuring to receive such a response from Americans who are so proud of their hometowns and so satisfied with the caliber of life they find there that they are anxious to share their enjoyment with others.

Here are a few quotations from those letters from FAMILY WEEKLY readers, who responded so generously to our quandary over a new homestead.

THE WEST

Redding, Calif.:

"Each morning, snowcapped Mt. Lassen is silhouetted against the crimson horizon of the dawn. Forests of pine, fir and cedar upholster the 40 miles of mountains that slope up to skirt this only active volcano in the 48 conterminous states. In the evening, the afterglow of the western sunset bathes majestic Mt. Shasta in a roseate glow as it towers in its shrouded mystery 50 miles to the north of Redding. Don't you think this would be a glorious way for you to begin and end each day?"—Mrs. Bonnie B.

Reno, Nev.:

"The biggest little city in the world is beckoning you. The variety of the life to be found here in Reno is endless. If you desire culture and an academic atmosphere, the University of Nevada has much to offer. If you wish entertainment, the casinos provide both gambling and people-watching 24 hours around the clock, and excellent restaurants are always open. If you are looking for outdoor sports and fresh air, you will find it all in Reno and at nearby Lake Tahoe. You will find everything your heart could desire in Reno, including friendship and happiness."—Janet and Guy W.

SOUTHWEST AND SOUTH CENTRAL

Tyler, Texas:

"Dear Tex and Mrs. Caldwell:

"Tyler is the finest place in the world to live! The people, climate, rainfall, vegetation, cleanliness and all the other things Tyler has to offer make it the most wonderful place you could find to live. Just visit us—we'll show you around, and your search for a new home will be over.

"My wife Margie and I extend to you a special invitation to occupy our guest ranch house amidst the whispering pines of—yes, East Texas. The round-trip tickets enclosed are open to your time, as Tyler is beautiful any time of year.

"And after you have decided that this will be your next home, Margie and I would like to present you with a 'Welcome to Tyler' gift of a three-acre lot of your choice in 'The Hills' on serene Lake Palestine."—Ben F., rancher-realtor

(This overwhelming invitation was the first response we received, and it arrived by air express, accompanied by 12 dozen exquisite, dew-fresh roses in a variety of colors.)

Topeka, Kan.:

"Why not try the heart of our great country, where you can travel in any direction with equal ease? Kansas is the 'Breadbasket of the Nation,' and the lilting song of the meadowlark (the state bird) as it soars over the grainfields and the everyday sight of the cheerful sunflower faces (the state flower) will bring you constant joy. Come visit us; the guest room is waiting and homemade bread will be baking in the oven!"

longer than seven years, he might let you move to our lovely, uncrowded state."

—John L., conservationist

Glen Ullin, N.D.:

"My brothers and I wish to extend to you and your family an invitation to visit and hopefully to live in the home my parents built in Glen Ullin. It has 14 bedrooms, is basically simple yet beautiful in its own unique way. Near the Bad Lands and Teddy Roosevelt country—a sense of the frontier atmosphere still prevails.

"We would ask for nothing. The satisfaction to us would be the knowledge that our home would once again be alive with people who would learn to really love this country as we do, and our hope would be that you would be inspired to write by the great, untapped reservoir of history and knowledge of this remarkable part of the country."—Joel T.

Kalispell, Mont.:

"Your move to Montana will make you a part of the 'Big Sky' country. You will stand in awe of the majestic Mission Mountains and gaze with wonder at glistening Flathead Lake. When you have experienced the quiet solitude and seclusion of being snowed in, with birds and deer as your only companions, your faith in life itself will be renewed; and as you absorb the vastness of this country, you will feel you can accomplish any feat you desire."—Joan and Dick K.

GREAT LAKES

Green Bay, Wis.:

"My, I'm glad that I've written to you! I've enjoyed writing this letter so much because it makes me realize all over again how very lucky I am to be living in wonderful, perfect Green Bay."—Mary L.

Tiffin, Ohio:

"Tiffin, according to statistics, is one of the safest cities in America. Live with us and have peace of mind and a quiet, balanced life, and we promise that it will be interesting and stimulating too. I have traveled the world over, and in Tiffin find the best of everything."

—A.B.D., Jr., U.S.A., retired

NORTHEAST

Hanover, N.H.:

"If you haven't lived in a New England college town, you owe it to yourselves to spend your next seven years in Hanover. You will feel secure in the shelter of the calm, conservative townspeople, but life is spiced also with the activity and attitudes of the students. You will feel inspired as each turn in the road unfolds an animated painting, and your writing will prosper as each season brings you change and excitement. You will put down roots because the friendships you make will be deep and permanent."—Sandy and Drew L.

Bangor, Maine:

"Definition of Bangor: A body of people surrounded by enchanting lakes and mountains, with easy access to the wild beauty of the Atlantic Coast and nearby cities steeped in the history of our founding forefathers."—Dabney C.

MIDDLE ATLANTIC

Hazelton, Pa.:

"An ethnic paradise for a writer; not a 'melting pot' exactly, but what I would call a happy 'meld' of Polish, Russian, Irish and Italian second- and third-generation immigrants. The combination creates a fascinating city."—Frances M.

Princeton, W. Va.:

"Let's take a trip to my hometown and cross the mountains, which will be green in spring and the air the freshest in the world, or in the fall when the red, yellow and orange autumn leaves dance in the breeze. You will never want to move again because a lifetime of writing awaits you here. Come soon, the coffee pot is on and the latchstring is out."—Adriana R.

SOUTHEAST

Albany, Ga.:

"You are a Southerner by blood. In my opinion a Georgia boy should return to his home state to live and be revitalized anew to write about the life-style that he knows better than any other author. Welcome home!"—N.L.F.

Dunedin, Fla.:

"Dear Mr. Caldwell: You look old and tired, and Mrs. Caldwell, you don't look so good, either. Why don't you stay where you are and get a good rest? Anyone who would want to move from Dunedin, God's gift to America in the name of Scotland, should make an appointment with the nearest psychiatrist. Stay home and get well soon!"—Mrs. L. A.

We could easily write a book about the FAMILY WEEKLY letters that came from every state in the union, Mexico and Canada, written by every age group from eight-year-olds to ninety. They were letters full of goodwill and friendliness; some serious, some full of humor, some just a sentence, some ten pages long. We enjoyed them all—and they have given us a lot to think about!

● While keeping your present job, would you like to gross $14 or $21 profit per hour?

a true story by Bob Ferrel

SOME YEARS AGO I was a printer in a small Michigan town. I drew a pretty fair pay check but it wouldn't stretch far enough to provide the kind of living I wanted for my wife and five children.

Then one day I was reading a magazine just as you now are and I saw an ad. It intrigued me. It offered me the steadily growing income I had always hoped for. It said I would have greater security and personal independence... and that's what I had been wanting.

I was a little skeptical, but I said to myself, "for a postage stamp I can find out." So I mailed the coupon. In a few days, I got a letter with a booklet that gave the whole story. It opened my eyes. I could see why owning my own business was so much easier than I had always thought... why the day to day guidance of a successful worldwide organization could assure my own success.

I read the booklet several times. It just seemed too good to be true. I talked it over with my wife. We decided that now was the time to make the forward step... there was no reason to keep postponing an income increase.

So, I applied for a Duraclean dealership and I was accepted. I stayed with my job... ran a few ads... sent some mailings... contacted a few stores and told my friends about the superior services I was now equipped to give them. Evenings and Saturdays, I rendered the service. As the business grew, I added servicemen.

I found that I didn't have to develop a single idea myself. Every step had been prepared for me and pre-tested. Hundreds of other men had already proven my methods successful.

It didn't take long to see that I was making three to four times (yes, 3 to 4 times) as much per hour in my own business as in my printing job. So, after only seven months with a good following of customers, I quit my job to go full time on my own. In the meantime, I had enjoyed all this extra income on top of my salary.

Each day, we realized what a serious mistake not mailing that coupon would have been... and how that little act that seemed so trivial at the time actually changed our lives.

The steadily growing income brought us many things we could not afford before. My efforts were so much more productive. I scheduled my time to my own liking. When we wanted a day or two off, we took it. I worked hard but, if I wanted to be home early or quit at noon, I did.

This is not a business for a lazy man. But if a man is ambitious and will work to deserve those nice things in life we all want, this business is made to order for such a man.

I became so enthusiastic about this business and so appreciative of what it had brought my family that, whenever a man opened a dealership near me, I helped him get a quick start.

The company learned about this and had each new dealer in my section of Michigan spend a day with me. One day the president of Duraclean Company asked me how I would like to move to Headquarters and spend my entire time helping dealers to increase their sales and profits.

That was good news to my ears. Since then I have worked with hundreds of our dealers in their own towns and at regional meetings, conventions and dealer group meetings. But much of the time I am right here at my desk in touch with our dealers by letter and telephone.

Incidentally I sold my dealership at a good profit. If for any reason a dealer wants to sell, we maintain a service to locate buyers and help him sell.

Our job here at headquarters is to show each individual Duraclean dealer how to use his own abilities to bring him greatest success. I know hundreds of our dealers on a first name basis. We work together as one happy family. If you become a Duraclean dealer, I'll be as close to you as your telephone or mail box.

It's Easier than You Think To Build Your Own Business

If you've wanted to BE YOUR OWN BOSS... to become financially independent and have a fast growing income, now YOU CAN. And you own a Nationally Advertised business.

You can stay at your present job while your customer list grows... then switch to full time, lining up jobs for your servicemen to do. One job a day brings a good starting income.

If you hire two servicemen (full or part time) while you keep your job, the national price guide provides you a gross profit of $14 an hour on their work and this is much easier to do than you think. We show you how... step by step. That's $490 for a 35 hour week.

Your gross profit on three servicemen is $21 per hour. Duraclean dealers find it easy to gross $7 per hour on EACH serviceman plus $12 an hour on any service they themselves render. The 24 page illustrated booklet we'll mail you (with no obligation) explains how most of your gross profit becomes clear net profit. Your income is limited only by the number of servicemen you employ.

You can operate from a shop, office, or your home. Equipment is light and portable.

At the start, you may want to render service yourself... or you can start with full or part time servicemen. This business is easy to learn... easy to start... so easy to service that women dealers do it. We prefer you have no experience... not have to "unlearn" old ways.

We are NOW enlarging this worldwide system of individually-owned service businesses. If you are reliable, honest and willing to work to become financially independent, we invite you to mail the coupon.

When you receive our illustrated booklet, you will see the way we show you step by step how to quickly get customers... and still more customers from their recommendations.

You have 7 superior services that are rendered "on location" in homes, offices, hotels, theaters, clubs, motels and institutions.

These are not ordinary services. You have the prestige and endorsement of leading furniture makers and carpet mills, of Parents' Magazine and McCall's, of Research and Testing Laboratories.

National magazine advertising explains superior merits of your services, builds your customer confidence and brings job leads to you.

We and a Duraclean dealer will train you and assist you. He'll reveal his successful, proven methods. You have pre-tested newspaper and yellow-page ads, commercials, and a full mailing program.

Stores, upholsterers, insurance adjustors, and decorators refer jobs to our dealers. These year 'round services are in constant demand.

Start Small, Grow Big in this Booming Business

Many men have said to us, "I can't afford to give up my job till I know I have a sure thing... a sound business that will provide both security and a better living for my family."

That made sense to us so we worked out such a plan... and those same men are now enjoying a Duraclean dealership in many communities. You don't experiment. You use tested, proven methods. You have our backing and "know how."

Does this appeal to you? Don't decide now. Mail the coupon so you'll have the facts to decide wisely. There is no obligation. You'll then know whether this is what you want.

You can start small and grow big. A third century ago Duraclean was an idea... but it caught fire and spread to a world wide service. Why did it spread? (1) superior processes. (2) proven customer-getting methods (3) Day to day guidance from Headquarters.

Our first service, the care of upholstery and carpets not only cleans, it enlivens the fibers... revives dull colors. Pile rises with new life. There's no harsh machine scrubbing. No soaking. Mild aerated foam lightly applied lifts out dirt, grease, many unsightly spots like magic. Furnishings are used again in a few hours.

Government figures show service businesses are growing faster than industries and stores... $750 million yearly potential just in rug and furniture cleaning. Your 6 other services are explained in the free booklet we'll mail you.

Your total cost is only $4500, and we have enough confidence in your success that we will finance two-thirds for you, without interest or carrying charges. You pay down only $1495... and your opportunity is more solid and far greater than many much larger investments.

We furnish electric equipment and, with first shipment, enough materials to return your TOTAL investment. If you have good habits and know the importance of customer satisfaction, you can likely qualify for a Duraclean dealership.

TODAY is the time to reserve a Duraclean dealership, before someone takes your location.

It's been said, "Opportunity knocks but once at every man's door." This could be that one rare opportunity in your life.

It is surprisingly easy to learn this business. You can decide from the information we will send you whether to apply for a dealership. So, with no obligation whatever, mail the coupon TODAY. Cut it out NOW so you won't forget to mail it.

Mail this coupon TODAY
It may put you in business

Duraclean International
5-92B Duraclean Bldg., Deerfield, Ill. 60015

With no obligation, mail 24 page illustrated booklet telling how and why I can quickly increase my income and family security while still employed, how you'll help finance me. No salesman will call.

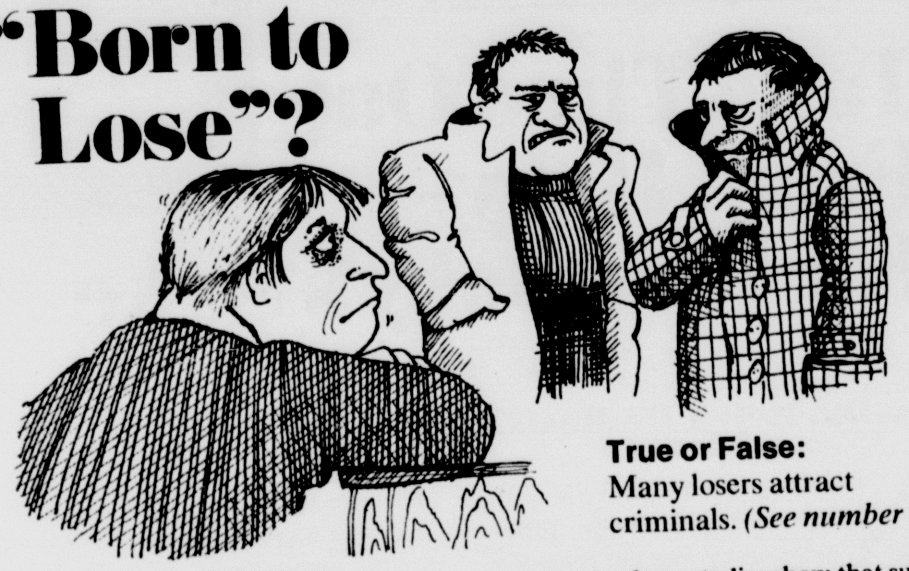
People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Why Were Some People "Born to Lose"?



True or False:
Many losers attract criminals. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. It's easy to spot the "born loser."
2. Bad luck is contagious.
3. Many losers attract criminals.
4. Losers never have any fun.
5. If you're a loser, there isn't much you can do about it—except reconcile yourself to being in the wrong place at the right time.

ANSWERS

1. True. The born loser puts his best foot forward—and then trips over it. The term "loser" is not intended to apply to those who suffer misfortune through no fault of their own. The term applies rather to those "chronic victims" whose circumstances are due to their own perverse outlook, and whose lives are filled with various opportunities that they contrive, through their negligence or imprudence, to turn into stumbling blocks. Behaviorial therapist Dorothy E. Peven has made a special study of the loser—or "victim" type. Her findings: "They have the knack of handling problems in such a way that they always come out on the short end of the stick. They will unconsciously do or say things that will provoke others to attack them or victimize them in some way." A typical victim, she notes, is the girl who always falls in love with what an observer can see is the wrong man (he's married, he's an alcoholic, etc.). And it's further observed that the true victim – the "career loser" – goes out looking for spiderwebs so he can get caught.

2. True—and you catch it from losers. Psychological studies conducted at the University of Illinois show that negative, downbeat emotional states are highly contagious. You can't hang around a loser very long without getting damp from the rain that's always falling on him.

3. True. As evidenced by the findings of internationally known criminologist Dr. Ezzat Abdel Fattah, University of Montreal, whose studies show that such people "reveal a permanent and unconscious predisposition for victimization, and attract criminals in the same way that lambs attract wolves." Such individuals, he finds, are likely to be victims of the same type of offense more than once. And many victims, his investigations show, play a definite role in activating a crime by inciting the criminal to commit it—either by their own imprudence or by creating or fostering a situation likely to lead to crime.

4. False. Losers, as one psychologist has noted, find a perverse pleasure in being unhappy, and seem genuinely uncomfortable unless they have something to complain about. The most fun a loser has is telling you his troubles. Losers are the originators of the upside-down smile, the carefully cultivated martyred expression. Male losers tend to marry wives who are professional naggers. And medical studies show there is one type of loser who goes from doctor to doctor looking for one who can find something wrong with him. As one authority points out, "The most common defense mechanism of the victim [or loser] is denial. He doesn't admit to himself how much he enjoys that which he brought about."

5. False. Studies at Wesleyan University have shown that most losers are dyed-in-the-wool pessimists who would cease being losers if they could only become more optimistic. The loser-pessimist loads the odds in favor of self-defeat by unconsciously setting goals that are impossible to achieve. As a result, he develops what behaviorial specialists term "failure expectancy." Remedy: If you're a loser, set goals that you can reasonably expect to achieve, thus establishing a success pattern. Each goal you attain gives your optimism and self-confidence another shot in the arm. And with those two qualities in ascendance, it's pretty hard to remain a loser.

Advice to Fatigued Young Mothers:

Take Time Out From Baby– For Your Baby's Sake

Elizabeth Gee

By Dr. Helen De Rosis

New parents often love to be with baby. They can't tear themselves away. But this is usually confined to baby No. 1. I don't mean that later children are not wanted and loved. But the first baby is a unique experience—almost like one's very first time of being in love. No other experience is ever like it again.

After your first few weeks of parental wonder and panic, joy and doubt, excitement and fatigue, you settle down in a cozy routine that usually lasts until baby begins to learn that the world stretches beyond the bounds of crib, bassinet, carriage and Mommy's and Daddy's faces. Once baby has made that discovery, your next phase of parenting is upon you—ready or not! For your child is going to want to explore the limits of this new world. Don't be surprised if at this point baby stops being so much fun.

"Parents often get the message that they should be more 'involved' with their children. This can be a good thing. But do you run the risk of exaggerating a good thing?"

If Mother is the principal one caring for baby, she is often on duty full time. There is little opportunity for a change of scene with no family responsibilities. Without that respite, some parents gradually become annoyed at the time and effort that baby takes.

Parents often get the message that they should be more "involved" with their children. This can be a good thing. But do you run the risk of exaggerating a good thing? Is there such a thing as too much involvement with your children? And if so, how much involvement is too much?

Let's face it: Some parents can't bring themselves to spend much time with their children. If they try to force themselves, they become tense. Often they give the time, but it's not quality time. It's a divided and sometimes resentful involvement and will not encourage a sense of well-being in their children.

I'm well aware that some of this less-than-quality time cannot be avoided if you are the principal carer of your child. But try to find some small time to really enjoy your baby.

Also, try to arrange to have some time during the week for yourself. It doesn't have to be a whole day or even a half day. But it should be a set period, a time when you are completely free of your obligations. The woman who cannot afford a baby-sitter might consider exchanging child care with another parent. Even two hours of such time can relieve tension; and I would advocate it over taking tranquilizers.

Now please: I'm not saying you must take time off. If you really don't feel any tension, boredom or constriction, that's great. But if you do, try giving yourself some time off. And if you can manage it, take a whole weekend off!

There are also options for the nursing mother. There is nothing that says you can't alternate your baby's feedings with a bottle—if you want to. If you can skip two feedings, with comfort, and if baby sleeps through the nights, you might leave for a little outing right after baby's supper. Stay away all night and be back in time for the noon feeding the next day.

But please remember that the quality of your attention and involvement is more important than the quantity. One hour (even in divided doses) of wholehearted attention per day would probably make for a better relationship with baby than hours and hours of divided attention, tinged with irritation and boredom. Conscientious parents sometimes tend to push their involvement with their children past the point of mutual benefit. Too much involvement can promote excessive mutual parent-child dependency and interfere with healthy growth and development —for both parent and child.

By Donna Walker — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

When I was 66 inches around, and 65 inches tall, even my favorite fat lady's store had a problem. I know, because at 278 pounds I wore the largest bloomers they carried. And that's the only word for them — bloomers — even though I'm of the generation that usually refers to ladies' panties as briefs.

Fact is, the thought of having nothing to wear made me so panicky, I said to myself: "This is it! You've got to lose weight, Donna." Not that I was unaware of my size before. There were too many embarrassing reminders in my life for me to ignore my weight. Let me tell you a few of them . . . for laughs.

At my fullest figure, I fit so snugly into a tub that the water was dammed up behind me when I pulled the plug out in front of me. And when I stood up in a shower stall, I couldn't even bend over to pick up a bar of soap. I was trapped upright by my own appetite.

Actually I've been stuck in more places than you can imagine: a seat in a movie house, a Carnival turnstyle, even my own armchair. Why, I was wedged in so many times, the friction from my fanny wore out the upholstery.

As for dresses, I had one — to go to work in. I washed it every night and every day for one year because it was the only dress that fit.

Now if you think this whole situation embarrassed me, let me tell you it shamed my poor mother. She was always making excuses for me. Like when I was a child she used to say: "It's only 'baby' fat. It'll go away." But she was still saying it when I was 28 years of age!

I think I ought to mention that chocolate and sweets were my undoing. But ironically, candy is what really helped me to lose weight. Ayds® Reducing Plan Candy. I'd read ads about it in magazines and when I learned that Ayds contains vitamins and minerals but no drugs, I thought maybe there was something in it for me. I sure knew from past experience that diet pills, weekly reducing sessions, and even a psychiatrist were not the answer for me. I needed something to help curb my appetite and my eternal craving for sweets.

So, I bought a box of chocolate fudge Ayds at the drug store and started on the plan in the fall. I took one or two Ayds about 15 minutes before each meal with a hot drink and it really helped me cut down on what I ate. And I ate regular meals. I didn't prepare anything special.

At 278 pounds, I was no mermaid. Believe it or not, I had a friend who once called me a Floating Island! I laughed, but I really didn't think that it was very funny!

Now at 136 pounds, my hometown friends in West Hartford, Connecticut, hardly recognize me. As a matter of fact, whenever I look into the mirror, I hardly recognize myself.

Right from the start, I had such a positive feeling about the Ayds plan, I even took on a $50 bet from my friend's husband. He'd heard me talk about losing weight for 10 years, but never saw me do anything about it. So he figured it was going to be an easy win. But in the end he had to pay up, because that weight came off.

Nobody really noticed it until I'd lost more than 50 pounds. You see, I hadn't bought any new clothes so I was hidden under a lot of baggy pants and sacky tops. Then at Easter, when I'd taken off 78 pounds on the Ayds plan, I turned out in a new lavender pantsuit and everybody was amazed. As for me, I was so thrilled, I was determined to stick to the Ayds plan, even on my birthday. Some friends dropped by with a "Have-a-happy" box from the bakery and I thought: "How mean!" But when I opened it, it was filled with celery and a lot of laughs. I knew then that everybody was rooting for me.

I guess, though, we never see ourselves as others do. Let me tell you about a remark my nephew made while I was still losing weight. He'd seen me at his sister's wedding, wearing a size 52 beige tent. Months after I'd been on the Ayds plan, I appeared at his wedding in a size 18 dress. He was so shocked, his eyes opened wide, then his mouth. "What were you wearing the last time I saw you — your beige Volkswagen?" Funny, I knew I was fat, but not that fat.

How long did it take me to lose 142 pounds on the Ayds plan? Just about a year and now I can do things I never could before. For the first time, I can cross my legs — like a lady. I can also see all of me in a mirror. And I can even climb up a pool ladder without fear of breaking it.

On the serious side, my teenage nieces and nephews are now proud to introduce me as their aunt. As for my relations with my parents, I can tell you that they've never been better. In fact, everybody I know is happier with me, since I'm now only 37½ inches around. Which makes me forever grateful for the Ayds plan.

Isle of Man Legal Tender
Gold Coinage

The Isle of Man is situated almost equidistant from England, Scotland and Ireland. After the Viking Conquest in the 9th century, the Island had a fiercely independent history. Whilst the U.K. government is responsible for Manx foreign affairs and defense, the Isle of Man enjoys its own Constitution, government, and laws.

Their parliament, the ancient Tynwald, retains many powers including the right to mint its own coinage. The Manx Treasury liaises closely with the Bank of England and the Isle of Man is, of course, part of the Sterling Bloc.

1973 Isle of Man legal tender Gold Coinage consists of four coins, Half Sovereign, Sovereign, £2 and £5 pieces minted to brilliant uncirculated quality and produced in 22kt gold. These fine coins are sold in complete sets, mounted in a presentation case. Sovereigns can be purchased separately.

The four coins are the same size, weight and gold content as the world famous English pieces of the same values. By tradition, they do not carry notation of their values.

DEAR SUZY . . .
The Palace replies

Recently, FAMILY WEEKLY'S "Through a Child's Eyes" featured a happy-birthday letter from nine-year-old Suzy Pope of Muncie, Ind., to Princess Margaret of England. In it, Suzy dwelt at some length on her allergy and her nose problems. FAMILY WEEKLY forwarded the letter to the Princess, and several weeks later, the following letter from Kensington Palace arrived in Suzy's mailbox in Muncie:

Dear Suzy,

Princess Margaret thought it was so kind of you to write to her, and she has asked me to thank you very much for your letter.

I am so sorry about your allergy; I hope it is much better now, and that your nose is no longer sore from blowing. It is a horrid feeling when one's nose gets stuffed up.

Her Royal Highness had a very happy birthday, and hopes that you have one too.

Yours sincerely,
Annabel Whitehead

How strong is the hold of a small town? Is it strong enough to keep its residents even when it is a town like Julian, nestled in tinderbox Southern California, where forest fires are not only a threat, but a virtual certainty? Yes, says Julian drugstore owner Jim Alspach, who recently cooperated with ABC-TV's camera crews in the making of a documentary on the subject to be aired Thursday. "My family and I used to be plugged into a situation where we were credit-card living—you know, let's live it up today and tomorrow we'll pay for it. Up here we've found that we get enjoyment out of the simple things in life. Out of sitting around the house with a fire in the fireplace in the evening, or reading. We have to make our own entertainment. We're a little bit involved in music. We have a barbershop quartet going. It isn't the hustle-bustle-run type of existence, but we're living within our means—and that's important to me."

Instant ego

QUOTE: O. J. Simpson on athletes as actors: "Take a guy like Joe [Namath] or me—acting is the only thing we can get into to get the same ego trip. . . . Athletes are people who set out to do something and do it right now. Every week in football I get to feed that ego, and I'm doing it with me, not with a machine or something. Well, your job as an actor is protecting you, getting you across. Some of the most confident people in the world—and it comes off as cockiness sometimes—are athletes, and that's because they know what they can do." From "The O. J. ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

GETTING A CHARGE OUT OF IT

This mostly applies to my wife,
But it also applies to me.
Things charged to a charge account
No matter how costly seem free.

No money at all is paid.
Just "Charge it," two words, will suffice.
Of course you must sign your name,
But that can be done in a trice.

Removing the pain of paying!
But today is the first of the month,
And what in the world was I saying?

The following questions—and their irreverent answers—are taken from the book, "Zingers From the Hollywood Squares" (Popular Library, New York, $1.25). "Zingers" is also available as a record album (Event Records, $6.98).

• When Stanley asked his famous question—"Dr. Livingston, I presume?"—Dr. Livingston made a less famous reply. What was it?

PAUL LYNDE: "Kiss me."

• The Post Office motto lists four specific things that won't stop the mailman from getting to you. Snow, rain and heat are three of them. What's the fourth?

ROSE MARIE: A wedding band.

• According to Dear Abby, is there a law that can force a man to marry a woman?

ROSE MARIE: Yes. It's called the father-in-law.

• What is the marital status of most adults in America?

CHARLEY WEAVER: Bored stiff.

• According to Robert Mitchum, one thing has ruined more actors than drink. What is it?

JIM BROLIN: Otto Preminger.

• It was perfected in 1873 by a Maj. Walter Clopton Wingfield as a diversion for English society. What is it?

PAUL LYNDE: The vibrating crumpet.
